Charlevoix and northern Michigan is today digging out of what is termed the fiercest storm of the 20th century and unprecedented in local history for such an early advent of winter and its severity.

High winds which brought rain Monday afternoon, snow that evening and an all-day blizzard Tuesday, smashed trees, signs and buildings, disrupted telephone and electric service and otherwise wrought havoc in this region.

As wind-driven snow brought visibility to near zero, some rural schools closed and attendance in Charlevoix schools was down to a low figure Tuesday. Lashed by a southwest gale of 45 miles per hour, electric lines broke or went down under falling trees, interrupting service so rapidly repairmen could not keep up with the damage. Some users of electrically-controlled furnaces put in a cold night and homes with electric ranges in some instances had a cold breakfast.

Trees were blown down throughout the city, lying across streets and sidewalks. This condition existed in rural districts also. Wind blew a chimney down through the roof of the Baptist church, also the Don Herrick residence, destroyed a chimney at the Floyd Supp home, blew out windows at the Parkside Restaurant and in numerous homes. Roofs were damaged throughout the city. Doors were blown in and roof damaged at the Foster Boat Co.

Damage in the rural district, only partially reported at this time, included barns blown down or damaged at the Saunders, D. E. Ingalls, Floyd Black and Charles Withers farms. A crib filled with corn was moved 18 inches off its foundation at the Ingalls farm.

Charlevoix coast guards faced death in mountainous seas during a fruitless 9-hour search Tuesday in the vicinity of Fox Islands for the Str. Frank J. Peterson, first reported grounded there, but later reported on Hog Island reef. The ship was reported safe, although leaking, Wednesday morning. First Officer Louis Mosher, whose crew was composed of Robert Sommerville, Fred Hardy and Lloyd Hulett, returned at 4:30 with their boat, and men as well, heavily iced. Mosher said the seas were the heaviest experienced in his 25 years of coast guard service.

Willis Cross' diesel powered fish tug Dornbos, last reported in the vicinity of Fox Islands, Monday, reached port around noon today. At Cross Village, the tug Violet, owned by Don Cross, the Harold II, owned by Ralph Cross, the Grey's Reef supply boat and several small craft were said to have sunk behind the breakwater. Docks were destroyed at St. James harbor, where nine fish tugs were said to be sunk or ashore. Miles Olmstead's tug Alice broke its mooring Tuesday night in Round lake and was washed high and dry on the beach near the Chicago Club boathouses. Coast guards were trying to pull it off Wednesday morning.

Radio reports indicated Lansing Shoals lighthouse was out of commission, its portholes smashed and machinery room flooded. Grey's Reef lighthouse also was considerably damaged and its emergency boat washed away. Crews of both were safe, however.

That this region escaped the brunt of the storm is indicated by reports of death and destruction from midwest and eastern states and lower Michigan.

In the nation the death toll was near 100. It was feared 70, perhaps more, met death on the Great Lakes. Sixteen bodies from the freighters William R. Davock and Anna C. Minch had washed ashore at Ludington and Pentwater. Two fish tugs with their crews of 7 and four coast guardsmen were reported lost at Grand Haven. Eight large craft were listed as missing or aground. Michigan's death toll from storm accidents was high.

About five inches of snow fell in this section, a much greater amount than in sections east and south. A large number of deer hunters, seeking transportation to Beaver Island, were awaiting arrival of the mail boat Mary Margaret, storm-bound since Monday at St. James.

VIOLATORS HIDE ILLEGAL KILL MANY PLACES

Blockade in Southern Counties Reveals Strange Situations

Hubcaps, spaces behind spare tires and beneath car hoods, dinner buckets, bags of apples and hunters' pockets have disgorged illegal game during the closing days of the bird season as conservation officers established blockades on heavily-traveled highways in the southeastern section of the state.

A blockade of US-112 in Lenawee county netted six hen pheasants, three quail and six Hungarian partridge, and resulted in 11 arrests, the assessing of $305 in fines, $75 in costs and imposition of alternate jail sentences totaling 375 days. An estimated 1,200 hunters' cars and equipment were checked. A similar blockade in the Detroit area, during which 4,189 cars and 12,310 hunters were stopped, resulted in 11 arrests for possession of hen pheasants illegally shot and 25 arrests on miscellaneous game law violation charges.

FOSTER BOAT CO. GIVEN CONTRACT

MAKE BOWLING PINS FOR MUSKEGON FIRM

Ten-Man Shift Initial Requirement in Manufacture—Start Boat Building Program Soon

Completion of a contract providing manufacture by the Foster Boat Company of rough turned bowling pins for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of Muskegon, has been announced by James Foster, owner of this local concern recently established in Charlevoix.

The new industry, which is to be combined with the company's regular schedule of boat building, will be started as quickly as machinery is placed and material obtained. The bowling pins are to be cut from 17-inch hard maple logs which are kneesawed, corner-sawed and turned in a lathe before going into the pre-dryer and finally being treated to prevent checking. The pins are to be shipped green to Muskegon.

Manufacture of the pins will require ten men, including one foreman. It is hoped later to employ two, and perhaps three shifts, as the contract calls for sufficient quantity to insure year-around work and is sufficiently flexible to provide for expansion. Edward Stiles, regular employe of the Foster Boat Co., is now in Muskegon taking special instruction in the work of manufacturing bowling pins.

Mr. Foster stated his firm is now in the market for hard maple logs and would prefer buying as many from the local market as possible.

Construction of boats has so far been held up by delay in arrival of materials, particularly. Canoes are now being built and, when conditions permit, a full schedule of boat construction will be started.

AWAIT CANVASS OF ELECTION RESULTS

STATE GIVES WILLKIE MAJORITY 4,000 VOTES

State Offices to Kelly, Brown, Rushton, Republican; VanWagonor, Murphy, Frey, Democrats

Leaders of both major political parties are awaiting results of the official canvass, to determine final results of last Tuesday's election.

Present unofficial returns gave two Democrats state offices and Wendell L. Willkie Michigan's 19 electoral votes.

Assured of election and safe from changes which the canvass might bring about were the Democratic winners, Murray D. Van Wagoner for governor, Frank Murphy for lieutenant governor, and Theodore I. Fry for state treasurer. Republicans winning with safe margins were U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly and Auditor General Vernon J. Brown.

Virtually complete returns indicated that Herbert J. Rushton, of Escanaba, has won the attorney generalship on the Republican ticket over former attorney general Raymond W. Starr. His plurality was little more than 3,000 votes.

Willkie carried Michigan by a plurality of 4,000 votes over President Roosevelt.

County clerks were urged to exercise caution in tabulating votes for the board of canvassers. The official report may not be forthcoming for two weeks.

In an exceptionally close race, Cong. Fred Bradley, of Rogers City, was re-elected over Wendell L. Lund, of Escanaba, by a margin of 2,273 votes. This contest was earlier in doubt. Otto W. Bishop, of Alpena, carried every county in the 29th Michigan senatorial district to defeat Robert Rayburn, Democratic nominee. Louis E. Anderson, R., of Northport, won an easy victory over William Schram, D., for Charlevoix-Leelanau representative in the State Legislature. Anderson carried Leelanau county 2,290 to 1,109, and Charlevoix county 3,383 to 1904.

Similar resolutions will be passed by the Charlevoix county board of supervisors at a special session which was called for today (Wednesday).

Perhaps it's a good idea to take election of Judicial officials out of politics by using the non-partisan ballot method, but so far the non-partisan ballot hasn't proven much of a success. In proof of such argument I would cite the fact that many such ballots, used for the first time this year, were not voted at all—just folded up and placed in the ballot boxes without a mark on them. Fact of the matter is, the non-partisan ballots cast for judge of probate totaled 5,017, compared to 5,681 for presidential candidates.

The Michigan voter is getting quite a reputation for political independent thinking.

A skeptic might call it "vacillation." We think otherwise.

There are enough voters on the "fence," so to speak, to turn the tide one way or another. These persons constitute a system of checks and balance that must be reckoned with on election day.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, governor-elect, carried 25 out of 88 counties and accumulated in Wayne county a commanding lead of more than 200,000 to wind up the state total with a plurality of 130,000.

Approximately one-half of these counties were in the Upper Peninsula. The others were of two classifications: Industrial and tourist.

Industrial centers which went for Van Wagoner were Detroit, Saginaw, Pontiac, Muskegon, Monroe, Manistee, Flint, Battle Creek and Bay

ALL NURSERY STOCK INSPECTION COMPULSORY

Public Warned of Carrying Trees In Violation of State Law

Because of the large number of vehicles that have been apprehended by the Department of Agriculture inspectors for carrying trees in violation of the insect pest and plant disease low, Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer today cautioned motorists against this movement of nursery stock unless it has first been inspected on the premises where it is growing.

"Most of those individuals who have been stopped," Beamer said, "seem to be somewhat confused as to whnt constitutes nursery stock, and thought they were within the law on just getting a bill of sale from the property owners.

"The only native trees that can be transported with only a bill of sale ore Christmas trees with roots not attached."

Beamer pointed out that nursery stock includes all decidnous plunts, evergreens and perennials, which must be inspected before being transported.

Hereafter The American Boy will sell for 10c a single copy at newsstands or for $1.00 a year and $2.00 for three years on a subscription basis.

In announcing a change in editorial policy, publishers of Tho American Boy assure subscribers that tho established fiction heroes who have made the magazine so popular with young and old alike, will continue to tell of their adventures exclusively in The American Boy. Included in this group are Renfrew of the Canadian Mounted, Connie Morgan and Old Man Mattie, prospectors; Square Jaw Davis, railroad engineer; Johnny Caruthers, flyer; Jim Tierney, detective; Tod Moran, seaman; Alan Kane and Ted Dolliver, adventurers in science, and others identified exclusively with The American Boy.

TO PROMOTE PEACE AND GOOD WILL ON EARTH

From the Preamble to the Constitution of The American Legion

None desire peace more than those who have experienced War. World War veterans joined in The American Legion are committed definitely to the support of a course that will permit our Nation to dwell in an honorably peaceful state.

Certainly no one of our generation would ever want to see our Nation go to war again. We should individually and as a group encourage every honest effort to promote International good will. Unfairness, greed, hate, and envy are makers of armed strife, so part of our job is to combat those influences in national and international relations. One of the greatest forces for international peace is tolerant international understanding.

The Legion's peace efforts also call for a strong national defense program in all naval and military departments. We also sponsor laws empowering our national government to mobilize all necessary phases of industry in case of war. This will take the profit out of war and thereby promote peace.

Time and energy intelligently spent promoting peace and good will on earth will never be wasted.

FARM TOPICS

WARS SELDOM HELP FARMER

Expert Advises Adherence to Planned Crop Schedule.

By Dr. V. R. WERTZ

Regardless of whether or not the armies of the world decide on stepping up the pace of war, many American farmers are willing to try a gamble which appears to be a losing proposition unless economic laws are repealed by mass hysteria of the world's inhabitants. This would seem apparent from facts available to the rural economics department of Ohio State university.

It may be possible that mathematics are blown out the window when wars occur but it is a matter of historical record that numerals have their old values when wars end. The farmers who are betting their judgment against statistics are the farmers who are abandoning their planned crop schedules to plant an unusual amount of wheat this fall and coming spring.

These farmers give two reasons for believing that extra acres of wheat will be profitable; first, rapid increases in grain prices occurred immediately after this war began; and second, wheat prices started upward in 1916 and continued to rise until pegged at a bononza figure.

Such increases as may occur in grain prices are no more than the farmer deserves, but it is doubtful if the planting of a markedly increased acreage of wheat is the proper method to add dollars to the 1940 farm income. Several reasons present themselves for doubting that unusually large wheat harvest next year will be profitable for its producers.

The chief reason is that the granaries of the world already are bursting with the largest stocks of wheat that have been known since records were kept. The world price of wheat in Liverpool last July was the lowest on record since Queen Elizabeth ruled England.

A second reason for doubting the advisability of increasing wheat acreages in the United States is that consumption of wheat does not increase in time of war although prices may rise if supplies fall to normal or below. Any unwarranted rise in wheat and flour prices in the United States is certain to be met by resistance from consumers.

Local Seeds Best

Seeds from trees in the backyard or along a neighbor's fence are likely to produce better trees than those from distant places, says R. W. Graeber, forester of the North Carolina State college extension service.

The reason for this, Graeber explained, is that trees must be thoroughly adapted to the climate of the planting site. Seed of even the same species gathered at great distances from the planting location cannot compete with the home-grown product.

Sooner or later, the State college forester said, a variation occurs in the size of the seedling trees and in their survival, usually in favor of the home-area seedlings. Local seed are considered to be those obtained within a hundred miles of the planting site and with a difference in elevation of not more than 1,000 feet.

Deer Problem

In a number of eastern states, the excess high population of whitetail deer is proving to be a serious problem to the farmer. Pennsylvania has erected many miles of deer-proof fences. Michigan is now experimenting with electric fences to keep deer from damaging crops, the National Wildlife federation reports. One Michigan farmer, given permission to kill trespassing deer, shot 14 in one field, then quit in disgust with the deer still coming.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Health Preparedness

The following account illustrates the great importance of the health program as it is being carried on through the local District Health Unit. To overcome the various situations found by Captain Leone in his recent examinations of American youth, is a primary aim of the District Health Department.

The preliminary report of Dr. Geo. E. Leone, captain of the medical corps of the United States Army and medical inspector for the Second Corps Area, is a sad commentary on the attitude of the average person, including those with parental responsibilities, toward physical defects which are often remedial.

America, it is claimed, has the highest living standard of any nation in the world. New York City is supposedly the center of enlightenment. Those who volunteered for service from the Second Corps Area, which includes New York City, did so believing that they were physically fit to fight in defense of their country. And yet—approximately one-third of the applicants examined were rejected for physical reasons. Presumably, the percentage will be very much higher for the country as a whole and for all who register under draft.

Of 6,713 volunteers who were examined, 2,195 were rejected primarily for poor teeth, faulty eyesight, evidences of malnutrition as revealed by weight and height, deformities of the feet and deafness or ear trouble. Reasons for rejection fell in that order.

Capt. Leone points out that mastication of food requires a minimum of 12 teeth yet 516 applicants or 23 per cent did not have that number.

Virtually all of the applicants possessed licenses to operate motor vehicles yet 179 or 2% per cent were rejected because of visual defects. Capt. Leone states that if most of these had been equipped with the proper correctible lenses, they would have met the requirements.

Disproportion in the weight and height relation indicative of lack of resistance to the rigors of military service, was found in the case of 308 or 15 per cent. Many were so undernourished as to increase alarmingly their susceptibility to tuberculosis. Lack of a well-balanced diet from early childhood and the interuse of tobacco, particularly cigarettes, contribute to poor general health.

Many whose feet appear flat anatomically showed good function when subjected to strenuous tests but the same tests indicated that 2% or a little more than 10 per cent would be able to participate in the ordinary duties of the soldier.

There were 202 or 10 per cent who failed to meet the tests for hearing. Many were found to be suffering from inflamation of the middle ear in acute or chronic form in one or both ears, resulting in impaired hearing.

No venereal disease was found in the volunteers but Capt. Leone believes the draft will disclose a relatively high percentage of cases.

Result of the examination led Capt. Leone to express the hope that "some preventive and remediable measures may be instituted for the better preservation of the health of the youth of our nation.

It is a wish that will be fervently echoed by every medical man and public health office in the United States.

LOCAL BANKS JOIN "COMING GENERATIONS WEEK"

State-Wide Movement on to Acquaint High School Seniors With Banks

In order to better acquaint the seniors of Michigan high schools with the fundamentals of banking and the part which banking plays in our economic system, the 471 banks and Trust companies in Michigan are promoting "Coming Generations Week," November 25th to the 30th.

Elsewhere in this paper are invitations by local banks to members of the senior class of Charlevoix high school to visit either of the banks during "Coming Generations Week." The officers and employees of the banks will explain to these young people how banking promotes the welfare of our community.

The Michigan Bankers Association is inviting the high school seniors of Michigan to participate in an essay contest with substantial awards to the winning seniors. The two local banks are also providing awards for the Charlevoix seniors who produce the best essays.

It is hoped that every member of the senior class of Charlevoix will take this opportunity to visit the local banks and become more familinr with the banking system.

COMING GENERATIONS WEEK

A Greeting To All High School Seniors

THE BANKS and trust companies of Michigan, four hundred seventy-one of them, extend to you—the high school seniors—their compliments on the effort you have made to acquire an education.

The week of November 25 to 30 has been set aside as a time devoted to your interests. We would like to meet you and would feel it a great compliment to us if you would come down and pay us a visit.

Some day you will have to assume our responsibilities. You will have the vision, the imagination, the nerve and the judgment keyed to your time and your generation to carry on the best interests of good banking for your community.

We want to meet you, believing that you may find in our business an inspiration and opportunity for your life's work. Dollars make the wheels go around—they are the tools of business, of society, of the home. Banking is the management of these tools, and we realize that these elements form the very life of our community.

This is why we are proud of our business and a bit selfish about to whom we pass on this heritage. Come down and see us. We would like to know you, and we hope you will want to know us. Undoubtedly your father and mother are good friends of ours, and some day you yourself will find our service of value to your plan of life.

The door is open, the latchstring is out, and there's "WELCOME" on the mat for you and your friends.

We are looking forward to meeting you during COMING GENERATIONS WEEK

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

County Land Use Planning Project Nearing Completion

The Charlevoix County Land Use Planning Project which has been underway in the county since February 15th, is just about finished according to W. S. Harrison, U. S. Department of Agriculture employee, now here to conduct the work.

To date the work has consisted mainly in collecting statistics regarding agriculture in the county. This material covers government loans to farmers, assessed valuations, cropping practices, soil types, and so forth. A new soil map has been made by representatives from the soils department of the Michigan State college. All of the material collected has been presented to the grange groups in the county, to the board of supervisors at their last session, and to other groups as well, in the hope that everyone possible will be able to see for themselves what might be accomplished through co-operative planning work.

Starting Monday, November 11th, committees from every township will meet with County Agent Mellencamp and Mr. Harrison to prepare a map which will attempt to classify all lands in the county as to future use. Lands now used for successful farming will be designated by color. Lands where farming should not be attempted will be designated by some other color. Areas not now in farms that could well be used for farming will also be shown on the map. All together, five different classifications will be made. This map is expected to be of service to people coming into the county to purchase farm land, to people looking for recreational land, and it should also be of great service to every government agency now in the county attempting to aid farmers.

In addition, a request has been received from the lands division of the department of conservation asking each township committee to make recommendations as to what the state should do with the better than 10,000 acres of state owned land in the county. It is understood that if, in the opinion of local people, some of this land should remain in state ownership, no attempt will be made by the conservation department to sell it in future land sales. On the other hand, there is a lot of state owned land that can be farmed or used in other ways by private individuals and local groups are in a better position to decide the proper uses and make recommendations to the state. There should be no excuse for present state owned land finding its way back to the tax roll as farm land if, in the opinion of local people, it is not adapted for such use.

It is expected that many sound recommendations will come from these committees when they meet to discuss the material that has been assembled. Neighboring counties have carried on the same project and have profited by it. Charlevoix county can do the same.

EXPERTS ADVISE FEEDING SOFT CORN FIRST

Danger in Using Moldy Ears for Stock Cited in Bulletin

Freezing has cut the value of soft corn, therefore the high moisture feed should be used up as early in the season as possible, advises George A. Brown, head of the Michigan State College animal husbandry department.

More than a half Michigan harvest supplies the fall of this so-called soft corn, resulting from an unfavorable season and the planting of varieties requiring too long a time to mature in this state. A flow of inquiries already has arrived at the college.

Principal difference between soft corn and hard corn is the moisture content. A given amount of dry matter, it is explained, has the same feeding value in either mature or immature corn.

One suggestion offered by Professor Brown suggests confining the use of the high moisture corn to cattle and hogs. Molds easily develop in unripened ears and this can be dangerous when fed to horses and sheep. Another reason for feeding the soft corn to cattle is that cows and beef animals can handle more bulk in their rations than other classes of livestock.

Gains on soft corn will not be as rapid as with hard grain because the animal must handle the extra moisture. Normally mature corn such as No. 2 shelled yellow, has approximately 15 per cent moisture. This year some of the harvest runs as high as 40 per cent moisture. One hundred and forty-two pounds of this are needed to equal in feeding value 100 pounds of 15 per cent moisture corn.

The immature corn keeps best in the shock, according to Brown, and may be fed from the shock to cattle, sheep or swine.

STATE TRAPPERS TAKE BIG TOLL PREDATORS

Nine Wolves and 616 Coyotes Taken During First Quarter

Predatory animal control in the first quarter of the new fiscal year cost the conservation department $10,875, for the carcasses of nine wolves and 616 coyotes. All the wolves and all but 99 of the coyotes were taken in the upper peninsula.

September had the largest coyote catch—391 animals—while 156 coyotes were taken in August and 69 in July. The quarter's kill compares with 603 coyotes taken in the same period in 1937, 633 in 1938, and 526 in 1939. The wolf kill also varied little from the take in the same quarter of the preceding years.

Eighty-four new contracts to take predatory animals were issued during the quarter.

STATE TOURIST CAMPS ARE OPENED FOR DEER HUNTERS

Archers already in the woods and rifle deer hunters beginning their season November 15 can use convenient camping grounds in 12 state forests and a number of state parks kept open the year around. At park campgrounds, water and other services are suspended with the first frosts. At 34 state forest campgrounds in deer country, each of which accommodates 10 to 25 parties, portable camping equipment is not removed for winter storage until deer season ends.

COMING GENERATIONS WEEK

A Greeting To All High School Seniors

THE BANKS and trust companies of Michigan, four hundred seventy-one of them, extend to you—the high school seniors—their compliments on the effort you have made to acquire an education.

The week of November 25 to 30 has been set aside as a time devoted to your interests. We would like to meet you and would feel it a great compliment to us if you would come down and pay us a visit.

Some day you will have to assume our responsibilities. You will have the vision, the imagination, the nerve and the judgment keyed to your time and your generation to carry on the best interests of good banking for your community.

We want to meet you, believing that you may find in our business an inspiration and opportunity for your life's work. Dollars make the wheels go around—they are the tools of business, of society, of the home. Banking is the management of these tools, and we realize that these elements form the very life of our community.

This is why we are proud of our business and a bit selfish about to whom we pass on this heritage. Come down and see us. We would like to know you, and we hope you will want to know us. Undoubtedly your father and mother are good friends of ours, and some day you yourself will find our service of value to your plan of life.

The door is open, the latchstring is out, and there's "WELCOME" on the mat for you and your friends.

We are looking forward to meeting you during COMING GENERATIONS WEEK November 25th—30th

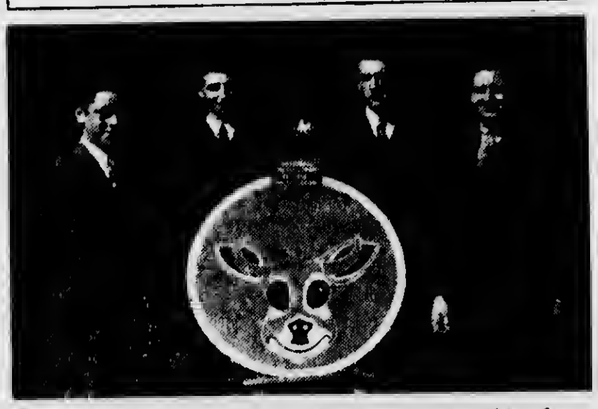
MICHIGAN 4-H BOYS WIN IN EAST



Best of 28 teams entered from as many states, these four youths comprised the Michigan 4-H dairy cattle judging team which scored highest in the recent National Dairy Show competition at Harrisburg, Penn. Left to right, Richard Story, Marne in Ottawa county; Wayne Seymour, McBrides in Montcalm county; Jason Shinn, Rapid City in Antrim county, and George Robb, Fowlerville in Livingston county. The youths won their places on the team during the State Fair competition in Detroit in September. Nevels Pearson, assistant state 4-H club leader on the Michigan State College staff, coached the youths to their victory.

The Saturday Evening Post points out that the productive power of the United States is equal to that of all Europe. "We have more than two-thirds of all the powerdriven, mineral, dynamic wealth of the world," says the Post. "We produce more than two-thirds of all the steel in a steel age. We have nearly 60 per cent of the world's oil. We have the two- or three most highly organized railroad systems. Our record for the [illegible] of our production is [illegible]. What does the saving of it require? Only that we shall find again the simple faith and whole will to exert the power we have been building since the beginning, in haste, heedless of waste and litter and ugliness, always as if we were in a fend with time, not knowing what the power was for. Now we know." -Wayne (Nebr.) Herald.

DO IT WHILE YOU ARE YOUNG

You've seen old folks sitting at the foot of mountains while the young people climb or cavorting on the slope watching the others swim, too old to go places and do things!

The young can in the play, "Hell-day," find the right idea. He wants to retire and play while he was young and work when he was old. This idea of saving, of our going and seeing until we're old and tired takes much of the joy out of life.

Start living now! Do the things you want to do while you are young enough to enjoy it. Ed Sutton of Grand Canyon, Ariz., Petrified Forest, the wonderful world we live in. Don't put off your hopes for old age, or any of it going places and doing things. Friendly Advertiser.

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

Industrial production is not the only kind of production that has been stepping up recently. It is said a fact at the outset of words from Washington.

The annual report of the government printing office discloses that it [illegible] more than 60,000 tons of printed matter and rolled off the presses under government imprint. As with other forms of mass production, the increased output brought with it a lower per unit cost, although the total bill of more than $18,000,000 will stagger taxpayers.

PARASITES

This life is full a matter of energy. Most of us would manage to get along somehow if we didn't do another bit of work the rest of our days. Parasites do this, you know. But parasites merely exist. Man was given a brain so that he could learn to live.

LANSING LETTER

city. Tourist counties on the Van Wagoner list include Crawford (Grayling), Cheboygan and Presque Isle. Upper peninsula counties went heavily for the Democratic ticket. (Nearly complete returns).

Bi-Partisan Control

Results of the November 5 vote indicate that while the governor and lieutenant governor will be democratic, the remainder of the state administration with the sole exception of state treasurer will continue under Republican control.

The legislature will be dominated by Republicans, enough so to give the party a two-thirds majority over possible vetoes.

Harry F. Kelly, secretary of State, and Vernon J. Brown, auditor general, were favorites in the voting. Herbert Rushton, Republican nominee for attorney general, slipped through for a photo-finish margin.

The state administrative power, the so-called "executive committee" for state business, will be divided 50-50 between Democrat and Republican office-holders. With an individual less popular and less persuasive than Mr. Van Wagoner, the split might prove very disastrous. It will be recalled, however, that the highway commissioner was remarkably successful in dealing with Republican legislators in past sessions.

Another result of the election is the turning of power from rural to urban forces. For a generation at least Luren D. Dickinson has been a symbol of rural Michigan. A co-incidence in this change was the sudden death of Dickinson's personal advisor, Grove Rouse, manager of the Michigan Motor Bus Association, just 48 hours after Dickinson's defeat at the polls.

Willkie Victory

The Gallup poll through the Institute of Public Opinion had forecast a 51-49 victory in Michigan for Wendell L. Willkie. And the final returns vindicated the prediction to a fraction of 1 per cent.

The Willkie plurality, small as it was, served only to emphasize the significance of the Van Wagoner victory which was a triumph of independent voting and not, by any stretch of the imagination, a Roosevelt "coat-tail" victory.

The democratic nominee for governor led the president by approximately 30,000 votes.

Here are some of the counties which gave a majority to Willkie and yet turned to the Van Wagoner column: Saginaw, Oakland, Monroe, Manistee, Crawford (Grayling), Calhoun (Battle Creek) and Cheboygan in the lower peninsula and Iron and Keweenaw in the upper peninsula.

Because of the Republicans' "anti-boss" fight at the Grand Rapids convention in September, observers have scanned the returns carefully to detect any sign of a bolt in Wayne or Kent counties, or even in Genesee county. The Roosevelt-Van Wagoner and Willkie-Dickinson votes were nearly identical in each case. There had been some rumors, prior to the election, that a "trade" was under way to sell out Dickinson for Van Wagoner in favor of Willkie. Yet the actual returns seem barren of such substantiation.

A Possible Clue

Now that the fighting is over, amateurs and professionals alike are chipping in their "30 cents' worth" of analysis as to why the voters did as they did.

Here is ours.

Plausible, at least, is the following theory which seems to fit logically the situation at hand:

The Michigan outcome, like the national outcome, is a result indirectly of the record-smashing, history-making activity of one man—Herr Hitler!

Last spring the domestic failures of the Roosevelt administration—deficits, unemployment, labor disatisfaction—pointed to a popular reaction in November. Even immediately after the June conventions the Gallup polls showed Willkie leading by a majority of electoral votes over Roosevelt.

Something happened to turn public opinion.

And that occurrence was not political propaganda—persuasion by words—it was historic events.

"Overwhelming"

The unexpected fall of Holland, Belgium and France to the Nazi military juggernaut shocked American opinion out of its isolationist complacency.

Threatened with a possible loss of the British fleet, our only safeguard in the Atlantic ocean, Congress appropriated billions in a frantic rush to re-arm and adopted military conscription to provide man-power for the arms.

The Republican convention turned from Tom Dewey to Wendell Willkie under the belief that the needs were paramount for a "strong man." Democrats re-nominated President Roosevelt who immediately emphasized the foreign situation and our need for national defense, and thereupon declined to leave the capital for more than 12 hours' traveling distance.

Graphically the fall of France, an event over which we had little control, if any, changed the destiny of the United States.

Just as the destruction of the Maine and the sinking of the Lusitania proved to be turning points in the state of public opinion in two previous wars, the accumulation significance of the destruction of Czechoslavakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium and France set into motion an almost irresistible trend in American public opinion.

On Sept. 1, the Institute of Propaganda Analysis, discussing America's attitude on the war, observed: "In discussions of propaganda the fact is frequently overlooked that events shape public opinion no less than words. Not only do the events serve to dramatize what the progagandist is saying, even more important their impact upon our ideals, our prejudices, our fears and our desires is sometimes overwhelming."

Strong Men

Faced with a pending crisis in the trial of Mr. Hitler, the voters turned to President Roosevelt because he was strong in years of experience in handling national affairs.

Michigan's part in national defense is perhaps greater than any other state other than New York; defense contracts have exceeded the half billion mark and are still mounting.

The same trend favored Van Wagoner, a man in his early forties, against Governor Dickinson, 81 years old. It was the vigorous Churchill as against the older Chamberlin despite the latter's experience.

If this diagnosis be true—and we offer it humbly with no insistence that it actually is—then nine man, some 4,000 miles away, months ago set into motion events which resulted finally in our choice of President Roosevelt for a third term and Murray D. Van Wagoner for governor of Michigan.

Perhaps the president was right when he commented that this was a "funny campaign."

KNOW YOUR BANK

What is Done With the Money You Deposit?

In addition to providing a safe place for you to keep your money, a bank performs one of its important functions by putting these funds into constructive use.

Here is what happens to a deposit:

First, a sufficient amount of cash is kept in the bank's vaults to meet all reasonable withdrawal requirements.

Second, the bank is required by law to maintain legal reserves with the Federal Reserve bank or with other approved depository banks.

Finally, the amount of the deposit remaining is then available to borrowers and is converted into constructive use through loans for proper purposes and through sound investments.

This Bank will be closed Thursday, November 21, in observance of Thanksgiving Day

HERE'S WHEN WINDSTORM INSURANCE Counts!

THE house pictured above was worth $4,000.00 before a Michigan windstorm wrecked it completely. It wasn't protected by windstorm insurance.

The economy of windstorm insurance goes without saying when it is pointed out that a $4,000,00 policy with the State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Company, costing $6.00 a year, would have afforded 100% protection.

Your house (or house and barn) may be wrecked by a Michigan windstorm this year. You have no assurance to the contrary! But you can protect yourself by insuring, now, with the reliable State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Company. $1,000.00 worth of windstorm insurance costs only $1.50 a year. See your local agent today.

Windstorm losses in Michigan amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Learn the facts about Michigan windstorms. Write today for your free copy of "GAMBLERS BEWARE!" Address me personally, Home Office, Lapeer, Michigan.

ought to. He couldn't figure why, but I can. Went out east of Maple Grove grange hall one afternoon last week to look for deer sign. I saw three hunters in the woods with rifles and that fact, no doubt, explains why deer are not increasing in that district. Maybe those fellows weren't hunting for deer, but the weapons they carried were pretty high-powered for rabbits! As long as poaching is prevalent in territories where deer are just commencing to become numerous, there will be no appreciable increase in the size of herds.

It's not a bit too early to remind everyone there are only 31 more shopping days before Christmas, nor to urge one and all to spend their money in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix county, as far as I've been able to learn, hasn't any draft-dodgers. And it would be well for any individual who may have failed to register to know what they do to such fellows. Down at Traverse City a draft-evader by the name of Tryggve Berg Johnson was sentenced in United States court to serve three years in a federal penitentiary.

Whew! What a blizzard of a storm we had Monday night and Tuesday. It was one of those kind the old-timers tell about and we moderns first experienced. Fact of the matter is, heard one fellow say it was the worst storm we ever had—November or any other month. The sun shown for a minute or two Monday afternoon for the first time in a week, and how it did rain before and after! Turned to snow in the evening, and if resulting in no other satisfaction, it made the deer hunters happy with the thought of track-

STATE SAVINGS BANK TO ADOPT INSURED CHECKS

New Service to Patrons Announced By Local Institution

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank announces the adoption of insured "Super-Safety" checks and drafts for distribution to its depositors, to provide the maximum of protection against check alteration or forgery. These checks carry insurance against loss by alteration both for the bank and its depositors, it is stated.

"It is perhaps not commonly known that the total loss from forgeries and alterations of checks and drafts in this country is estimated at over $300,000,000 annually, or more than the total fire loss of the country each year," said A. L. Livingston, cashier. "We believe that it is part of our function to provide depositors with every possible safeguard against such losses and 'Super-Safety' checks represent the greatest protection yet developed in this field."

The insurance protection accorded the checks is made possible as a result, first of the rigid control exercised over the paper stock, and second by the protective processes of manufacture. Super-Safety checks and drafts are lithographed on true safety paper which cannot be purchased in the open market and consequently is not available to check counterfeiters. Imprinted into that paper is a protective ink covered by the sensitive surface design. Any attempts to use ordinary ink eradicator in changing the date, the payee's name or the amount automatically brings to the surface of the check the hidden words "Void." These features virtually stop the counterfeiter or forger from check manipulation where these new checks are used and the insurance feature provides the final protection.

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank's new checks are of a most attractive design, the lithograph featuring the bank's building.

MRS. R. S. SHAPTON IS VICTIM HEART ATTACK

Succumbed Monday Morning Following a Brief Illness

Mrs. R. S. Shapton died Monday morning at her home on Antrim street, following a short illness. She had suffered a heart attack Saturday evening.

Harriett Bowles was born at Birmingham, England, December 3, 1860. Her marriage to George Taylor took place in England, and the couple came to Canada in 1882. Their first home was in Kingston, Ontario. They lived in Manistee, Empire, and Boyne City before coming to Charlevoix in 1911. Mr. Taylor died in 1912.

In 1917 she married Richard Shapton, who died in 1937.

Mrs. Shapton was a member of the Methodist church, and of the O. E. S., and had belonged to the Maccabee lodge.

Surviving are three sons, Frank Taylor of Iron Mountain, Walter and Albert Taylor, of Charlevoix; nine grandchildren, and nephews and nieces living in England.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the See funeral home, with Rev. John W. Alexander officiating. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

LAKE TROUT SPAWN FISHING BRINGS HEAVY LIFTS

Serious Damage to Nets Anticipated from Tuesday's Hard Blow

The lake trout spawn fishing season opened Sunday with lifting of the closed season ban on Lake Michigan.

Catches running from 500 pounds up to 4,000 pounds were brought in late Monday on first lifts. The average is considerably lower than last year when catches running over three tons were made. The amount of spawn collected was about half that brought in the first day a year ago.

Fishermen expressed varied opinions regarding the outlook this season. Some expressed the belief that had spawned and a short season with light catches would result. Others reported green spawn, secured in abundance of male fish, indicating spawning had just started.

Monday night's and Tuesday's blow is expected to cause heavy damage to nets set on head for the spawning run. Damage may run into thousands of dollars, but the exact will not be known until weather conditions sufficiently to allow fishermen to reach their nets.

COUNTY QUOTA IN DRAFT IS ONE MAN

ONE OF THREE VOLUNTEERS WILL BE SELECTED

Man Chosen Must Report at Cadillac Saturday; 104 Men To Be Taken From County by June 30th

Charlevoix county's first quota under the selective service act for a year's military training will be one man, chosen from the three volunteers for service.

Undergoing examination and classification as this edition of The Courier goes to press are Leonard Thompson, of Ironton; Bertrand Poirey, of Boyne City, and Thaddeus Sidorowicz of Marion township. One of these three men will be selected and must report at the Cadillac induction station before 7:30 p. m. Saturday, November 23, as this county's first quota.

While the first quota from Charlevoix county is one man, 104 will be drawn up to June 30, 1941, according to Harold F. Lamb, secretary of the Charlevoix county draft board. The original call from this county was 148, but after credit was given for those from the county already in military service, the number to be drawn up to June 30 next, was cut to 104. Those who already have, or in the future volunteer for service, will be the first drawn. The above quota is tentative, however, and is subject to future corrections and adjustments, it was stated.

The county's gross quota was tentatively established on the basis of the proportion that the total number of registrants in the county bears to the number of registrants in Michigan. Credit for men in the armed forces has been similarly allocated.

Regulations provided for the first selectee to be determined by taking the first volunteer with lowest number who passed the physical examination. Saturday afternoon has been set as the deadline for volunteers to sign up at the draft board's office in the city hall.

The draft board is now sending out questionnaires to registrants in the county. These questionnaires must be filled out in ink, signed by the registrant and notarized before being returned. Those sent back without signature and notarization will be returned to the registrant for completion.

WATCH FOR POACHERS ON CHRISTMAS TREES

Illegal to Take Without Permission from Land Owner

Superintendents of Michigan's 13 state forests will be watching for evidences of Christmas tree poaching on state lands during their routine patrols in coming weeks.

Conservation officers also protect Michigan's more than one million acres of state forests and the considerably greater acreage which is privately owned.

The legislature, in 1933, approved an act prohibiting the cutting, removal or transportation within the state for decorative purposes or for sale of Christmas trees, evergreen boughs, or other wild trees, shrubs, or vines, without the written consent of the owner of the land on which the same are grown. Violations of the act by principals or abettors constitute misdemeanors, punishable upon conviction by fines of not less than $25 nor more than $500 for each and every offense.

Successful Hunters

Glenn See returned Monday from a successful hunting trip to Beaver Island. Louis O'Neill and Ray Ashdon, who made the trip to the island with him last Friday, have not as yet got their deer.

FIREARM CARELESSNESS MEANS LOSS OF LICENSE

Heavy Penalties Inflicted Also for Violation of Deer Laws

A blacklist of 631 names, posted at conservation headquarters throughout the state, insures that no hunter who has recently been careless with firearms in the field or broken the laws protecting big game, will be among the 170,000 deer hunters expected in the woods in the next two weeks.

The hunter who shoots and wounds or kills another while hunting is barred from the sport for five years. Licenses to hunt deer are denied for three years to persons convicted of violating the laws protecting deer, elk and moose.

Specific offenses that result in license revocation are buying or selling a deer, possessing venison taken illegally, killing a deer illegally (as from a platform, on a car, or with a light), killing a moose, an elk, a doe, or a buck with antlers less than three inches long.

Forty-nine of the names on the 1940 blacklist are there because of accidents, 18 of which were fatal. In the 1939 deer season, 10 died of gunshot wounds and 25 others were injured.

REO CROSS FORMS CITY COMMITTEES

SEEK TO BOLSTER MEMBERSHIP IN COUNTY

Higher Standing Than In Previous Years is Goal Sought by Chairman and Committees

Mrs. C. A. Leslie, of Boyne City, chairman of the Charlevoix County Red Cross, opened the annual Roll Call drive in Charlevoix county last week with a plea for co-operation from the people of the county.

"Red Cross volunteer roll call workers are calling at the door of every resident of Charlevoix county in the annual drive for memberships," stated Mrs. Leslie. "You are giving one of three answers to the volunteer workers. You are taking a membership, you are telling them to call again, or you are telling them you cannot afford a membership.

"If you have given the first answer, you have done your part in answering the call to help those less fortunate than yourself. If you have given the second answer and asked a worker to return, remember that the worker is giving her time and have a membership ready for her when she returns.

"If you have said you cannot afford a membership, have you seriously considered that our government is asking us to make this a special Roll Call, that we may do our part at home in various programs to aid the defense of our country?"

Mrs. Leslie pointed out that Charlevoix county stood 73rd in the state in the last Roll Call, and that less than four of every 100 persons in the county belong to the Red Cross. "After this Roll Call," she said, "I hope we can be very proud of our standing in the state."

Volunteer workers in the city of Charlevoix include Mrs. Harold Bedford, Mrs. Charles Bellinger, Mrs. C. M. Bice, Mrs. Harry E. Bingham, Mrs. Harry Ladd, Mrs. Frank Partridge, Mrs. Arthur Ranger, Mrs. Mollie Smith, Mrs. Fred Tyler.

Much To Be Thankful For

MICHIGAN CROPS ARE OVER NORMAL AVERAGE

All Staples Make Good Showing for Year Except Potatoes

The Michigan cooperative crop reporting service announces an above average yield for grain and hay crops, average yield for beans and corn with quality below standard, and a poor potato yield for the 1940 season.

Verne H. Church, senior agricultural statistician, said that all 1940 crops matured later than usual, resulting in some damage from frost. Heavy rainfall in the south central and southeastern districts kept the ground soaked, delayed drying of crops on the ground and hampered harvesting and threshing operations.

Total corn production was 52,470,000 bushels, averaging 33 bushels per acre, compared with the ten-year average of 29.2 bushels per acre, Church said.

Bean output was estimated at 3,952,000 bags, compared with 4,520,000 bags in 1939, while the potato crop was estimated at 20,000,000 bushels compared with 24,250,000 last year.

Sugar beet production was expected to total 1,062,000 tons; apples, 5,967,000 bushels; pears, 1,398,000 bushels; grapes, 56,900 tons, the crop reporting service said.

ROOF DAMAGE FROM RECENT STORM WAS HEAVY

City Employed Crews Still at Work Clearing Fallen Trees

A decided boom in roof repairing in Charlevoix and vicinity was one of the direct results of last Monday night's heavy wind.

Damage throughout the city was widespread as indicated by the great amount of work necessary to replace and repair roofs blown off. Cedar and composition shingles, as well as roll roofing, were scattered everywhere.

Extra crews of men employed by the city council are still at work clearing up fallen trees. Large hardwood and pine trees felled in the residential district were small in number compared to those blown down in the woods and rural sections.

ROBERT BERGMANN, DALE BRADLEY GIVEN MEDALS

Recognized for Saving Deer Stranded on Ice Last Spring

Medals were awarded this week by the Michigan Federation Humane Society to Dale Bradley and Robert Bergmann for bravery in saving a deer from an ice floe on Lake Michigan off Charlevoix last spring.

Bradley's award was made to him personally at a meeting of the Petoskey Federation of Woman's Clubs, Tuesday evening, while Bergmann received his award in Grand Rapids, where he is attending college.

The rescue was made Easter Sunday last, under precarious conditions.

STR. PETERSON IS STILL AGROUND AT HOG ISLAND

Radio Report Indicated Efforts Two Tugs So Far Unsuccessful

Efforts to release the Str. Frank J. Peterson, grounded November 11 on Hog Island Reef, have so far been unsuccessful.

This fact was revealed Wednesday morning when a radio message between the boat's commander and its owners was intercepted by John Nordrum, who reported the message stated efforts of the tugs Favorite and Roen to tow the boat free had so far failed.

PREPARE YOUR AUTO FOR WINTER DRIVING

Winter Driving Tests at Cadillac Reveal Precautions Necessary

Cadillac — Prepare your car for winter driving in order to protect yourself and other motorists from serious or perhaps fatal accidents, is the first admonition to be given as a result of a series of winter driving tests conducted here last February, the summary of which has just been released as winter approaches again.

These tests, numbering 3,000 controlled and measured experiments, were conducted by the National Safety Council research committee, assisted by 32 engineers and traffic safety experts over a period of several weeks, night and day and in all manner of weather and surface combinations.

New tires give but little more traction on ice than worn ones, it was found, and partial deflation is another misconception that was exploded by the tests. The best method of control, it was found, was to have all-around chains on all four wheels, but even these are not wholly dependable if they are worn smooth from driving on pavement.

Brakes should be equalized, the windshield wiper and lights effective and the car placed in as good a mechanical condition as possible before winter comes, the committee advises.

Excessive speeds should be avoided and the car should be allowed to slow down before approaching corners, other cars or places where braking might be necessary in a hurry, which causes skids, it was emphasized.

WESLEYAN SERVICE GUILD IS ORGANIZED

Officers and Committees to Be Named in Near Future

The Wesleyan Service Guild, an organization for businesswomen and young mothers, was formed Thursday evening under the leadership of Mrs. John W. Alexander, at the home of Miss Susannah Metcalf.

Announcement will be made at a later date of officers who were elected, and committees which have been appointed. Executive and program committee members met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Lester Hall, to make plans for the year.

The next regular meeting will be at the home of Miss Dorothea Taylor, Thursday, November 28.

RELEASE TB CHRISTMAS SEALS ON NOVEMBER 22

Campaign Against Tuberculosis Financed Yearly by Seal Sale

"On November 22, tuberculosis Christmas seals will again be sent out to the people of Michigan," states Luren D. Dickinson, governor of Michigan, in a proclamation, made this week.

For over 30 years, the citizens of this state have responded to the call by giving voluntarily of their incomes so that the work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, an organization engaged wholly in the struggle against the ravages of tuberculosis, may continue.

Gordon's promotion comes after four years with the organization, during which time he has been in training for the position of store manager. While he served some time in Big Rapids, the greater part of his training has been in Charlevoix.

During his stay in Charlevoix, Mr. Dennis has gained a large following of friends who will wish him success in his new position.

PLAN LEAGUE FOR INOOOR ATHLETICS

ORGANIZATION TEAMS BUSINESS MEN PROPOSED

Competition in Indoor Baseball, Volleyball or Basketball Would Begin December 10th

Organization for the winter season of a recreational league to provide indoor athletics for business men of Charlevoix will be undertaken this week.

"Bill" Supernaw and Ray Kipke are sponsoring the plan, which, if carried to successful conclusion, will result in the organization of teams among business men for indoor baseball, volleyball, basketball or a similar sport having the greatest appeal. It is planned to divide the business district in blocks, also to have teams representing the north and south sides. This plan, it is believed, will result in quite an even distribution of ability among the several teams, thus providing more even competition.

Team captains, to be chosen during the present week, will undertake organization of the various groups. The school gymnasium will be available Tuesday and Thursday evenings of each week and it is planned to have the league go into action the second Tuesday evening in December, falling on the 10th.

It is obvious that the plan depends entirely upon the cooperation of business men, thus those favoring formation of the league will be requested to so express their desire and then be prepared for participation regularly after the schedule of games is arranged.

The names of team captains and further details regarding the plan will be announced next week.

FISHERMEN HEAVY LOSERS IN STORM

PLACE LOSS BY LOCAL OPERATORS ABOVE $40,000

Seek RFC Loan to Finance Purchase of Nets—Many Face Ruin Unless Assistance Is Provided

Commercial fishermen of Charlevoix, Beaver Island and northern Lake Michigan ports are counting their losses high in the thousands of dollars following last week's severe storm.

A conservative estimate placed the loss by Charlevoix fishermen in nets and fish at $40,000, and to the amount may be added the value of fish which would have been taken since the storm had not nets been ruined. Practically without exception, Charlevoix operators were "wiped out" of nets. One loss of 50 boxes, valued at $100 each, was a typical example. Fishermen in most instances recovered only the corks and leads from nets out in the storm.

The disaster assumed greater proportions in view of the fact the lake trout spawn fishing season had just got under way. With one of the best seasons in years in prospect, fishermen lost practically all nets and thus are without equipment now at the height of the season. The loss of fish which would have been taken is inestimable. Catches since the storm, in view of limited and damaged equipment, have been good.

A ray of hope for a remedy was contained Monday in the announcement by Walter F. Conklin, former local resident now general manager of the R. J. Elsner Co., of Chicago, manufacturers of fish nets, that initial steps to obtain Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans for fishermen to replace net losses were under way. Mr. Conklin stated that such loans were obtained for commercial fishermen at St. Ignace and Fairport who suffered similar losses from the storm. City Attorney Rollie L. Lewis has taken steps to obtain loans from the RFC, it is understood.

Unless some assistance is obtained, it is freely predicted many local and other upper Lake Michigan commercial fishermen, face financial ruin and will be compelled to quit operating.

FALL TREE PLANTING PROGRAM IS COMPLETE

Eight Thousand Acres Planted by CCC Camp Enrollees

Fall planting operations on state forests, ended with the opening of deer season last Friday, have added nearly 8,000 acres and some six and a half million trees to Michigan's forest plantations.

CCC enrollees of nine camps — more than 500 men — have been engaged in the fall planting program. Enrollees of Camps Houghton Lake, Lake Superior and Kalkaska marked up camp planting totals exceeding one million trees each. As of November 9, with all but two camps reporting, 5,813,600 pines of all varieties had been planted on 7,301 acres, and 462,622 hardwoods on 459½ acres.

CCC camps participating in the planting program include Mackinac, Wolverine, Black Lake, Houghton Lake, Au Sable, Lake Superior, Kalkaska, Paradise and Higgins Lake.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

One of the better things in a person's life is one's friendships.

Yes, I haven't got a buck yet, Milt Block and Alfred "Cap" Brow, my hunting partners, filled their licenses. Milt picked his off the first day and "Cap" sneaked up on one in the swamp at the south end of Hardwood lake Sunday afternoon. I expect (or hope) to get mine before the week is over.

Up to the present time, reports of successful hunters have been quite slow. I understand one of the Richardson boys bagged his buck Saturday near Norwood, that another was taken south of the Old Spayd farm and three between Eastport and Lake Michigan. Enos Willis killed one just west of Burgess and some of the boys, myself included, have been trying to land one or all of the three bucks seen frequently in the Folander orchard near Burgess. "Fritz" Webster has taken two shots at the biggest one so far. Reports have it

Michigan celebrated Thanksgiving this week with more than customary gratitude for its blessings.

Business is ahead of last year. The Business Week index stands at 138.6, a new high point for the year which dipped to 103 last April. Department store sales are 6 per cent higher; rural sales are up 5 per cent.

Because of heavy arms contracts, Michigan industrial plants have a total of future orders well past the half-billion mark, and this amount is being swelled each week by new authorizations at Washington. Small plants are getting a fair share of the volume, too.

Employment for the nation has already exceeded our 1929 peak, being 48,104,000 persons in 1940 as compared with 47,925,000 for the final boom year. Michigan automobile plants are operating at full speed in order that dealers' field stocks may be built up in anticipation of the

TO SAFEGUARD AND TRANSMIT TO POSTERITY THE PRINCIPLES OF JUSTICE, FREEDOM, AND DEMOCRACY

Preamble to the Constitution of The American Legion

The American Legion youth program is a bulwark of strength to those who would have posterity share in the blessings of the free America that we inherited from the founding fathers.

We are living at a very significant time in America's history. It is a period of transition, a period of consolidation, a period of clarification concerning national and international problems.

We have received these blessings of liberty from the previous generations that have made our Nation what it is. It is now our opportunity and responsibility to so impress the meaning and value of these American principles upon the minds of our people that they will be not only safeguarded but transmitted to posterity clearer and stronger and more meaningful than we received them.

This is the heritage of our generation. The youth of today and the unborn millions of Americans of the future depend upon us.

AT THE MOVIES

Acclaim Tyrone Power's Triumph in Famous "Mark of Zorro" Role

Through the night rides a masked adventurer . . . the jagged mark of his sword striking terror to every heart but one!

In the most famous and colorful of all screen roles Tyrone Power brings to thrilling life the exploits of the celebrated bandit in his latest starring picture for 20th Century-Fox, "The Mark of Zorro," which opens November 23 at the Palace Theatre.

Boasting the most spectacular action and sword play the screen has seen in many a moon, Power's role is crammed with hard-riding, furious fighting, ardent romance and highlighted by an unforgettably realistic duel with Basil Rathbone. And according to all reports Power scores the greatest triumph of his career.

Featured with Rathbone at the head of the brilliant supporting cast is lovely Linda Darnell as the fairest senorita in Old California, who gives her love to Zorro. Spectacularly filmed "The Mark of Zorro" also features Gale Sondergaard, Eugene Pallette, J. Edward Bromberg, Robert Lowery and Chris-Pin Martin.

"Down Argentine Way" Great Musical

The biggest musical extravaganza since "Alexander's Ragtime Band" opens November 27 at the Palace Theatre, and in every respect this latest hit from 20th Century-Fox is even better. For "Down Argentine Way" has everything a musical should have—and more, for good measure. Songs—there are eight of them, all with a South American flavor that is definitely appealing. Stars — who could ask—for more than a roster headed by Don Ameche, in a new and lively role; Betty Grable, fresh from her triumphant Broadway appearance and the sensational Brazilian star, Carmen Miranda, in her first appearance on the American screen. Produced in Technicolor with actual background shots from that South American dreamland, Buenos Aires, the picture blends Rhumbas, Congas, romance, glamour and laughter into a grand entertainment.

The public is invited to this service and the cooks need not be concerned because we plan only a short service, perhaps three-quarters of an hour. We will do our best to make this service a real service of Thanksgiving.

Looking forward into the future, especially the month of December, plans are well laid. Again December will be called in our church "Joy Month" and the messages for the month will lead up to the Christmas time with the climax in the midnight service on Christmas Eve. Plan to attend each service from now on until the Christmas season is over.

EDITORIAL

ELECTION HOCUS-POCUS

A newspaper writer who has been looking into the curious institutions known as the "Electoral College," by which our presidents are chosen, gives these interesting facts.

Not in 100 years has the exact sentiment of the voters been reflected in the vote of this curious "college."

Three times it has put into the White House presidents that a majority of the voters didn't want, keeping out candidates who had a majority of the popular votes.

A slight redistribution of the votes among the various states could thwart the popular will in almost any presidential election. The electoral vote—that is, the vote actually cast in the electoral college — has seldom come even close to the vote of the people.

Mr. Roosevelt in 1936, with 62.2 per cent of the popular vote, had 98.4 per cent of the electoral vote. In 1860 Abraham Lincoln, with only 15.4 per cent of the votes cast in election booths, had 58 per cent of the electoral vote. A notorious example of injustice was the election of 1876, in which Tilden, with 51.6 per cent of the voters for him, lost to Hayes, who had 50.013 per cent of the electoral votes. Grover Cleveland in 1888 had 51 per cent of the popular votes, but Harrison was elected with 58 per cent of the electoral votes.

The perfunctoriness of the present system is shown in the hocus-pocus by which, in recent elections, the official choice of a president is accomplished through electors whose names are often not even printed on the ballots.

Fortunately a strong movement is now under way to abolish the hocus-pocus and choose presidents in the same straightforward way by which minor officials are elected.

HARMLESS STUFFING

The U. S. Public Health Service has never had a real cold before about the bad effects of overeating at the Thanksgiving Feast. It points out that the record of that day hasn't been so great as many have thought. Its aftermath does not call for statistics like those following the Fourth of July or Labor Day. Firecrackers and crowded highways are more deadly than turkey with the trimmings.

This is reassuring to all who look forward with anticipation to the good feast. There are two reasons for it. For one thing the feast's the thing—the merriment in the atmosphere of good nature and cheer. These aid digestion. So does the period of quiet that follows, with its topic of somnolent conversation.

I may be wrong, but the Pilgrim Fathers suffered more indigestion than we do. They had to worry about the Indians. Their feast, too, came to have been even bigger than ours, including ducks and other wildfowl along with the turkey, and pudding, clams and oysters and roasts and venison. Perhaps everybody did eat everything, but the opportunity was there.

PLAYING

Something dreadful seems to be happening to our sports, John R. Tunis, an American sport authority, writes about it in his latest book, "Sport for the Fun of It." The title itself suggests, contrariwise, what the trouble is.

In so far as there is still fun in American sport, we seem to let the professionals have most of it. People who might be playing themselves, with much benefit to their bodies and souls, are content to sit in a stadium and yelling, "Kill the big bum!"

Sport should be play and fun. Grown-ups should play less for the sake of winning than for the sake of the play itself. Children know that, but tend to lose it as they grow up. First they get the curious idea that they have to win in order to get anything out of the game; and then they pass to the sedentary stage in which they let other people do their playing for them.

It is surprising how many interesting and whole-some games there are which almost any grown-up can play anywhere.

NEW SEED ACT AIDS GROWERS

Latest Federal Law Requires Additional Labeling.

BY MISS JESSIE FISKE

The passage of the new Federal [illegible] early last fall brings to [illegible] on a piece of agricultural [illegible] which is of great [illegible] to all the farming sections of the country. This became apparent [illegible] a study made of the [illegible] Rutgers university.

From the product of two years of [illegible] and preparation by the U. S. [illegible] department of agriculture, [illegible] organizations, seed [illegible] and the seed dealers of the United [illegible].

Regulations are now in the hands of the U. S. secretary of agriculture and the law is expected to be put into effect in the near future. The most outstanding change from previous legislation seems to be that a larger percentage of seed samples will be subjected to the regulations of seed control than has been the case in the past.

The provision of the new act requires that all interstate shipments of seeds be labeled if transported for breeding purposes, or properly labeled if transported for seeding purposes, or purveyor will be required to make representations concerning every interstate shipment of seed. This regulation overcomes one of the glaring weaknesses of the old law, which provided that penalties for misrepresentation should be made, but failed to require that a representation be made.

There has been introduced also, the new legislation another departure in the seed control program as it has developed in the past 20 years. All persons transporting seed in interstate commerce will be required to maintain a system of records which will carry through all the steps from production to consumption.

Another feature of the law which offers added protection deals specifically with the noxious weed seeds. Henceforth all interstate shipments of seeds must meet the noxious weed seed requirements of the seed law of the state into which the shipment is destined.

Busses carry 3,712,000 school children daily.

Who Says That Yanks Can't Shoot?

Ten million amateur marksmen—men, women, boys and girls are today giving the answer—with guns! In the field, the marshes, woods, and target ranges the country over they are fast recapturing our heritage as a nation of sharp shooters!

Paul W. Kearney, ace Kenyon writer, tells all about the great impetus given shooting by the present war and the uses of some of the recent records accomplished with modern firearms.

ROLL CALL TIME

The Red Cross roll call now under way presents an appeal to citizens which few can resist. The place of this organization in a world as torn and bleeding as that of today is hardly to be questioned. It behooves the people of America to give full support to this bulwark of humanitarian endeavor.

In critical times like this no one can say when the American Red Cross will be called upon to shoulder tasks far greater than those it carries even now. This means that the organization should be strengthened locally, nationally and throughout the world. Since local chapters form the foundation of the greater Red Cross it is essential that the enlistment of members in every community be pushed to the utmost.

It may be assumed that the maintenance of a strong Red Cross is one of the steps toward adequate national defense and preparedness which this nation is making every effort to achieve. To build up the forces of mercy is as essential as the construction of drfensive weapons for safety's sake.

What the Red Cross will be called upon to do in the months and years ahead cannot now be foretold. It seems certain, however, that a major share of the reconstruction which eventually will face the world will be in the hands of this group. There are tasks ahead that will demand the aid and sympathy of every man and woman and child, especially those of the great nations which succeed in keeping the peace.

Now of all times citizens must not let the Red Cross down. The roll call should be answered by thousands of volunteers, here and elsewhere. The Red Cross belongs to all the people and it should be supported by all.

RESTRICT CHRISTMAS STREET DECORATIONS

Highway Department Requests Cooperation of Cities

Acting in an effor tto reduce holiday traffic accidents, State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy this week urged Michigan municipalities to hold Christmas decorations on state trunkline highways to a minimum.

Kennedy explained the highway department did not wish to dampen the Christmas spirit, but was desirous to see that the season was not marred by needless accidents.

Said he:

"From requests pouring into the offices of the state highway department for information on regulations covering the installation of Christmas decorations, it would appear that cities and towns throughout the state are apparently preparing to deck their streets in holiday attire.

"Among the features most commonly mentioned and about which the department is most concerned are trees placed in the middle of streets and colored light decorations."

The commissioner pointed out that placing of trees in streets created an unnecessary hazard, especially during the Christmas season when streets are crowded with holiday shoppers, and that they would definitely not be permitted in the traffic lanes of streets marked as state trunkline highways.

Kennedy added that colored lights were not ruled out by the department, but that they must be used so as not to obscure traffic signs and signals and so that they will not confuse motorists looking for the regular traffic lights at intersections.

"Municipalities planning to decorate streets," Kennedy said, "which are state trunkline highways, should first obtain permission from the state highway department."

NEW IRON MINE SUNK IN MARQUETTE COUNTY

New Development Indicates Expansion of State's Mining

A third major upper peninsula iron mining development — the project sinking of a 2,900-foot shaft at Ishpeming by the Negaunee Mining Company—is cited by the geology section of the conservation department as further indication that the peninsula's major industry may be entering a new period of expansion.

Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company and the Bethlehem Steel corporation are associated in the new development. Four years will be required for the sinking of the shaft before production of iron ore in commercial quantities.

The Inland Steel Company in recent months has opened up the Ravenna open pit mine at Crystal Falls and is sinking the shaft of the Sherwood mine at Iron River.

DEPARTMENT EMPLOYES IN DRAFT GIVEN PROTECTION

State conservation department employes are now protected against any loss of rights or privileges while taking a year's leave of absence or more, without pay, for military service, through a recent change by the conservation commission in its rules for personnel administration.

The change protects the jobs of both permanent and probationary employes not serving in a temporary capacity and safeguards also the eligibility of persons on the eligible register.

Low Advertising Costs

Of all commodities retailed in the United States, agricultural equipment bears the lowest advertising expense. In other words, when a farmer buys farm machinery less of his money goes to defray the cost of advertising that commodity than it does in the purchase of many other advertised products. This is the finding of the Twentieth Century fund.

An advertising analysis recently conducted by the fund discloses that out of each dollar spent on farm machinery but 1.6 cents goes to advertising. This compared to 8.2 cents by tobacco manufacturers; 6.7 cents for confectionery and bottled goods; 6.2 cents for groceries; 6.1 for furniture; 4 cents for automobiles; 3.7 for clothing; approximately 3 cents for home furnishings; and 2.2 for hardware.

Soil-Erosion Is Now Nation-Wide Problem

—Although "man-made" soil erosion increased year by year in this country as settlers moved west, it was not until 1933 that the problem was attacked on a nationwide scale. In that year the soil erosion service, now the soil conservation service, was organized.

During the past six years, 175 demonstration areas have been established in 45 states and Puerto Rico, the service says in a current statement. Erosion control work is going forward under technical supervision of the service near more than 350 CCC camps. Hundreds of individual farms are being replanned for soil conservation in co-operation with state extension services.

—Over the country as a whole the soil conservation service demonstratioo program includes co-operative agreements with nearly 70,000 land-holders and covers more than 12 million acres of privately owned land.

Nyra's Tambourine

By CLARA C. HOLMES
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service.

"TRULY, I don't know where it can be, Rosabel," Dolly declared, casting a puzzled look around the neat attic. "Maybe Aunt's catalogue will tell; see, everything that's put away in trunks is set down in this book. T-t-tambourine; it isn't here, is it? And Aunt Ada's at the missionary meeting."

"I can use a tin pan at today's rehearsal," Rosabel answered.

"Are you sure Aunt Ada has a tambourine?"

"Yes, at least Nyra Leonard thinks she has. Nyra says that because there was a 'bizarre' incident connected with her once using the tambourine, she doesn't like to ask for it again. I wonder what that 'bizarre' incident can be, Dolly?"

Dolly led the way downstairs. "I never heard Aunt mention anything extraordinary," she replied.

"Since I may not see your Aunt tonight, I will leave her a note," Rosabel concluded, seating herself at Ada's desk.

"Aunt Ada is making me a rainbow voile dress," Dolly chatted, displaying a novelty. "Put your note on her sewing table."

Whereupon the girls went out, leaving the house alone.

Ada returned as her parlor clock was chiming five. She began to prepare the supper for herself and her niece then, having to wait, she went to the sewing table. Discovering Rosabel's note, she read:

"Dear Miss Ada—Nyra Leonard is to be a Sicilian dancer at the garden party. I can assist in the dance if I can get a tambourine. If you have one, please may I take it?

"Sincerely yours,
"Rosabel Lamb."

"She wants Nyra's tambourine," Ada reflected. "Good land, I thought I had that bygone affair buried forever!"

In spite of an effort to think of the supper of sliced hamburg loaf, homemade bread, pancakes, and iced tea, and of the beautifully tinted rainbow dress which she was sewing, Ada now only could hear Nyra's tambourine jingling persistently in her ears. Years ago Ada's Uncle Joe, a sea-captain, had brought the wonderful tambourine, with its silvery bells, from Italy. Because Nyra had had the instrument so much in her possession, Ada associated the dancer's name with it. Again Ada vividly saw the tambourine in the pretty hands of the raven-haired, dazzling Nyra King, who always, since girlhood, had been a beautiful, wild butterfly.

"She was only a flapper who learned the use of her wings 10 years ahead of the times," Ada observed, trying to be considerate. "And maybe Dolly'll learn to be a flapper, too, in this gay-colored gown. I don't want Dolly to be the plain, old-fashioned girl I was; I want her cute and lively and able to hold her own with any of 'em; but I want her good, too.

"Maybe I've set too high an ideal for Dolly, expecting her to have the strong points Nyra and I both had, and be beautiful both within and without."

But Ada's practical contemplation came to a shadowy end; in meditation, her thoughts were lured backward, backward by the silvery jingle of Nyra's tambourine. Again it was Field day; Ada was roving the encampment with John Leonard, her fiance. They came at last to the brightly-decorated fortune-tellers' booth, where Nyra King, in an Italian peasant costume, sang and danced as she skillfully droned in a bedizoned tambourine.

"Isn't she cute?" John commented watching the movements of the winsome entertainer. Although Ada declared that they had best move on, John lingered and lingered.

Ada smiled as she remembered how willing John was to see her home early in order that he might return to the field and seek Nyra. No one might have known of this clandestine meeting had not John's car turned turtle late that night. Because the car was wrecked, although its occupants, John and Nyra, were picked up unhurt, but sadly stupefied, folks shook their heads suspiciously.

Nyra courteously returned the tambourine and Ada graciously received it; but Nyra never borrowed it again. The episode ended when Ada returned John his ring.

Nyra became the butterfly wife of John. She frisked the years away; her cottage always being in a state of untidiness. It was in order to deepen the contrast between herself and Nyra that Ada kept her house so scrupulously clean.

"She aroused a fire in John which I could never have awakened, that vital flame which alone makes married life worth while," Ada meditated. Then, laying aside her sewing, she mechanically went up two flights of stairs, and methodically looked at her catalogue.

"N—Nyra's tambourine, north end of attic, Uncle Joe's chest, lower left - hand corner." Directly she placed her hand upon the disturbing memento.

She paused a moment, thinking. "I'll change it to the R's, Rosabel's tambourine will be more sweetly suggestive," she bravely soliloquized.

Going downstairs, she began to stir the pancake batter vigorously and to fry the cakes.

Hand and Foot

By MARCIA DINSMORE

LUELLA was not a private detective, nor even by nature unduly curious. It was honest concern for Eva's happiness which had brought her to Stetson. She could never forget that it had been Eva who had unconsciously shown her how terrible her life with Dan would have been. Luella studied it now at the memory of her week's visit with Eva and her four brothers and sisters, among whom was the handsome Dan.

But now Eva had disappeared and Luella was worried. She could not blame the girl for running away and it was most unlikely that her present condition was more unhappy than had been her life at home. But until Luella knew at least that the girl was safe, she would not be satisfied.

Her search had brought her to Stetson but here she was baffled. Luella pondered. Eva could sew, cook, sweep and dust. She had been a furnace man, gardener and household drudge to her four healthy brothers and sisters almost from the day of her birth. It was possible that she might have service somewhere.

"He pays Eva Hand and Foot." Her own phrase. Eva had waited on her sisters and brothers hand and foot.

"Can't she do anything?"

"Well, she doesn't. And Eva heard—" Mrs. Easton lowered her voice—"that she can't even make beds or wash dishes properly. Doesn't know where to find the damper on the stove. And since she can't do things, of course, Sam does them for her."

"But how does she occupy herself?"

"Just reads and embroiders. What you said about Eva's longings reminded me of her. She does beautiful embroidery."

"What does she look like?" Little prickles ran up Luella's spine.

[illegible] Then the voice rose to a wail. "For the love of Mike! stop this crazy cuttletrap!"

"All right, you spy riders," called Johnny. "Just remember there's more gas in this thing and, anyways, I got you covered now."

A few nights later the Walkin' Dreams and the Iron Horse, the latter not looking any the worse for its encounter with the rustlers, took their usual trail out of town.

"Don't right to allow a gent when he goes to be his self," remarked the sheriff to a couple of cow punchers who had been watching the Iron Horse out of sight. They looked at each other a moment, then with one accord each man went for his horse.

Later three men came in sight of a flivver outlined in the moonlight against a white cottage. They dismounted and looked through a window. What they saw was the Walkin' Deputy deeply interested in a game of checkers. Opposite him sat a little old lady, her gray hair shining in the lamplight.

"Gosh!" breathed Bar sheriff. Three [illegible] counted quietly to 100.

Johnny's Iron Horse

BY ALICE V. LINDLEY

THINGS in Rawlins were progressing smoothly. That little city favor was the fortunate possessor of an exceptionally strong limb of the law. A tall, hollow-eyed man with a scraggly beard and a student of physiognomy would not have been fooled by the fat man's apparent [illegible] many a bad hombre had stepped a little before realizing it by his pearly. Then, too, right [illegible] the sheriff's office deputy, who—due to that he had [illegible] of a gang of marauders [illegible] up in the hills, had come to be known as the Walkin' Dead—one of his eleventh [illegible] and had been broadcast up and down the country, and just [illegible] with considerable [illegible] to have an almost [illegible] fear of Rawlins.

For this [illegible] the sheriff would have been duly thankful if it had not been for the peculiar actions of his new deputy. On the average of twice a week Walkin' Deputy slicked dog's hair, adjusted his tie and polished his boots, while the sheriff looked on with a mixture of curiosity and disgust.

"If you're sparkin' a gal, Johnny," he accosted one night, after watching this procedure in silence several times in the vain hope of an explanation from his deputy.

"Yes, sir. I bet you're sparkin' a gal. Never did have any luck with [illegible], myself. Take Ed Starks, for instance. He went an' died with the [illegible]. Forty-two years old he was, too. Then there was Tom Hubbard, went to New York and got jailed. It was all in the papers, and he ain't been back's home since. You can't [illegible] never had no luck with deputies. I thought you was goin' to be different, sir." The sheriff's voice was pathetic, though his eyes twinkled—"but here you are, keepin' me all riled up [illegible] fights over that Iron Ho[illegible], of course, while you go sparkin'."

Old Mark Adams rode into town, leaving a trail of dust and profanity behind him, loudly demanding the sheriff. It was Johnny, however, who heard the details of the rustlers' going on up in Adams' section of the country.

That night, at the [illegible] hour, the Walkin' Deputy [illegible] in state, [illegible] and [illegible] sheriff.

"Thought we'd [illegible] town tonight, cool off the [illegible] business. Wonder who's [illegible] ways [illegible] Adams' direction. [illegible] young [illegible]

"Why, he [illegible] the Walkin' Deputy [illegible] a little white [illegible] on the hills and [illegible] to his driving. I'll [illegible] further down the street [illegible] something [illegible] back.

"You just stop that flivver, young feller," came a voice out of the darkness. "There's two of us joy riders in the back seat if you don't obey orders exactly like We ain't used to this buggy ridin' and we don't want no monkeyshines. We know we've been hangin' round that place up there old man Adams'. You sure are a pretty smart Alec, for a Western fronter, but you can't fool two old duffers like us. So we just decided to let you take a permanent vacation from this land of gunplows and worries, and, whew!"

Johnny's active brain had taken in the situation quickly. These fellows thought he knew something and had already decided to dispose of him. Well, he had one chance.

Sliding far down in the seat, with a quick movement he stepped hard on the gas, sending the Iron Horse forward with a mighty jerk, straight toward the roughest section of country in that section.

Threats, curses, prayers, moans came from the back seat, while Johnny hung on to the wheel praying all the while that the car would hold together.

"When you get enough just throw them guns out," he ordered over his shoulder, "and sit up straight and pretty, or I'll make this thing do tricks Henry Ford never taught it."

"Them guns is gone," came a shaky voice from the rear seat.

Mercury Sedan for 1941 Has New Beauty, Rides More Smoothly

HERE IS the 1941 Mercury sedan for seven and in heavy cross Sedan and back of it is a story of progress, and the combination of new intensive engineering, as exemplified in the development of still greater riding comfort. The chevrolet shock absorbers gives a ride without a peer. The 95 horsepower eight-cylinder engine now has new first and second ratios that step up "get away". The body designs include a station wagon and a club convertible with a top operated by an electric push button switch, whether or not the motor is running.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Vitamin C Deficiency

Scurvy and related diseases, which particularly affected the crews of sailing ships engaged in long voyages, was recognized 200 years ago as due to a lack of fresh fruits and vegetables. The practice arose of entrying limes in the ship's stores and the sailing vessels were known as "lime-juicers," the sailors—especially the British—as "limeys."

More recently, the condition was associated with lack of Vitamin C which is supplied to the body by fresh fruits and vegetables. A notable scientific advance was scored in 1932 when workers were able to isolate this vitamin. This permitted the administration of massive doses as a curative mensure.

Ordinarily, the adult enjoying the average American diet, which includes citrus fruits, tomatoes, potatoes and many other fruits and vegetables receives more than the minimum of 50 milligrams daily which the body requires for good health. In any illness, however, and particularly if fever is present, the demand for Vitamin C is grently increased and adoritional amounts should be supplied through orange juice or other vitamin C rich food.

Babies being fed on formulas of which cow's milk is the principal constituent should receive a daily portion of orange juice as the milk contains only one-third to one-fourth as much Vitamin C as mother's milk. Nursing babies are well supplied by nature with their requirements.

There would be little need to discuss the early symptoms of scurvy if everyone could manage to include in the diet the vitamin which prevents the disease. But ignorance, carelessness or food-faddism, rather than poverty, produces many cases of the disease annually.

Fatigue, weakness, loss of appetite, palpitation, breathlessness are among the early signs of scurvy but, as they are also common to other diseases states, a diagnosis cannot be made from these symptoms alone. In addition, the persons suffering from scurvy will exhibit a dislike for standing or walking. The legs may swell and become painful. The complexion is pale. The skin, especially on the legs, exhibits tiny hemorrhages about the hair follicles and similar hemmorrhages may be found on the eyeball, in the nasal passages, on the gum margins and beneath the nails. In severe scurvy, these lesions become quite large and painful and affect the structure of the bone. Anemia is common to advanced cases.

These signs, together with a blood examination and a history of improper diet leave no doubt as to the nature of the disease when scurvy is present.

What is Amortization?

LITERALLY, amortization means killing off a debt by gradual means.

It is a convenient plan of taking the amount of a loan, computing the entire amount of interest which will be payable thereon during the life of the loan, and dividing the total into equal periodic payments. At first, that portion of the payment applying to interest is large in comparison with the portion applying to the principal of the loan. But each time a payment is made the principal is reduced and consequently a smaller part of the payment applies to interest and a larger part to payment on the loan.

Its advantage is that it does not work a hardship on the borrower to extinguish his debt because as it is done gradually and not in a lump sum, he can budget his income to cover his periodic payments.

Farm prices are more firm, too. The national average shows a 5 per cent rise in food prices.

Price Inflation?

In the judgment of leading Michigan industrialists, we are due for at least two years of record-breaking prosperity.

Reasons are two-fold:

1. Huge defense orders, highlighted by a Morgenthau post-election statement that the treasury borrowing limit may be raised 20 billions.

2. Growing orders from Britain for aircraft, ordnance and ships.

According to the United States News, whose editor was pro-Willkie, this "spells the greatest sustained boom in the history of this or any other country—as far as industrial volumes are concerned. The election cannot change that substantially."

A boom in production, even though maintained artificially by borrowing, is likely to result in inflation of prices. While the state will collect more in sales taxes when prices increase, it will also pay more to maintain public services. The spiraling effect becomes hard to control.

A rising market also brings inevitably a trail of increased labor difficulties. This condition will be regarded as normal.

What, then, after the boom? We can be thankful also that the future is unknown. The world is moving fast, and we must go with it for better or for worse.

Shift to Small Town

Merchants in Michigan "small towns" — places with population under 10,000—have new reasons to be thankful.

The U. S. Census for 1940 shows that Michigan was the second in 17 states with an increase in the percentage of inhabitants living in small towns and rural areas. Whereas the state was 31 per cent rural in 1930, today it is 42 per cent. Oklahoma had the greatest population shift, advancing from 56 to 73 per cent rural in ten years.

Other states which show a greater population of small towns and rural populations than in 1930 are: California, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Washington.

Thirty-seven of the 48 states are more than 50 per cent "small town."

The spilling over of metropolitan population into suburban area has been a factor in this trend. Decentralization of industry has revitalized many communities; Henry Ford plants at the fringe of Detroit offer a familiar example.

"Coalition" Control

In these days of foreign crisis and national security, much talk is heard about "national unity."

To achieve a semblance of coalition government, President Roosevelt included four Republicans in his cabinet: Harold Ickes, Frances Perkins, Frank Knox and Henry Stimson. A former Republican, Henry Wallace, will be the next vice-president. This same desire for inter-party strength prompted the choice of a Democrat, Wendell L. Willkie, by the Republicans as their nominee for president.

Michigan's new state government will also be bi-partisan. Its governor, lieutenant governor, state treasurer and highway commissioner will be Democrats. Secretary of state, attorney general, auditor general and state superintendent of public instruction will be Republicans.

The state legislature will remain under Republican control.

The above situation, however, has its complications. An opportunity exists for evading of responsibility, or in plain words, for "buck passing."

If the state deficit is not reduced, if pressure groups are denied promised increases in state appropriations, who will be blamed—the governor or the legislature?

New Economy Drive?

Almost in anticipation of this situation, a new economy drive is being launched by the Michigan Public Expenditure Survey, an affiliate of the Chamber of Commerce of Michigan.

Expecting that better times in Michigan will increase sales tax revenues substantially, the taxpayers' program, as just announced, presents three demands:

1. Reduction of state budget at least 5 per cent for next biennium.

2. Enactment of state budget control system, including standardizing reporting between local units and the state.

3. Centralized tax collection system.

The economy platform runs counter to these Michigan trends:

1. Every recent state administration has augmented powers at Lansing—new bureaus, new commissions and new increases in payrolls.

2. The state legislature is usually susceptible to pressure groups.

3. Home taxing units favor more rather than less, state aid.

Civil Service

The civil service amendment, which becomes a part of the state constitution, has rigid provisions that are farreaching in effect. They will put Michigan into the front rank of merit system states.

According to a commonly accepted interpretation of the amendment, a state officer will be limited to two appointments—presumably a deputy and a personal secretary.

All other employees will be hired and fired by the civil service commission, whose director is a czar beyond reach of the legislature.

Furthermore, funds for operating the system are automatically provided for by the amendment. Again legislators are powerless to interfere.

The prospect of Governor-elect Murray D. Van Wagoner being unable to bring more than a legal advisor and a personal secretary to the executive office on January 2 is astonishingly unorthodox, to say the least. Politicians can hardly believe it will happen.

Mr. Van Wagoner is studying selection of the commission, and it is possible that Governor Dickinson may go through the legality of naming his successor's appointments on the commission in order that advance preparations can be started at once.

SHOT AT RANDOM

that Charlie Heise filled his license near Ralph; that Fritz Bergmann and some of his nine sons who are yearly hanting compaalons, have killed two east of Vanderbilt. Glenn See brought home the first deer from Beaver Island. His was one of ten killed there up to Tuesday. Bob Sommerville, another local hanter, filled his license on the island Monday. They tell me also, that Ray Ashdon is again having trouble with pigs over on the island and, if reports are true, he really did bag one this time. There may be a lot nf other successful hanters, but those mentioned above are all I've heard of up to the present time.

Classified ad in exchange newspaper: "Wanted—A salesgirl, must be respectable, until after Christmas."

Saw an elk, outside nf captivity, for the first time Sunday. It was a big cow killed by some hanter east of Vanderbilt. In view of its size, and particularly the fact its head was as bald as a pavement, I've been wondering ever since what excuse a person would give for shooting at one. My party reported finding the animal at the conservation headquarters and there we had an opportunity to witness an example of that kind of hanting known as "shoot first and look afterwards." Two elk, a young bull and a cow, and 12 does, were arrayed on the garage floor, portraying a vivid example of careless shooting. It's too bad conservation officers aren't able to apprehend every hunter guilty of such illegal shooting.

Isn't it the Truth?—

Bill: Have you seen one of those instraments which can tell when a man is lying?

Hank: Seen one? I married one!

The fury of last week's wind storm was fully evident in the wooded sections of northern Michigan by the great number of trees blown down. In the deer cover east of Vanderbilt, literally thousands of white and jack pine trees were felled. Many of the roads were not fully cleared as late as Sunday and it was not uncommon to see as many as a dozen trees cut off from a mile of highway.

What a headache the new civil service law is going to be for state officials from now on! Can you imagine having a commission tell them who they are to hire as assistants? Well, that is what the new law is going to mean and its going to cost you and I a pretty penny to finance its administration. Murray D. Van Wagoner, governor-elect, probably will not like it so well either, for during his regime as head of the state highway department, he necessarily had to have the first say in who was to be hired in order to maintain the highly efficient organization he built up. Under the new civil service law it would have been different.

A new chapter in the annals of Great Lakes heroism was provided last week off Ludington by Clyde Cross, former local resident, in the rescue of 16 members of the crew of the freighter W. B. Davock, lost in last Monday night's severe storm. With rescue units balked because of high seas, Cross swung his small fish tug alongside the beached freighter and removed to safety surviving members of its crew. As long as the hardy type of fishermen Cross represents exist, stories of their deeds of heroism will continue.

At its meeting November 9th, the conservation commission considered a proposal by upper peninsula sportsmen for a later small game season in those upper counties. Which all lends me to remark that if the upper peninsula hanting season is to be placed on a basis of fairness for all sportsmen, it should be set the same dates as the lower peninsula season. As it is now, the fellow with plenty of money and time on his hands is allowed a 36-day season altogether. He treks to the upper peninsula when the season opens up there October 1, gets in two weeks of hanting, and then when the season closes above the Straits, comes down into the lower peninsula and hunts through to November 5. The poor devil living in the lower peninsula can't afford the money and time to take in the upper peninsula hanting, likewise the ordinary upper peninsula resident is allowed a 15-day season, while his richer brother can come below the Straits and enjoy a 22-day season. I'm not inclined as a rule to Socialistic tendencies, but the unfairness of the present small game season is enough to arouse the "dander" of any person believing in equal rights for all.

The fact that voters of the nation voted for the man and not for the party was very evident in the last election. Michigan was a particularly striking example when it is considered majorities were voted for Willkie and Vandenberg, Republicans, Van Wagoner, Murphy and Fry Democrats, Kelly, Brown and Rashton, Republicans again. Illinois was another state where ballot-splitting was very apparent. Roosevelt carried the state for president, but a ticket of Republicans were elected to state offices. It is a fact, also, that had Roosevelt had to depend on the rural vote, he would have gone down to defeat, for in practically every state it was the city vote that carried him over. One can come to only one conclusion—that the political parties are better organized in the cities and that the Democratic organization is the strongest.

Agricultural products from nearly 2,500,000 acres of the nation's land went into the manufacture of motor vehicles in 1940. Automobiles currently on the market each use an average of 90 pounds of cotton and three and one-half pounds of wool and mohair.

LAKE, STREAM FRONTAGES ARE PURCHASED

Parcal on Susan Lake Bought by the Conservation Department

Nearly 10 miles of lake and stream frontage in Michigan has been acquired by the conservation department acting as agent for purchasers of fishing licenses whose access to important fishing waters is thus assured for all time.

Such purchases of lake and stream frontage are comparatively new, the legislature last year having approved the setting aside of 40 cents of each resident fishing license dollar for such use.

Most recent acquisitions approved by the conservation commission include 300 feet on the Black river in Montmorency county—a 40-acre parcel which includes a 10-acre lake; 4,500 feet on the Boardman river in Grand Traverse county and 300 feet on Creek 22 where it empties into the Boardman and 275 feet on Lake Susan in Charlevoix county.

In all, 40 parcels of land fronting on lakes and streams — three-quarters of them on lakes—have been acquired to date under the program, including more than 21,000 feet of lake frontage, 24,900 feet of trout stream frontage and 6,300 feet of frontage on non-trout streams.

Fred A. Westerman, chief of the department's fisheries division, comments that lake fishermen need not feel that trout fishermen are being favored in the program, even though frontage acquired on streams is slightly greater than that on lakes. A comparatively small frontage on a lake gives access to the entire lake, he points out, while in the instance of streams, frontage on both banks is need if fishermen are to have fullest use of such waters without trespassing on private lands.

MISS SALLY GREENE AND TALBOTT CUMMINGS WED OCTOBER 19 IN NEW YORK

Mr. and Mrs. Guy S. Greene, of Detroit, recently announced the marriage of their daughter, Sally, to Talbott Cummings, of Detroit. The wedding took place at New York City, Saturday, October 19th. The young couple returned to Detroit early in November to make their home in that city. Mr. and Mrs. Greene are prominent members of the Belvedere summer colony.

IRONTON NEWS

The Ladies' Aid will meet next week Thursday with a pot luck dinner with Mrs. George Hanson. The new officers are as follows: Mrs. Arlo Wickersham, president; Mrs. Roy Meyers, vice president; Mrs. Ross Alexander, secretary; Mrs. Ralph Price, treasurer; with Mrs. J. C. Dissette as chairman of the work Committee. Mrs. Ed Cunningham is our honorary president, having been in that office the past twelve years. Mrs. Cunningham has been a very efficient, loyal and conscientious worker for our Aid and her services have been greatly appreciated by each member.

A very distinguished local guest was entertained at dinner Tuesday evening at the J. C. Dissette home. He had been a busy salesman of Christmas Seals that afternoon and answers to the name of "Donnie" Bennett. He is one of our future young men of Ironton.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Milward spent the past week end in Ann Arbor and Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neilson and family have moved into Mrs. McMulkin's house for the winter.

Forrest and Percy Brown of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Brown of Petoskey, and father, Lewis Brown, are all enjoying the deer hunting season in their camp at Roscommon.

Everyone in our community is sorely grieved by Rev. Parker's resignation from our little Ironton church. He has been a tireless worker and has done a great deal to make our church successful, and Mrs. Parker has been a faithful and helpful member in our Ladies' Aid. We all wish them best wishes and success in their new field of work.

"Jimmie" Dissette, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dissette, is a member of the National Guards and is now stationed in Camp Beauregard, Louisiana.

Eddie Thomson and Marion Jackson are the first of our local hunters to have their deer. Congratulations.

J. W. Mosher returned to his home last Friday after being a patient in the Charlevoix Hospital the past few weeks.

Don't forget your Red Cross donations. They are needed in these trying times, and any sum, large or small, will be appreciated.

The Charlevoix Dickens Club met with Mrs. J. C. Dissette Monday afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served with tea and the lesson on "New Zealand" given by Mrs. W. Chapman, was enjoyed by each member.

People who set more store by yesterday and tomorrow are missing a lot today they will never be able to replace.

CHINA MISSIONARY TO SPEAK, PRESENT EXHIBIT M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY

Dr. Harold Bedient, who is both a scientist and Christian minister, will be the guest of the day at the Methodist church on Sunday, November 24.

He will speak of the challenge of the church in the present day at the Woman's Society of Christian Service missionary thank-offering service at 11 o'clock. At 4:30 he will present a very unusual Chinese exhibit of silks, linens, tapestries, porcelains, vases, shawls, official gowns, and many other things, after which the ladies will serve Chinese tea to the guests. Dr. Bedient will also speak to the young people at the 6:30 hour and at the evening service at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Bedient is a well known chemist, and has taught in American colleges and also in the Union Medical School of China, where he was sent by the Rockefeller Foundation. He and his family spent five years in China, and he was there during one of the worst famines of modern times, and was in Japan at the time of the great earthquake. He has very definite convictions as to the message of the Christian church of today, and has been in the Christian ministry about seven years. He is pastor now at Levering, having come north for health reasons for part of his family.

Nicholas Blinoff will be the guest violinist at the morning thank-offering service and at the afternoon meeting.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the above services and it is urged that no one miss the fine exhibit and tea in the afternoon. It is a rare privilege which none should neglect.

GREENSKY INDIAN MISSION TO HOLD BAZAAR THERE ON NOVEMBER 29

The Greensky Hill Indian Woman's Society of Christian Service is progressing with their work in spite of handicaps and inconveniences.

They have had but five meetings so far, but have raised enough to pay their insurance on both the church and the dining hall and some benevolences. They made, and have already paid, a pledge for missionary work of five dollars, and have also paid eight dollars for the district superintendent and the bishop. To raise money they have tied one quilt, sold one quilt, and served several twenty-five cent suppers.

At present they are planning an Indian bazaar to be held at the dining hall at Greensky Mission November 29th, beginning in the afternoon at 2 p. m., at which time they will sell Indian-made baskets, chair mats, rugs, and other Indian articles and aprons; and at 6:30 they will serve a supper.

Recently the mission was the recipient of a fine gift from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bancroft, a gift of twenty-four folding chairs for the dining hall. The folks of the Mission greatly appreciate the gift.

SPORTSMAN'S CLUB PLANTS GAME FISH

FINGERLINGS RELEASED FROM STOVER CREEK PONDS

Horton, Monroe, Stover, McGeagh Creeks and Lake Charlevoix Are Heavily Stocked

Recent release of brook, rainbow and German brown trout rnised at the Stover creek rearing ponds completed the 1940 fish propagation program of the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club.

A total of 11,000 fish, ranging in size from 4 to 7 inches, were released. Brook trout numhering 4,500 were placed in Horton creek, 500 in Stover creek; 1,000 German brown trout were released in the new Burns pond on McGeagh creek and 500 in Stover creek; 3,000 rainbow in the south arm of Lake Charlevoix, 1,000 in Oyster Bay and 500 in Stover creek.

The club held over 3,800 German brown trout which will be fed during the winter in the large pool in East Park. In another section of the pool, 22,000 Pacific coast steelhead are being fed and held for release through the ice when the south arm of Lake Charlevoix freezes over. It is expected this delay will prevent heavy loss from fish ducks which are present in large numbers while the lake is free of ice.

Lighter than anticipated plantings were made in the new Burns pond in view of a promise from Oden hatchery officials that heavy releases of legal-size fish will be made in the pond next spring. A request has also gone into the conservation department for a special order closing the new pond to fishing until August 1, 1941.

SENIOR CLASS TO PRESENT COMEDY

"SPRING FEVER" SCHEDULED ON DECEMBER 5TH

Ten Senior Class Members Portray Roles In Cast Directed by Miss Virginia Hoelzle

"Spring Fever" is not an indisposition. It's a riot—a riot of fun and laughter with members of the Senior class of Charlevoix high school germinating the mirth at the gymnasium next Thursday night, Decemher 5th.

The curtain rises on this clever three-act comedy promptly at 8:15. The play is produced by special permission of the Northwestern Press of Minneapolis, Minnesota. Charles Harter as the young inventive genius in love with the town beauty, played by Dorothy Olach, will be lauded for a fine performance; as will Delmar Lyon as the high school coach and Eleanor Ecklund as the maiden aunt. Betty Kovar and Donald Meggison as the young married couple will furnish plenty of laughs, as will Amy Pedersen as the girl who discovers a remedy for baldness but puts in the wrong ingredients.

"Spring Fever" has all the correct ingredients for an evening of clean, wholesome enjoyment and will reward its audience well with memories of youth and love and the happy springtime of youth.

Others in the cast, beside those mentioned, are Kenneth Staley, Phyllis VanAllsburg and Jeanette Potter. The play is under the capable direction of Miss Virginia Hoelzle. The Senior class extends a kind invitation to all their friends to attend this performance next Thursday evening, December 5, in the high school gymnasium.

WINTER TAX RATE LOWER THIS YEAR

FRACTION OF A MILL DECREASE IS ANNOUNCED

Tax Becomes Payable Monday, December 2, at Office of City Treasurer F. V. Tyler

Winter taxes, which become payable Monday, December 2, at the office of City Treasurer Fred V. Tyler, will be slightly lower than last year, according to figures just released.

The rate spread will he $18.31 per thousand dollars valuation, compared to $18.40 last yenr. The 1938 figure was $18.64 and the 1937 tax was $19.35.

Spread against the city valuation of $2,445,195, the winter tax charged to Chnrlevoix property owners will nppear, per thousand dollars valnation, as follows:

County	$10.61
Schnol Operating	4.20
School Debt	3.50
	$18.31

The 1939 figures were:

Cnunty	$10.50
School Operating	4.40
	$18.40

An increase of 11c per thousand dollars valuation for county purposes is more than offset by a decrease of 20c per thousand in the school operating allocation.

Winter taxes go for county and school purposes entirely. The county realizes funds for general operating expenses and welfare needs. The schools receive a portion for general operating expenses, also debt service, which, in Charlevoix's case goes for the retirement of bonded indebtedness.

Taxes are payable without four per cent penalty for collection until January 9th, unless the penalty dendline is not later extended by the city council.

While initial physical exnmination is given by Dr. A. F. Litzenhurger, of Boyne City, a medical advisory board, to whom registrants may appeal from the initial examination has been named. It is composed of Dr. Claude Roy Keyport, of Grayling, and Dr. Wm. S. Sylvester, of Petoskey, whose office has been established in the Northern Michigan Tuberculosis Sanatarium, at Gaylord, serving Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Otsego and Crawford counties.

Post-Thanksgiving reflections:

"Didn't I say last week that Michigan is headed for at least two years of record-breaking prosperity? And all because Mr. Hitler's military monkey-business across the ocean has forced both Great Britain and the United States to spend recklessly fnr huge armaments.

"Yes, I did write that, and I believe it is true. But it does sound like prosperity Pollyanna, this pulling ourselves up by our own bootstraps into a false Utopia. There must be another side of the story. Why don't you tell it?

"You can't feed a kid on candy and then take it away from him without stirring up a fuss. How will all this war economy affect Michigan people? Will they tend to favnrnur participation in the Battle of Britain in order to keep our factories going?

MICHIGAN'S BREWERS ARE AIDING FARMERS

Campaign Urges Use of Eggs and Potatoes and Beer Brewed in State

The brewers of Michigan are to be complimented upon their spirit of cooperation with the farmers of Michigan. A very elaborate campaign has been planned by the Michigan Brewers Association, which is a friendly progress, urging the men and women of Michigan to buy more Michigan made farm products.

The Michigan Brewers Association has created a series of newspaper ads which will run in practically every city and town in Michigan, also a very handsome display, suggesting to all people who enjoy beer, that they should try a tasty threesome of eggs and potato chips from Michigan farms and Michigan brewed beer.

The annual egg crop in Michigan is one of, if not the most important, of all Michigan industries. According to information received from the Michigan Department of Agriculture, the annual egg crop in Michigan is 79,081,080 dozens of eggs, worth $15,816,216.00.

Eggs alone produce 14% of Michigan farm incomes. And, it is a fact that 70% of the Michigan farms have poultry flocks (there are 196,517 farms in Michigan, in case you are interested).

Regarding the annual potato output in Michigan . . . the crop for 1940 will total approximately 26,250,000 bushels, with an estimated cash value to the farmers of $18,000,000.00. Based on the cash returns, this is the second most important Michigan crop.

FIRST BUYERS OF XMAS SEALS IN CITY LISTED

Urge Generous Response to Campaign Financing TB Eradication

Charlevoix 'First Buyers' of Christmas seals in the 1940 campaign against tuberculosis are Glen S. See, A. J. Stelter, F. R. Bulow and Central Drug Store, according to a report received from the Michigan Tuberculosis Association this week.

Letters from the people listed were the first to be opened, although other early returns have been received from this vicinity and many more are expected in the next two or three weeks, the report continued.

The work of the Christmas seal is to prevent tuberculosis. This it does through state-wide education, clinics, and field service programs. Since the beginning of the century the number of deaths in Michigan has been cut to one-fifth its former size. But still 1,881 persons died in this state from tuberculosis last year.

Purchase of tuberculosis Christmas seals makes it possible for the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, an organization supported wholly by the voluntary giving of the people for these seals, to continue the fight against this disease.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Whoever makes a garden
Has oh so many friends:-
The glory of the morning,
The dew when daylight ends.
The wind and rain, and sunshine,
The dew and fertile sod,
And he who makes a garden
Works hand in hand with God.
—Douglas Malloch

The Garden Club wishes to thank the Courier for contributing this space for a garden column, which will appear regularly with bits of seasonal information about gardens, occasional mention of outstanding Charlevoix gardens, and discussion of other topics of interest.

Outdoor gardening activity is over for this year, but with the holiday season approaching, Christmas decorations for the home are now to be planned. Last year many Charlevoix homes were decorated with originality and taste, and it is hoped that this year there will be many more.

Contributions from our readers will be greatly appreciated, on any subject appropriate to gardens, and to beautifying our homes and our city. Send your items to Mrs. Allen Campbell, who, as press correspondent of the club, is in charge of this column.

Notice to the Public

I will be responsible for no indebtedness charged to me contracted by any one other than myself by direct order after this date.

Dated November 25, 1940.

AT THE MOVIES

Pat O'Brien Stars as 'Knute Rockne' at Palace Nov. 30 and Dec. 1

"Knute Rockne — All American," starring Pat O'Brien, tells the almost legendary story of his life. His power, his wise philosophy, the men and teams he built, and the influence he had, and still has, on the people of America, are all brought out in this swiftly-paced, exciting motion picture.

Gale Page plays the role of Mrs. Rockne, who was the inspiration for much of his success. Ronald Reagan, in what has been hailed as the finest role of his career, plays the part of the never-to-be-forgotten George Gipp. Donald Crisp is wisely cast as the understanding president of Notre Dame, Father Callahan. The famous "Four Horsemen" are played by Knue Richmond as Elmer Layden; William Marshall as Don Miller; Nick Lukats as Harry Stuhldreher and Billy Byrne as Jim Crowley.

Cesar Romero Portrays "Cisco Kid" Again in New Picture

"The Gay Caballero" is another of the noted "Cisco" films and it is crammed with new and thrilling exploits. With handsome and suave Cesar Romero again the romantic desperado, the 20th Century-Fox film which comes December 4-5 to the Palace Theatre is said to maintain the pace set by previous Cisco films. There is plenty of romance in "The Gay Caballero," especially in the comely person of newcomer Sheila Ryan. The strong featured cast includes Robert Sterling, Chris-Pin Martin, Janet Beecher, Edmund MacDonald and Jacqueline Dalya.

"Manhattan Heartbeat" Tells Tender Story

"Manhattan Heartbeat," the 20th Century-Fox film, which comes December 4-5 to the Palace Theatre, tells the tender, understandable story of a boy and girl who get married on practically nothing a week and then crash head-on with the harsh realities of married life.

The leading featured roles in the new film are played by Robert Sterling and Virginia Gilmore. Their sensitive, well-rounded portrayals were highly praised by preview audiences. Joan Davis and Edmund MacDonald share the comedy honors. Others featured in the strong cast are Don Beddoe and Paul Harvey.

Problems of Adolescence

Adolescence, marking the transition from childhood to the adult state, is frequently manifested by behavior deviating from the accepted form. This is largely if not wholly, a reflection of certain changes taking place within the body and, particularly, in the ductless glands which regulate personality.

The problems of adolescence have been subjected to considerable study and while it is generally agreed that many undesirable traits such as irritability, daydreaming, excessive shyness, a feeling of inferiority or guilt tend to disappear in time, some may require the attention of the parent or skilled psychiatrist if they are not to become deeply imbedded in character.

While the well-adjusted child accepts social conventions and the customs, traditions and regulations of his family or larger social group without question, the adolescent may exhibit a hostility or rebellion. Perhaps the best way of handling this situation is to include the youngster in all group activities and interests, constantly stressing the fact that he or she is an essential member of the group, able to contribute some valued skill or ability. Co-operation is best taught by actually co-operating with the adolescent, inviting and respecting confidences and by suppressing any inclination to ridicule the fantasies of the pre-adult however ridiculous they may appear.

Similarly, an individual learns to live harmoniously in a world of men and women by beginning the practice of that high art at an early age. The adolescent is certainly entitled to his moments alone and should be encouraged to read widely, to assemble a radio or to indulge in other solitary occupation or craft. But if this is carried too far, the adult may never feel quite easy in the presence of others and may actually suffer from necessary social contacts. A nice balance must be struck and the wise parent, particularly the mother, should have little difficulty in encouraging normal social intercourse.

A boy who feels little urge to join a "gang" and who maintains a passive, lack-interest attitude toward the world as well as the "bossy" girl, disliked by others of her sex because of her domineering manner may be exhibiting, in opposite ways, their feeling of discomfort in the presence of children of their age group. Not infrequently, this is carried over into adult life.

It is a mistake to dismiss too lightly and of little consequence the fears and obsessions of adolescence, or to attempt to banish them either by threats of punishment or by cajolery. A definite procedure is indicated. This can be practiced only by persons trained in the complexities of the human mind. They alone are able to probe the depths of the sub-conscious, bring to light the emotionally disturbing factor, exhibit it to the youngster in the cold light of reason, teach him to recognize it for what it is—a phantom—and to help him put it in its proper place by examining it with the patient. Keep in the confidence of your children so that you may the more easily help them solve their problems. When you are old and feeble their turn will come to help you.

Life Insurance Loans

THERE are frequently times when a person needs a little extra money to meet an emergency or to take advantage of an opportunity. Perhaps you have overlooked the fact that the cash surrender value of a life insurance policy offers a very acceptable kind of collateral for a bank loan.

One of the services rendered by this bank is to make loans on life insurance policies as collateral.

All that is necessary is to bring your policy to the bank and fill out a note and a life insurance assignment form which we supply.

It is a convenient way to borrow money because a loan of this type may be readily obtained, and it is not necessary to get additional signatures from co-signers on your note.

LANSING LETTER

"Here is something vital in the lives of your readers. Tell them about it."

Arms and Michigan

How will the national defense program affect Michigan?

Editor and Publisher, national magazine for newspaper and advertising people, places Michigan second of the 48 states in volume of government contracts let from July 13 to October 26, and reported by the department of labor at Washington.

Michigan contracts totaled $125,820,000.

October awards aggregated $41,423,000.

And these sums are only a modest beginning. National expenditures during the third quarter (July, August, September) totaled $500,000,000. The fourth quarter will double this amount, while the first quarter of 1941 is expected to bring another 50 per cent increase.

Thus federal expenditures are spiraling upward, and by July, 1941, they are due to reach $600,000,000 to $700,000,000 monthly until the billion-a-month peak is hit. Compare this billion goal with our current month's estimated spending of about $300,000,000, and you get some idea of what this astronomical spending will mean to our U. S. A.

Mass Production

It was inevitable that a state where mass production methods had been widely applied in industries would be relied upon to achieve quick output of munitions and arms.

Since the day that Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Lansing, Pontiac and other cities became automobile centers, Michigan had been world-famous for its assembly line and the efficiency of its workers.

That has not been without its penalty, however. When automobiles are in demand, times are good in Michigan. When the reverse takes place, times are hard.

The assembly line, the crux of mass production science, and the adoption of annual models assures either steady employment or layoffs. A sit-down strike in one supply factory can cause the entire line to come to a stop. Fiat automobile workers who went deer hunting the other day accomplished the same thing: The line couldn't function.

These industrial centers consequently have experienced reoccurring periods of boom and depression. Unemployment dips to an extreme, or rises to a near vanishing point. This does not happen also without the fringe of suburban communities being directly affected. Scores of small-town industries are kept alive by the big motor business. Thousands of workers reside in nearby towns, commuting daily by automobile between work bench and home.

British Orders

National defense orders and British arms orders are today, to all practical extent, one and the same.

Henry Ford balked at manufacture of Rolls-Royce motors for British planes, but promptly accepted a similar contract from the United States government for airplane engines. Other automobile companies have not been so choosy. Packard is to make British engines; General Motors has substantial British arms contracts.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced that Britain would get 50 per cent of our arms output, and there is little doubt that the proportion will be increased in Britain's favor if a new crisis threatens.

Under our capitalistic system whereby private ownership is entitled to private profit, it is inevitable that a war economy of this type will produce war profits. Such was the history of World War I. Let us take a look at 1940.

Our Export Trade

The Wall Street Journal on October 21 stated that 42 per cent of America's exports are munitions or related arms materials. Exports during the first year of World War II exceeded four billions, a gain of 37 per cent over the preceding 12 months. Our export balance was the largest since 1921. Of these exports, 62 per cent go to Britain.

The three-quarter earnings of leading industrial corporations also show sharp gains. United States Steel had more than 500 per cent increase, Jones & Laughlin 2,500 per cent, Glenn L. Martin 300 per cent, according to figures printed in Business Week.

General Motors earnings for the same three-quarter period of 1940 were $129,172,000, a gain of $20,000,000 over the same period in 1939. The third quarter earnings record was $15,597,000, compared with $8,627,000 in 1939, or almost double even after new tax levies were deducted.

Motor Wheel, at Lansing, has gone from $1,091,000 to $1,440,000 earnings for the same three-quarter period. Oil firms show substantial gains.

And yet it would be grossly unfair to infer that directors of these corporations are interested in war for war profits. Better than the average worker, the modern industrial leaders realize that a war economy is a false economy; tomorrow's headaches will plague capital and labor for years to come.

One reasonable conclusion from the rising tide of war profits might be this: Michigan, as one state, is getting an economic stake in the war.

Will History Repeat?

Ray Stannard Baker in his Wilson biography stated:

"Thus by the end of the year 1914 the traffic in war materials with the Allies had become deeply entrenched in America's economic organization and the possibility of keeping out of the war by the diplomacy of neutrality no matter how skillfully conducted, had reached the vanishing point."

Jerome Frank, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, recently wrote: "Every student of our conduct prior to our entry into the last war agrees that non-participation was made all but impossible because of our precious huge shipments to the belligerents . . . The same forces are now at work that were operative in 1914-17."

President Roosevelt in his Chautauqua speech referred to war profits as "fools' gold" and warned of "the inevitable penalties, the inevitable day of reckoning."

Ambassador Page in 1917 advised Woodrow Wilson: "Perhaps our going to war is the only way in which our present pre-eminent trade position can be maintained and a panic averted."

Secretary McAdoo in 1915 favored credit for the Allies as a protection to "great prosperity" for farmer and factory worker. Even Secretary Lansing said that neutrality should not stand in the way of "our national interests which seem to be seriously threatened."

The principle of cause and effect still functions. Will Michigan's coming prosperity help to create a public attitude, as history says it did previous to the last war, in support of our direct participation in the present war as a fighting ally of Great Britain?

Or, in other words, will history repeat?

You can surmise what the future holds. We strive to interpret the news.

PREPAREDNESS for the unexpected

The National Defense Program is one of numerous situations that can cause a tremendous increase in the number of telephone calls. Some occasions can be foreseen — a national convention, a holiday, a World's Series, an election. Others come without warning — the death of a prominent person, changes in the market, a storm or flood. The Telephone Company must adjust its forces and equipment quickly to unexpected "peak" loads. That requires closest co-operation between highly trained workers. The ability of telephone men and women to rise to emergency is an important reason for this Company's preparedness to do its part in the Nation's defense activity.

His Wife: "Honestly?"

Politician: "Why bring that up?"

Class C conference coaches overlooked one of the most versatile players on any northern Michigan class C football team when they left Carl Rowe out of their first team line-up. Carl, better known as "Had," was the spark-plug of Charlevoix's outfit. He displayed the best open field running this writer saw during games played here, was a good passer and played a whale of a defensive game.

Elsewhere in these columns is announced a dance to be given in Detroit by the Detroit-Charlevoix Club for Charlevoixans now in that area. With the number from Charlevoix employed in Detroit this winter, they should have no trouble getting a crowd out.

The Hayes township George Burns' had sort of a family get-together over the Thanksgiving holidays and they tell me that if someone called the name "George" it brought immediate response because there were three generations of Georges present: Grandfather George, Father George and Grandson George.

Christmas decorations are commencing to appear in local business places and, just in case you haven't kept as close track of the calendar as I have, will say there's exactly 23 more shopping days before Christmas.

After all the praying the boys had done to bring snow during the deer season; it had to wait until Tuesday of the last week. It's better late than never, though, and I'll wager a lot of bucks will "bite the dust" before dark Saturday night as a result.

Saw four dead doe deer within a radius of 200 yards of where our car was parked over east of Vanderbilt last Friday. The illegal kill of elk was around 10 in Otsego county alone, I understand. Looks like it's getting down to the point where each hunter must turn game warden and report such violators as a means of saving protected deer and wild game.

Gus Mielke, the well known Beaver Islander, says not to let Ray Ashdon kid you into believing he hasn't any meat for the winter. There's a black and white pig mixed up in this story somehow. Perhaps you can get Ray to tell you the details.

They tell me Lawrence Isaman didn't get his buck the first morning because he'd forgot to load his gun; that Tony Novotny, usually in the habit of carrying an even half dozen shells in his gun, lost a buck downed on the fifth shot when the supposed sixth cartridge wasn't there and he couldn't cash in on an opportunity to nick the big fellow lying down; that a pair of dirty skunks stole a nice buck from a lad over in Pleasant Valley whom they came across dragging his kill home; that the Jordan river valley territory had produced 50 bucks up to last Sunday, which is quite good results in any man's language; that 19 Charlevoix hunters bagged one buck out of the Ralph district which last year was excellent hunting; that when Frank Courier saw a whopping big bull moose in the Two Heart river territory northeast of Newberry he thought the Barnum & Bailey circus menagerie had got loose; that Jim Cublentz' bear shot near Dog lake is the only one brought into Charlevoix this season. It all adds up to hunter's luck.

JANE C. STANLEY DIED AT HOME IN ANN ARBOR

Had Been Beloved Summer Resident Belvedere Club 58 Years

In the death of Jane C. Stanley, who died at Ann Arbor on October 31st, Charlevoix has lost one of its distinguished and best loved summer residents.

As Jane Mahon, she came to this region with her parents in 1882, and the Belvedere Club cottage which has since been her summer home was begun in that year. She was the widow of Louis C. Stanley, a well known Detroit lawyer.

A woman of knowledge and culture, she possessed artistic talent, which is attested by her sketches made in Europe, California, the Southwest, Mexico and Guatemala. Her work was widely known, having been exhibited in many cities, notably in New York City and the Corcoran gallery in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Stanley and her two daughters, both artists, once exhibited their work in Charlevoix. Mr. Stanley was the son of an early American painter of Indians, John Stanley.

Besides a host of devoted friends, she leaves four children, John M. Stanley and Mrs. Dean Acheson, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Robert Frantz, of Saginaw; and Dr. George M. Stanley of the University of Michigan.

The wedding of Kathryn Roberta Left, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Left, to Harold D. Kennett, of Chicago, was solemnized at 10:30 Saturday morning, November 23, at St. Mary's rectory. Fr. John W. Collins performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends.

Mrs. Earl Miller, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing black crepe with white gardenias.

Wedding breakfast was served at the home of Franklin Left, for fifty guests. "I Love You Truly" and "My Wild Irish Rose" were sung by Fay A. Bradley, with Miss Annabelle Cunningham at the piano. An afternoon reception for one hundred fifty people was held at the Left home. Refreshments including a four-tiered wedding cake, were served.

A five-course wedding dinner for eighty guests was served at 7:00 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller, and a dancing party was held later at The Argonne.

WINTER SPORTS PARK PROJECT

CITY TO PURCHASE MT. McSAUBY PROPERTY

Plan to Acquire Tract From Waller Estate Has Financial Backing of Summer Residents

Establishment of a complete wiater sports park at Mt. McSauby through cooperation of the city council and board of commerce with a group of interested summer residents became a reality Monday night as the result of action taken by the city council.

The initial step, which has followed pledges of financial support by a group of well known summer residents, was in the form of a motion signifying acceptaace by the city of an offer by the Northera Trust Co., representing the Waller estate, to transfer title of the so-called Mt. McSauby property to the city.

This tract of laad, scene of Charlevoix's past wiater sports activities, comprises some 46 acres, offered at a price of $800, it is understood. The property includes site of presear ski aad toboggaa slides and look-out tower, extends westward to Lake Michigaa and iacludes approximately 1500 feet of water front.

Utilizing money pledged for purchase of the property and WPA fuads and labor available to the city for park improvements, tentative plans call for construction of a club house 24x30 feet, coastruction of ski and toboggan slides rnnaing westward off Mt. McSauby towards Lake Michigua, installation of water aad toilet facilities, construction of roadways to make the park accessible to automobiles. In other words, a complete winter sports set-up is contemplated.

Summer resident donors are being invited to come to Charlevoix to collaborate in plans for the set-up prior to actual work. It is expected, however, that preliminary work will be started at once.

Interest of summer residents in the estaldishment of a winter sports park arises from their desire to come here for such activities when facilities are available, it is understood.

GREAT LAKES NAVIGATION OFFICIALLY OVER

Season for 1940 Ended at Midnight, November 30—Continues Here

While navigation officially closed on the Great Lukes at midnight Saturday, boats will operate out of this port as long as ice conditions permit.

The Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail boat Mary Margaret began a schedule of three trips weekly on Monday and will continue as long as navigation is open. Fish boats will operate as long as possible, also, and the Str. Stewart is still hauling logs from Beaver Island.

The close of Great Lakes navigation ended one of the busiest seasons since 1937. The general business speed-up as a result of national defense spending was the principal reason for the boost in water traffic.

Detroit reported there had been 10,128 passages up the Detroit river and 10,159 down this season. This was above the 1938 figures although not as large as those for 1929 and 1937.

Reserve Teams Will Open Double Bill — Charlevoix Team Has Four Seasoned Players

Charlevoix high school's Red Rayder basketball team open their 1940-41 season Friday night.

The initial contest of a 14-game schedule is with the class B Petoskey Northmen on Petoskey's court. The evening's program provides games between the varsity and reserve teams. Petoskey will have the advantage of experience gained in their opening contest last Friday night, when they defeated Boyne City by a 29 to 17 score.

Coach Ray Kipke's 1940-41 team has one very definite aim—beating the performance of last year's squad, which failed to turn in a single victory to establish a record unprecedented in high school basketball history. This task will fall to a quartette of veterans and reserves of last season's combination.

While Coach Kipke has not named his starting line-up, a group of around thirty candidates has been reduced to the first ten and these players will no doubt all see action. It is expected the center position will be shared by Don Carey and Don Meggison, forward positions by Bud Kohler, Stan Shapton, Billy Geagle and Ralph Mitchell, guard positions by Jack Stewart, John Swanson, Carl Rowe and Ernie Nowland. Carey, Kohler, Rowe and Nowland played in most games last year.

The Rayder's first home appearance will be against Gaylord on December 17. The 14-game schedule follows:

Dec. 6—Petoskey there.
Dec. 13—Harbor Springs there.
Dec. 17—Gaylord here.
Dec. 20—Mancelona there.
Dec. 27—Alumai here.
Jan. 10—Rogers City there.
Jan. 16—Gaylord there.
Jan. 21—Petoskey here.
Jan. 24—East Jordan here.
Jan. 31—Boyne City there.
Feb. 7—East Jordan there.
Feb. 14—Grayling here.
Feb. 21—Boyne City here.
Feb. 28—Harbor Springs here.

"Britain backs Michigan plant."

Such was the cryptic headline over a single paragraph news item in a recent issue of the New York Times. The dispatch by the Associated Press follows:

"Detroit—Officials of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co. disclosed today that British funds would pay for its new plant, for the manufacture of Colt-Browning machine guns, near Plymouth, Mich. The company announced construction would begin at once to fill a contract to supply machine guns to Britain. Employment will be provided for 2,000 men, company officials said."

Forty-eight hours later, a United Press dispatch to Detroit:

UP TO HIS OLD TRICKS

The Lion and the Lamb

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

THE world outside was gloriously bright, but Nadine was in one of her darkest moods.

"Why can't I do something worth while?" she asked. "I can't even fall in love and bring up a nice family," she told herself, "that would at least be something."

The telephone bell dragged her from her moorings of despair and a second later her voice held the notes of laughter.

"If there's anything on earth I do want—it's to hear Gersky. I tried to get seats and there wasn't even standing room for two and a half shoes. You newspaper men get all the perquisites. A box? Oh, Tommy, you are a perfect dear. Yes, I will be there sharp at two."

Nadine was a changed being. She radiated joy. Her one great passion was music and now she was to hear the greatest living violinist. It was his one concert of the year in the city. Nadine almost felt that she could return Tommy's devotion so overjoyed was she at the pleasure he was giving her.

Nadine felt that she could hardly breathe as she took her seat beside Tommy in the vast hall.

Nadine and Tommy were in the stage box and were chatting or rather Tommy was chatting until a sudden swift silence fell and the curtains parted.

There seemed a moment when not a soul drew breath. That was the moment when the slight, pale-faced master of the violin stood before his worshipers. Then, a thundering applause broke forth before he was permitted to draw his bow.

Is there anything more exquisitely satisfying to the emotions than the soft murmurings, fluttering and wailing sadness of the violin when played by a master hand? The soul drifts away to a realm of dreams where the flesh may not follow.

Nadine was not conscious of anything save Gersky and his violin. The audience was just one mass of face all merged into an intensity of enjoyment, united in a bondage of music by the frail ethereal creature on the platform.

Nadine's eyes had not left the master's face since the moment of his appearance.

Then, the stupendous thing that had held her in its grip seemed suddenly to spring forth.

Nadine, for the remainder of the days never ceased to give thanks for the sudden force that dragged her eyes away from the master for one fleeting second. But in that second she saw, in the box opposite a stealthy head holding something that shone.

There was not even the fraction of a second's hesitation in Nadine's mind.

She flung herself like a flash of lightning over the railing and stumbled against the master.

A sharp report rang out and Nadine fell limply at the feet of him whom her action had saved.

The curtains flung swiftly together. Out in the vast hall, panic would have ensued, but the man who had fired the shot was instantly caught and bound.

It was evident that a dastardly attempt had been made on the greatest of living violinists and that only the quick action of some one had saved him.

The audience waited, in suspense. It seemed as if an age passed before the curtain drew back and Gersky himself stood before them. His white hand held firmly to the heavy curtain. His voice, when it came, was firm, but with an effort.

"A young lady," he said with deep emotion, "has saved my life. She insists upon my telling you that she is not badly hurt. The bullet went straight through her right lung. A doctor is already in attendance. I regret that anyone has suffered on my account—I cannot—say—more."

As Nadine lay in the hospital there was a beatific smile constantly in her eyes and on her lips, as if she were in constant communion with an unseen lover.

When Gersky arrived in the afternoon, his arms were full of red roses. He dropped down beside Nadine and pressed his lips to the white hand on the coverlet.

"Why, oh, why did you do it?" he questioned brokenly, his eyes resting, as if upon an angel, on her face.

Nadine looked wonderingly back at him.

"It was the most glorious moment of my life," she told him. "Don't you realize that I am only an atom and that you are the greatest violinist the world has ever known? You give happiness to music starved souls throughout the length and breadth of the world. They would all mourn if you were to pass out while I—"

The master's soft, sensitive fingers covered Nadine's lips.

In that slight action there was more of the heart's language than in a thousand words.

A slow, beautiful flush crept into Nadine's cheeks.

There are moments when the soul is too full of happiness for words. Such a moment had come to Nadine and Gersky.

Her Last Customer

By JOSEPHINE S. BROOKS

McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

TO ANNE LINDSEY it seemed unusually lonely at so late an hour that evening. What a goose she was to recall the fear her friends had expressed for her.

"Don't stay late alone," they had always warned. Hugh, especially, had made her promise to go home early at least until he returned, then he could come after her. Then he had added softly, "And some day, when I get promoted, there won't be any lateful tea rooms; together we will care for your invalid mother and little Stella."

Anne began getting things in order for the night. Somehow she wished she had kept the maid a little later. But she was so young.

Well, she must lower her curtains and secure her money and go home.

"Wha-at's that?" she whispered.

Softly the door was pushed open and a young man entered. He might have stepped from the underworld—a fellow with the slouch cap, defiant swing of the arms and the stealthy rat-like tread.

She would be game. He should never see how frightened she was.

"Hello, goiley! Gimme a drink—coffee, anything." He slouched into a chair.

"It's—closing hour—nothing hot," she began.

"Try it—may be."

It was hot. She drew a cup and, as if to appease him, she produced a plate of biscuits.

"Make it snappy, miss," he warned. "Boil an egg or two. I've got a job—a big one—on tonight. Didja hear?"

"Ye-es. It's too bad you have to work nights," she ventured.

He broke into a low chuckle. "Now ain't it? Say," between mouthfuls of food and gulps of coffee, "you are too pretty to work so late alone! Tain't safe. Thugs, you know." Another moaning chuckle.

He caught a glimpse of Anne's small diamond ring.

"H'm! So you are some man's property already."

Anne convulsively closed her hand. Then a sudden idea came.

"Yes, he is due here—now—to come after me."

She tried to silence her conscience for the lie. Hugh was far away. Oh, for a sight of Hugh Sanborn!

"Well, in that case I'd better hustle. Two's company, you know." He rose and went towards her as she looked up to the farther counter.

"Now, young lady, no doubt you've guessed from my evening clothes I ain't no Rockabilt." He looked down at his shabby clothes and chuckled again. "So please hand over your coin. Don't trouble to count it. I can do that."

"But you wouldn't rob a poor young woman with a mother who has not walked for eight years, and with a young sister?"

"It don't go down, goiley. They all say it."

Then Anne straightened in righteous indignation.

"You shall not take the very bread out of their mouths"—at the look in his eyes she added, "That is, until you hear my story. Please sit down. No, I'll not run. I'll sit at the table."

She went on to say how her father had died suddenly, leaving her with all the care. "You've had a mother"—she saw the man wince a little—"perhaps a little easier—"

Into the man's eyes crept a tinge of sadness. Only for a second, then he shook himself into his former rough self.

"That mother and—and sister stuff don't go any more with our profession, sis. Overworked. Hand out your money."

Tremblingly, Anne emptied out the money and laid it on the table. Then she bowed down her head and cried: "What will they do?"

The man watched her. He counted the money, then he did a strange thing. He took from his pocket a $20 bill and shoved the whole pile toward her.

"Here, goiley, you bring true. Swag comes easy. This is all yours."

The door was softly opening. Hugh Sanborn entered.

Anne, about to leap toward him, heeded the warning of the young man's eyes and a secretly levelled revolver.

He rose. Anne said, "Hugh, this is my last customer. I'm nearly ready." She laughed tremulously.

The fellow slouched off into the night. "You've said it, Anne; he is your last customer. We get married right away. It's not safe here with guys like him. Lucky I came."

"Oh—he's—all right." Then, soberly, "Oh, Hugh, I'll take such good care of you." Hugh looked inquiringly. "Why, of course you will, little goose. How have you done today?"

"Oh, things have turned out much better than I expected." She laughed blissfully.

PREPARED against emergencies . . . big or little

A squirrel is perhaps the last thing you'd think of as a menace to telephone service . . . but he can do a lot of damage by gnawing through the lead sheathing of a telephone cable. To guard against damage from punctures, many cables are kept filled with gas. The instant gas escapes, the lowering pressure automatically sounds an alarm in a central office. The location of the break is determined within a few feet, and often the damage is repaired without interruption of your service. Whether the emergency is large or small, this Company is prepared to protect telephone communication, a vital factor in national defense.

INFLATION OR TAXES

There seems to be a belief prevalent that national defense and our immediate future can be financed in one of two ways only—that there must be a choice between inflation leading to bankruptcy, such as the Germans went through soon after the last war, and taxes so heavy that they will soon bring the standard of living to a very low point even in this high standard country.

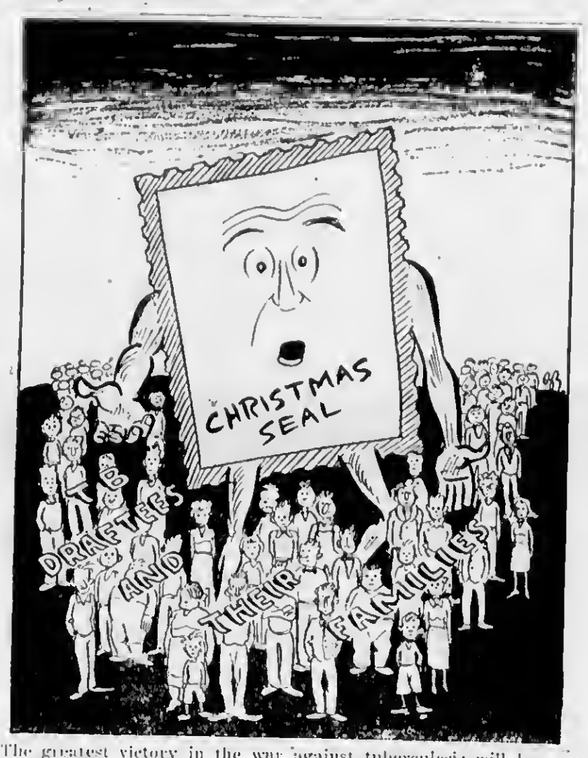
But can there not be a happy medium which combines both? If the works of defense get us started in the matter of production, is it not possible that the natural increase in the national income caused by the increase in productive labor and in the circulation of money may render the higher taxes less burdensome? Surely it is easier to pay $100 of income tax than $10—because the lower amount comes out of an income which barely covers necessities, while the higher one comes out of income which covers necessities adequately and leaves margin for luxuries.

The catch in this cheerful thought is that the productive labor goes in such large measure for means of destruction, with certain trouble to follow. But not all the employment is for armament. When money circulates freely, means of comfort and pleasure are made and bought as well. It does seem, too, as if, forewarned, some means might be devised for turning the machinery of production over to the uses of peace without the horrible jars and depressions of the past.

SOBER DRIVING

"The highways have become slaughter houses of drunken driving" says the president of the Anti-Saloon League. But that is not noticeable around here. There are, of course, too many alcoholic accidents. One in any locality is one more than there ought to be. But most drivers go safely and soberly on their lawful occasions. If it were not so most people would be afraid to buy new cars or to drive their old ones.

LEND A HAND



The greatest victory in the war against tuberculosis will be won by the people of Michigan this year if new tuberculosis cases, found through physical examination of draftees, are promptly hospitalized. The tuberculosis Christmas Seal asks your aid in this fight.

"From 2,000 to 2,600 new cases of tuberculosis may be found this winter among Michigan draftees," stated Colonel Harold A. Furlong, chief of the medical division of selective service in Michigan as he urged support of the tuberculosis defense program sponsored by Christmas seal funds.

"Every man found to have active tuberculosis, and his family, will be in need of specialized attention," the Colonel continued. "Tuberculosis associations, voluntarily supported by the people, will see to it that tuberculin testing and x-ray clinics are made available to families of these men and that adequate sanatorium care will also be available. These activities are an added strain on the association, and it is important that we buy more Christmas seals this year than ever before," Colonel Furlong added.

"So that tuberculosis among draftees will be discovered before admission into service, each man will have a chest x-ray upon entering and upon leaving army training," the army officer went on. "Men in camps will be in close contact with each other, and we can take no chances on any of them having such a contagious disease as tuberculosis.

"The physical activity of army life is so much greater than in civil life, that a man with even a minimal lesion in one lung would not last long," concluded Colonel Furlong. "For the safety of the individual as well as the entire army, we must be sure that all tuberculosis cases are rejected."

A tank of alcohol in the human frame together with a tank of gasoline in the car make a combination fraught with danger to driver, passengers and pedestrians. But the young appear to be learning the hazards of these mixtures. Elders who are careless with them are losing their driving licenses in many communities. There is still too much drunken driving, as well as crazy, show-off driving. But by far the great majority of cars go safely, quietly and directly on their appointed ways.

TIMBER BLOWN DOWN BY STORM TO BE SALVAGED

Sale by Conservation Department Is Being Prepared

Salvaging of timber on state-owned lands in northern Michigan which was blown down in the Armistice day storm is being expedited by the conservation department.

Local conservation officers will report down timber which can be salvaged on state lands not included in state forests, game areas and other administered units, and will recommend prices at which such timber should be sold. Prices will be determined by local demand and difficulty of salvaging. Approval of such timber sales, in excess of $100, is given by the conservation commission.

Because most sales are for lesser amounts, local officers will be able to secure quick authorization of salvage operations.

SAGINAW HUNTER EARNS HIS BEAR COUPLE TIMES

Forced to Go Into Justice Court to Obtain Possession

A Saginaw hunter is taking home a bear he acquired twice—once in the woods north of McMillan and again in court when Justice Fred W. Becks ruled that the man who kills a bear should have it, even though another has wounded it a mile back along the trail.

Lawrence Schroeder is the Saginaw hunter who said he stopped the bear with four shots. Then, he said, three Pontiac hunters appeared, claimed a shot fired farther back along the trail by one of their party had killed the animal, and took it to their camp.

With a writ of replevin, and for $9 court costs, Schroeder got the bear.

COMMUNICATION

"A 'shot at random' and I hope it hits something. Dogs everywhere! This town is literally 'going to the dogs.'

"A well known summer resident said: 'I never saw so many detestible dogs. Why doesn't the city do something about it?' I told her why. Do you know, Fellow Citizen, that a dog is more important in this town than you are? A man can buy a license that will permit his dog to run anywhere, on anyone's property and destroy anything he wishes and the owners have no come-back. You can't buy a license for yourself like that.

"City officials say there is an ordinance on record that prohibits a dog from running on anyone else's property unless he is on a leash and with his master. Why isn't that law enforced?

"Last spring a notice was in the paper that all dogs found running loose would be shot. I wonder if the gun jammed? Anyway, the dogs are still in evidence—killing chickens, pet cats and rabbits, destroying shrubbery and gardens all summer, sprinkling milk bottles and porch pillows, and even biting children—but of course, they don't count. Even the roses in Charlevoix don't smell like roses any more!

"Last week a dog came in our yard and killed our pet cat. The police say there is nothing they can do. Perhaps the cave man's method wasn't so bad after all. At least he could fight for his own property and he wasn't paying for the protection he didn't get.

"From now on my gun will be loaded and waiting for any dog I find destroying my property."

Elizabeth Trimble.

TO CONSECRATE AND SANCTIFY OUR COMRADESHIP BY OUR DEVOTION TO MUTUAL HELPFULNESS

—From the Preumble to the Constitution of The American Legion

A never-failing interest in comradeship is found wherever there is an American Legion Post. From the day in 1919 that it found our war-disabled suffering for lack of hospital care—to the present when it looks to the care of the whole child—it commands respect by its exemplification of the spirit of helpfulness.

Working devotedly together for a worthy cause naturally drows people closely together. We started this comradeship in 1917 and thanks to the organizers of our American Legion the good work is still going on. We are not merely currying on in a routine manner but are serving in an ever widening and deepened sphere of influence.

Aid for sick and disabled veterans, help for widows and children of our buddies who have answered the last summons, child welfare in all its phases, employment for veterans, Sons of the Legion, boys' state, junior baseball, Americanism program, program to further education, legislative program for betterment of community, state, and national laws, disaster relief—these are some of the many worthwhile activities the Legion is carrying on. The degree of your participation in these services is a good measure of your devotion to mutual helpfulness. Let's all volunteer our services with enthusiasm and serve intelligently.

after an eighty-minute conference with President Roosevelt."

"Clear Mandate"

Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, observes:

"The impression which seems to prevail among Britons here (Washington) is that the election gave Mr. Roosevelt a clear mandate to render the fullest sort of such aid to the Empire, and that Lord Lothian can properly proceed on this interpretation."

While the Marquess of Lothian, his Britannic Majesty's present ambassador to Washington, says frankly that Britain is reaching the end of her credits in the United States, here is what Sir Cecil Spring-Rice wrote to Secretary Lansing on July 1, 1917, in the similar capacity of British ambassador to Washington.

He declared that the financial position of Great Britain was "of an urgent and critical character . . . There is danger that the ability of His Majesty's government to effect payments in America from today onward will be in jeopardy . . . A collapse of the exchange will be no less disastrous than a great military reverse."

It was our own ambassador to London, Walter Hines Page, who wrote one month before we entered the war in 1917: "Perhaps our going to war is the only way in which our present prominent trade position can be maintained and a panic averted . . . All the money would be kept in our own country, trade would be continued and enlarged until the war ends, and after the war Europe would continue to buy food and would buy from us also an enormous supply of things to re-equip her peace industries."

Reaction to Propaganda

Sir Sidney Rogerson in his book, "Propaganda and the Next War," published in 1938, pointed out:

"In the next war, as in the last, the result will probably depend upon the way in which the United States acts, and her attitude will reflect the reaction of her public to propaganda properly applied."

The following statement is attributed to the late Lord Northcliffe:

"England spent $150,000,000 for propaganda purposes in the United States during the war, and I consider that money spent to greater advantage than any equal amount during the entire conflict." (It was admitted in the House of Commons that Northcliffe's paid publicity agents in the United States numbered some 1,500.)

Because he frankly opposes the United States entering the war, Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, American envoy at London, has been accused of being a "defeatist propagandist." Kennedy made this statement one year ago—Dec. 12, 1939—in the Church of the Assumption in Boston, Mass.:

"There is no place in this fight for us. It's going to be bad enough as it is. As you love, America, don't let anything that comes out of any country in the world make you believe you can make a situation one whit better by getting into the war . . . There is no reason—economic, financial, or social—to justify the United States entering the war."

Our Economic Stake

John D. Biggers, secretary of the national defense commission, recently said that our own government's arms contracts, totaling $12,500,000,000, include a third of a billion dollars in allocation to Michigan industrial plants. British arms awards, such as the machine gun plant near Plymouth (in Wayne county), will swell this total.

Economic maps and charts for the nation, such as the Business Week feature, invariably show Michigan to be a "bright" spot.

This state is enjoying an unusual prosperity.

Christmas retail sales are climbing upward.

Alfred Sloan, General Motors magnate, terms the boom "synthetic."

We present the above interpretative picture at the risk of being subjected to "name-calling"—a fifth columnist, a defeatist propagandist, and so on. And so pardon a personal note. It was in 1758 that our family forefathers, two brothers, fled from Germany to America to escape German oppression. They fought as Americans in the Revolutionary war. In 1917 we enlisted on our 18th birthday, served overseas in England and France, and returned home after 19 months of military service.

We desire to repeat an earlier observation: Michigan is getting more than the average state, an economic stake in war trade. Let us think calmly of the possible consequences while there is still time to do so.

Michigan Farmer

The 1939 income of the Michigan farmer was 93 per cent of the 1929 income.

Our state ranked 12th in point of percentages of the 18 states.

And this in spite of the fact that agricultural commodities in general dropped 63 per cent in prices from 1929 to 1933 while production declined only 6 per cent. Michigan's agricultural diversity — fruit, vegetables, grain and livestock—and its climatical benefits of security from drouth all have made the Michigan farmer better off than the average American farmer—believe it or not!

Michigan-grown onions, for example, are prized highly in eastern markets. This year's crop was of bumper proportions. A surplus has accumulated.

Hence the success of the federal food stamp program and the proposed extension to serve 5,000,000 consumers is of potential importance to Michigan producers of food. The Michigan Food Council, comprising producers, retailers and distributors, is supporting this stamp plan actively.

Briefly, it is this: The government gives to relief clients 50 cents worth of blue stamps, good in any co-operating grocery, for any foodstuff officially designated as surplus, for each $1 worth of orange stamps which the client buys from his relief funds. The limit is $1 a person per week.

It is a federal subsidy to stimulate consumption of surplus commodities among the so-called "ill-fed" third of our population.

Extension of the foodstamp plan in 1941 would provide new markets for more than $10,000,000 worth of surplus farm crops each month.

The Michigan farmer, well off as he is on a comparative basis, has an interest in this new form of unemployment relief. Despite mounting arms contracts and a reported shortage of skilled workers, relief rolls have not shown a marked tendency to decline. The problem is still here.

You May Soon be Able to Run Your Car on Molasses

An article in The American Weekly with the December 8 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, discloses how science—at last—has found a practical way to make gasoline and oil out of growing crops and has thus got a substitute engine fodder to take the place of nature's fast-vanishing petroleum reserves — and from sugar cane, of all things! Be sure to get The Detroit Sunday Times.

Working Toward a New Day

A NEW note of understanding has come into the American Public's thoughts concerning the railroads.

It is now recognized that the coming of new forms of transportation has brought about disruption of the normal transportation situation. These new agencies must be properly fitted into the nation's distribution system if the best interests of the public are to be served. And certainly that program must include attention to the present disordered and unfair regulation requirements under which the railroads are the worst sufferers.

Armed with this new sympathy, the public in recent years has sought to rectify this injustice. Congress, in 1935, and the various states have passed laws to this end. This year Congress enacted the so-called Transportation Act of 1940.

But much additional progress along this line must be made before the railroads are on a parity with their competitors. To achieve equality will not harm other forms of transportation; is no more than justice requires; and definitely will be in the public interest.

Our members of the Michigan legislature and our representatives in Congress are urged to exercise justice, fairness and common sense in considering any legislation intended to bring equality into our transportation industry.

Ice Fishing Time

Already fishermen are moving shanties onto the ice which covers Michigan's shallower lakes. Taking of large and smallmouth bass is legal until January 1. Other important species until March. Local conservation officers supply information concerning special regulations governing fishing in their territories. Ice of deeper northern lakes, such as Crystal and Charlevoix seldom attains thickness that assures safety until late in January.

DR. CHAPMAN APPEALS XMAS SEAL SUPPORT

United Front Against Disease Important in Program

"A united front against disease is an important part of national as well as local programs at this time," stated Dr. W. M. Chapman, county health director, today as he urged that people return the money for the annual tuberculosis Christmas seals sent out by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

"We expect physical examinations to show from one to three per cent of all draftees tuberculous which means that the financial demands on the Michigan Tuberculosis Association will be heavier than they have ever been before," continued Dr. Chapman. "In buying Christmas seals we can all have a part in fighting the most deadly of the diseases of young people."

Tuberculosis takes the lives of more people between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other sickness. In Charlevoix county 6 persons died from tuberculosis last year. It is difficult to control because it undermines the health of its victim and germs are spread to others before any outward symptoms can be seen. Tuberculosis can be discovered in its early stages only by the x-ray. To do this the Michigan Tuberculosis Association holds x-ray clinics throughout the state.

"During 1939 a total of 83 county residents received x-rays in the clinic held by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association," said Dr. Chapman. This work and the health educational program that the association carries on throughout the year are supported entirely by the annual tuberculosis Christmas seal sale in which all of us can participate."

FORMER STATE FERRIES ON ATLANTIC SEABOARD

Are Put Into Service Ferrying Supplies and Navy Personnel

Two former Michigan-owned ferries sold to the government have arrived for duty at two Atlantic seaboard harbors.

The Mackinaw City and the St. Ignace, once used in service across the Straits of Mackinaw, completed their journey from Detroit to Boston, by way of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river, in about a week. Army officials said the voyage was without incident.

The Mackinaw City will ferry supplies and personnel of Boston Harbor defense ports and forts, and the St. Ignace will be assigned to similar service in New York harbor.

TRAVERSE CITY WILL HAVE RADIO STATION

Construction Started Following Approval From Washington

Construction work on Traverse City's new radio station will be started immediately following receipt of word at Traverse Friday afternoon by officials of the Midwestern Broadcasting Company that their station site has been approved by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington.

The station site is located in Leelanau county just northwest of the county line road and adjacent to the Ford Cary property. Mr. Beiderman said that the site is approximately two miles by air from the downtown district.

Construction work on the station, which will house the transmitting equipment, will be started as soon as possible, Mr. Biederman stated, depending upon the weather conditions. He estimated that work would be completed and the station ready to begin broadcasting within from three to four weeks.

Studios and business offices of the station are located in the Anderson building on East Front street.

ELK HERD REDUCED BY SHOOTING VIOLATIONS

Expect Number Shot Illegally This Year Will Reach Ten

Michigan's elk herd, scattered thru several counties near the tip of the lower peninsula, has apparently suffered more heavily during the present deer season than in previous years.

Number of the animals shot illegally by hunters this season may reach 10. Three illegal kills were reported during the 1939 deer season.

Stiff penalties for killing elk — $100 to $500 fines and jail sentences of from 90 days to one year—may be imposed upon conviction.

An estimated 300 to 400 elk in Cheboygan, Otsego, Presque Isle and Montmorency counties are the offspring of a herd of 30 animals released in the Pigeon River area in 1918. The original herd was made up of animals secured at Jackson Hole, Wyoming, and from various parks and zoos. Native Michigan elk apparently disappeared about 60 years ago.

AT THE MOVIES

Norma Shearer, Robert Taylor in Palace Hit!

The new romantic and dramatic team of Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor makes its first film appearance in "Escape," picturization of the Ethel Vance best-seller which opens December 7 at the Palace Theatre for a two day engagement.

Surroundin gthese two stars is a "name" cast of almost unprecedented brilliance, including Conrad Veidt, star of European films; silent film star, Nazimova; Felix Bressart and Albert Bassermann, who were outstanding figures of the Continental stage; Philip Dorn, young Dutch leading man; Bonita Granville, Edgar Barrier, Elsa Basserman and Blanche Yurka.

"The Great Profile" Stars the Comedian Barrymore

Fortified with an almost inexhaustible supply of humorous antics, John Barrymore stars with his repertoire of bowling histrionics in "The Great Profile." The picture, which comes December 11 and 12 to the Palace Theatre, is a hilarious creation keyed to catch the madcap Barrymore at his best. From the opening scene, it's funny!

Mary Beth Hughes, blonde and beautiful young player, heads the featured cast. In her role as the great profile's nagging wife she is said to be a veritable bombshell. Others reported to turn in fine performances are Gregory Ratoff, John Payne, Anne Baxter and Lionel Atwill. Walter Lang directed and Raymond Griffith served as associate producer. The original screen play was written by Milton Sperling and Hilary Lynn.

"Night Train" Blends Romance and Suspense

Deftly blending romance, laughter and excitement, "Night Train" opens at the Palace Theatre. Margaret Lockwood and Rex Harrison started together in the romantic leads, sure handsomely in this new 20th Century-Fox release.

The lady, Margaret Lockwood, is in distress right at the start when her father, a brilliant inventor, is hounded by foreign agents for a secret formula. And when Margaret meets handsome and suave Rex Harrison, a gentleman of many identities, the suspensive drama sweeps into a series of thrilling scenes.

A strong supporting cast is headed by Paul von Hernreid. Maurice Ostrer was in charge of production for "Night Train" which was produced by Edward Black and directed by Carol Reed.

ULRICH HOME IS DAMAGED IN SMALL FIRE TUESDAY

The fire department was called to the residence of Alden Ulrich, 110 East Upright, on Tuesdny afternoon when the overheated chimney of a heating stove set fire to ceiling joists. The flames hurned along the joists to the outside wall of the house, doing considerable damage to an upstairs bedroom.

Fire Causes Small Damage

Fire in the See apartment occupied by William DeWitt destroyed two pieces of over-stuffed furniture Sundny evening. A small amount of damage from water was caused in the Gamble store, located on the first floor beneath the apartment.

BIGGER RED CROSS

Early response to the Red Cross roll call indicates that the 1940 campaign is bringing in more members and larger contributions than last year's. This shows both approval of the work of the Red Cross and recognition of greater need of its helpful services.

As more people receive its prompt ministration, more are glad to contribute to its work. People in this part of the world are keenly aware also of suffering and disaster elsewhere. They show a growing sense of responsibility toward the work of all agencies doing constructive relief wherever it is needed.

One reformer declares that "we should pass a law permitting only the mentally capable to vote." We have a picture of politicinns passing a law like that.

TO ASK MANY GAME, FISH LAW CHANGES

DEPARTMENT PROPOSALS GO TO STATE LEGISLATURE

Power to Open Season on Antlerless Deer, Close Whitefish Fishing, Other Changes to Be Sought

Conservation problems of the biennium which face the incoming Michigan legislature involve not only difficult decisions about the future of the state's deer herd and Great Lakes fisheries, but include also some necessary attention to the woodchuck, the opossum, and the careless small game hunter.

The conservation commission is asking discretionary power to open the season on antlerless deer in regions where the winter food has been so diminished by overbrowsing as to endanger the survival of herds occupying the barren yards. To check the alarming slump in whitefish catches by the state's commercial fishermen, the commission supports the drastic proposal to suspend the taking of whitefish for five years, and will seek cooperation of other states bordering the lakes on a joint ban.

Now that the upland game bird population has been judged able to take it, by the conservation department's game division, the commission is recommending extension of the upland game bird season to 30 days. To take advantage of advances of modern refrigeration, extension of the time after the season close when game may be in possession is suggested also.

With deaths and accidents among small game hunters equalling or exceeding those among deer hunters, extension of the five-years-without-a-license penalty to the careless rabbit and bird hunters is urged. The part-year protection of opossum and woodchuck proposed is in recognition of the place of these lowly creatures in the game scheme.

Among new sport fishing proposals are stricter creel and season limits on panfish and limitation of trollers' rainbow and lake trout catch by weight.

Some conservation clubs are advocating extension of the requirement of a sport fishing license to Great Lakes waters. Individual legislators are expected to propose numerous other changes.

MORE WOMEN ENJOYING SPORT OF ANGLING

Institute of Fisheries Research Reports Heavy Increase

More Michigan women are enjoying the sport of angling, the institute for fisheries research reports after scanning the creel census records of last year.

Of the anglers interviewed by conservation officers on patrol during 1939, 11.6 per cent were women. This compares with 6.8 per cent among those interviewed in 1938, and 7.5 per cent among those interviewed in 1937. For some time the institute staff has suspected the number of ladies among the interviewees should have been larger, and intimated a year ago that the officers may have been a bit shy about approaching the fairer anglers.

Last year the ladies interviewed were only half as good at fishing trout streams as the men, getting 0.4 trout per hour to the men's 0.8 fish per hour. For lake fishing the difference was not so great, the women lagging 0.2 behind the men whose catch per hour averaged 1.1 fish.

The year's survey i smade up of more than 32,000 individual catch records.

REA HAS 1500 HOMES CONNECTED IN AREA

Present Unfinished Work to Provide for 900 More Patrons

During the storm that swept this area the Rural Electrification Co-operative Company with headquarters at Boyne City, lost only two poles, Roy Hardy, superintendent said last Tuesday, and although many minor repairs were necessary, all was in working order the beginning of last week.

In three allotments in approximately three years, the total money involved in the REA set-up now approaches a million dollars and from a small beginning the company now has 565 miles of line built and energized and 300 more miles under construction in Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego, Antrim, Kalkaska, Cheboygan, Montmorency and Grand Traverse counties.

About 1500 rural homes and cottages are now being served and about 100 more will be served when the present construction is completed. An allotment for the construction of 22 miles of line in Charlevoix county to the Lake Louise district and 84 miles to be built in southern Otsego and Crawford counties, is pending in Washington, Hardy said.

Should the allotment be granted, it is proposed this construction will begin in the spring and its completion will service an additional 400 homes. This would jump the total of homes served to upwards of 2800 and will raise the amount of money spent in nine counties to more than a million dollars over a period of three years.

Hardy said a rough estimate of monthly billing by the co-operative company was at present $5600. A portion of this is used to meet overhead and a portion goes for the payment of interest and principal on the loan. The loan, he pointed out is scheduled to be paid off in 25 years. These payments must be made, he said, and stressed that when construction is completed the amount of billing will more than double. He made it very clear that the co-op is a non profit organization and that when the loan is paid off rates will be lowered, service improved, until the company is owned by its members and operates with a comfortable financial margin to meet emergencies.—Boyn Citizen.

At the turn of the century, total motor-vehicle production in this country was 4,192 cars, not enough to serve the needs of a small city today. It is estimated that four and one-quarter million motor vehicles will be produced by United States factories in 1940.

The motorist today can buy three new cars for the price he used to pay for one.

DEATH RATIO IS HIGH ON FARMS

Accidental Fatalities Outnumber Industrial Fields.

By S. H. McCRORY

Farming may not seem a hazardous occupation, but accident studies of farms and other occupational groups reveal a higher ratio of accidental deaths on the farm than elsewhere. In a recent year, fatal accidents in agriculture numbered 4,500 compared with 2,300 in manufacturing and 2,300 in construction activities.

United States department of agriculture studies of farm accidents show one reason they are more serious is that the victim is likely to be working alone. A factory worker caught in a lathe usually has a fellow workman nearby who can cut off the power. But a farmer caught in a power take-off of a tractor, attacked by a bull, or kicked by a horse, is likely to be alone. Farm machinery manufacturers are equipping more and more machinery with protective devices, and the safety of old models may be improved by having parts put on them.

Among other causes found conducive to farm accidents are the need for haste in the rush seasons, which often means working after dark or with makeshift repairs, and occasional attempts to use "home-made" electric wiring.

A recent study in Kansas of fatal farm accidents showed that on the average 29 per cent of the deaths were caused by machinery, 20 per cent by animals, 12 per cent by excessive heat, 3 per cent by vehicles, 9 per cent from falls, 5 per cent by lightning, and 17 per cent from other causes.

Most of the farm accidents could be avoided if the farmer is his own "safety inspector" in seeing that neither he nor his employees take chances.

Present-Day Farmer Fixes Own Machinery

The passing of the blacksmith shop in many farm communities has made it necessary for farmers themselves to do much of the repair and maintenance work on their machinery. Many of them have sought practical instruction from their county agent or other workers in the federal and state extension service. Some communities have held machinery repair schools.

Farmers in 30,000 communities last year sought assistance along this line and in the field of agricultural engineering. County agents report the subjects of most importance to farmers are those of machinery repair, irrigation, terracing, and farm building.

Almost 80,000 farmers reported that they followed extension service recommendations in constructing new buildings, while 85,000 were assisted by county agents and engineers in planning repairs and remodeling. In co-operation with the bureau of agricultural engineering, the extension service has compiled building plans suitable to the Middle West and the Northeast. These plans are available through county agents. Similar publications are being prepared for the South and West.

County extension agents gave information or assistance on installation of 8,800 sewage systems, 15,000 water systems, and 101,300 lighting systems, principally in farm homes. Work of this type is a part of the broad extension program to improve rural health and living conditions.

20-Year Records Aid In Study of Holsteins

Twenty years of production records show many interesting trends in the Holstein-Friesian herd at the agricultural research center, Beltsville, Md.

The records shuw that, on the average, larger cows produce more butterfat. There have been some notable exceptions in the herd, however. For example, one cow averaging only 1,255 pounds made a 715-pound butterfat record, and another cow weighing 1,516 pounds made only 451 pounds of butterfat.

Study of the relation between age of parents and sex of their offspring gave no conclusive results, although where dams of all ages were mated to one sire there was some indication that the proportion of female progeny increased with the age of the dam.

Pink Eye in Cattle

Pink eye in cattle, which results in serious loss in condition and weight of the animal affected with this disease, is undoubtedly caused by a combination of factors. It is generally considered that pink eye is caused by pollen grain and dust scratching the eyeballs, allowing infective organisms to enter. However, there is a possibility that cattle running on a dried up pasture may be suffering from lack of vitamin A.

No doubt some of our local hunters who put in a greater portion of the deer season in the upper peninsula or some well known eastern section without seeing hide nor hair of a buck, will be interested in the fact that Guy Pearl last Thursday jumped six deer, of which two were bucks, just north of town. They started a big one out of the Cooper swamp near Oyster bay, and trailed him down through Camp Charlevoix and to points east; jumped a spike-horn at the east end of Mahoney swamp and near that place saw four more. That's not bad going for one afternoon!

One-sided Proposition!

Wife: "We have been married a year and never quarrel. If a difference of opinion arises, and I am right, my husband gives in."

Friend: "But what if he is right?"

Wife: "That hasn't occurred yet."

Carelessness with a gun is a serious matter now days, even if the carrier himself is the one injured. For example, there's the Elsie, Michigan young man whose gun discharged accidentally, shooting off his big toe. That fellow will be deprived of a license for five years.

Ike: "You'll never get rich talking to yourself."

Mike: "Edgar Bergen did!"

Two Charlevoix women were among this city's successful deer hunters, I understand. Mrs. Amos O'Neil, a veteran deer hunter, added another trophy while hunting east of Wolverine, and Mrs. William Taylor filled her license in the Ralph district, Dickinson county. Husband Bill made it 100%; in that family, but "Aim" didn't do so well, I hear.

Lack of space prevented inclusion in this column of a communication by Elizabeth Trimble, who speaks in no uncertain terms her opinion of the dog situation in Charlevoix. Her communication will be found on page 4.

I don't suppose it will be necessary to do any special urging to get the kiddies out for the Christmas party Friday night. Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute favors and bags of candy. Charlevoix merchants are sponsoring the event with cooperation of the city council. Members of the American Legion Auxiliary prepared the candy bags for Old Santa to pass out.

No doubt commercial fishermen will make themselves heard when the conservation department proposes to the next legislature that fishing for whitefish be banned for five years. Looking at the matter from a practical standpoint, commercial fishermen maintain that such a ban would make it impossible to net for lake trout as well, because most netting grounds are common to both species. It might be suggested that when fishermen set trout nets, they put a sign on them: "Whitefish Keep Out." A much better plan would be for the conservation department and former U. S. Bureau of Fisheries (now another department) get together on a plan to restore the discarded plan of hatchery propagation which now is recognized as the most successful method ever used.

Clipped from an old newspaper is this timely article, entitled "Thanksgiving Meal":

Thursday, Nov. 21 — Turkey and stuffings. With gravy.
Friday, 22—Warmed-over turkey.
Saturday, 23—Cold turkey.
Sunday, 24—Stuffings with gravy.
Monday, 25—Just gravy.
Tuesday, 26—Turkey hash.
Wednesday, 27—Turkey croquets.
Thursday, 28—Pickled turkey wattles.
Friday, 29—Turkey tors en casserole.
Saturday, 30—Turkey feathers a la mode.
Sunday, Dec. 1—An autographed picture of the turkey.

At this point, says the writer, the wife waves the frying pan three times around her head and yells, "Hooray! There ain't no more turkey!" Nothing can last forever, not even a Thanksgiving dinner.

With organization practically completed, Charlevoix's indoor baseball league, formed to provide athletic activity for business men during the winter, will get into action Tuesday evening, December 10.

As originally planned, the league will be made up of eight teams and the initial session will be devoted to organizing the teams, choosing captains and arranging a winter's schedule.

Ray Kipke and "Bill" Supernaw, who engineered the plan, request all interested in participation be present at the gymnasium next Tuesday night. Contests will be scheduled for each Tuesday and Thursday evening during the remainder of the winter.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

It isn't what you do, but how you do it.
That makes this world worth going through it.

This is especially true at Christmas time. The smile, the cheer and the gayety of the season are at their best when the spirit of Christmas good will is behind them. Why not decorate your home, even if you have only a single wreath on your door, or a bunch of green tied with a bright ribbon? It inspires the festive spirit, not only in you who put it up, but in those who see it.

The Charlevoix Garden Club is offering two prizes this year for the best outside decorations; one for the best decorated home, another for the best decorated business place. We would like to see every home work with us to make Charlevoix glow with a merry Christmas this holiday season. Everyone can compete for prizes. Judges will be chosen from members of the Board of Commerce.

Judging will take place the night of Sunday, December 22, and prizes will be awarded Tuesday, the 24th.

Why not take pictures of your home decorations this year, both inside and out, and send them to Better Homes and Gardens magazine? You might win the prize they offer! If not, your idea might be printed, and a smaller prize is offered for that.

WINTER PARKING REGULATIONS NOW IN EFFECT

Parking Autos on Streets Banned During Night Hours Until April

Winter parking regulations in Charlevoix became effective Sunday evening, December 1, and will continue until April 1.

The order issued by Police Chief Clarence Heise prohibits the parking of automobiles on any street in the city between the hours of 1 a. m. and 7 a. m., as a means of enabling city snow removal crews to operate more efficiently during the night. Only by strict adherance to the order will it be possible to keep streets free of snow during the winter months.

Police Chief Heise warns car owners that the order will be strictly enforced and asks public cooperation in this respect.

WINTER FISHING SEASON ON SOON

ANGLERS NEED 1941 LICENSES JANUARY 1ST

Spearing Legal With New Year; Other Regulations Governing Sport Are Enumerated

Ice that will support fish shanties has been furnished by the weatherman in some localities ahead af schedule, but spearing on inland waters must await the January 1 season opening, the conservation department is advising Michigan's winter anglers.

Spearing is allowed now on Great Lakes waters, however, and fishing through the ice with hook and line is permitted on inland waters under the same creel, license und senson regulations as summer fishing, with a few exceptions.

Exceptions include the han on taking bluegills and sunfish through the ice at night, from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. EST, and the closing of Berrien, Cass, Branch, St. Joseph and Van Buren county waters to ice fishing by non-residents from January 1 to the last Saturday in April. The two-month spearing season on inland, non-trout waters extends through January and February.

Ice fishermen are limited to the use of two lines and a maximum of four hooks. Until the end of the year they may take largemouth and smallmouth black buss, and the fishing continues for most other species until March.

After December 31, all fishermen on inland waters will need 1941 fishing licenses, but no special license is needed for placing a shanty. CHARLEVOIX LOST FIRST CAGE GAME

DEFEATED 33 TO 21 BY PETOSKEY NORTHMEN

Reserves Dropped Preliminary by 31 to 14 Count—Rayders Play at Harbor Friday Night

Charlevnix's Red Rayder basketball teams lost their initial contests Friday night at Petoskey, the varsity dropping o 33 to 21 decision and the reserves absorbing a 31 to 14 defeat.

The varsity's set-back was not entirely unexpected at the hands of this veteran class B outfit which had already trounced a strong Boyne City combinatinn. Petoskey's morgin of 12 points wns considerably less than the 38 to 15 count by which they won a year ago, however.

Stewart opened the scoring in the early moments, but Petoskey snon drew ahead and were never again in danger. They led 11 to 2 at the first intermission, 17 to 8 at the half and 24 to 13 at the close of the third quarter. Charlevoix gained consistently nfter the first period, but never were able to close the gap.

Stewart, making his first varsity appearance in guard position, led the Rayders with 8 points. Kohler tnllied 6, Carey and Mitchell 3 each and Swanson 1. Harbaugh with 9, Nelson's 8 and Young's 7 points were high for the victors. Nowland and Gengle played part of the contest for Charlevoix, while Petoskey used 12 men.

Petoskey reserves had easy going against Charlevoix second-stringers, leading 19 to 3 at the half. Coach Kipke used Bellinger, Chambers, Hnllett, Stevens, Gallagher, Bissell, Foster, Martin, Rowe and Lusk on his second team line-up.

The Rayders open their conference schedule Friday night at Harbor Springs. They mnke their first home appearance Tuesday evening, December 17, meeting Gaylord on the home hardwood.

NO RECOUNT RUSHTON-STARR ELECTION RACE

NEXT DRAFT CALL ABOUT JANUARY 1

UNOFFICIAL COUNTY QUOTA IS EXPECTED TO BE FOUR

With Eight Volunteers Awaiting Call, Next Allotment Will Be Filled Without Drawing

While the Charlevoix County Draft Board has received no official call for a second allotment from Charlevnix county under the selective service act, it is anticipated the call will he made about January 8.

Likewise no officinl word indicating the number to be inducted is available, but it is believed four will he taken on the basis of information that "four times as many" will be needed for the second allotment.

Assuming these estimates are accurate, volunteers will fill the second quota as was the case in the first when one man was drawn. At the present time eight men have volunteered for service. In the order in which they volunteered and will be drawn they are: Leonard Thomson, Ironton; Thudieus Sidorowicz, Charlevoix; Irviny Crouterfield, Boyne City; Robert Winstone, East Jordan; Robert Blair, East Jordan; Joe Dvornacek, Jr., Charlevoix; George DeSmet, Charlevoix; James Nicboy, Advance.

In this group, George DeSmet is not a registrant, being under the draft age of 21. Regulations do provide, however, that men between 18 and 21 years of age may volunteer for one year of service in the army, navy or marine corps, and will be inducted in the order they volunteer

New regulations provide volunteers may request service in either land or naval forces, even though neither the navy nor marine corps are accepting men for one year's service at the present time. If a registrant signifies navy or marine corps service and his order number is reached, he will be inducted in the army. He will not be drawn ahead of his order number by having volunteered in these branches, however. Men under draft age volunteering in navy or marines are not subject to army induction and must await call from service preferred.

Work of sending out questionnaires and classifying men who have filed questionnaires is going ahead steadily.

Thirty-eight cities, of which Charlevoix is one, have made bids for the base. Let's keep our fingers crossed!

RACCOON AND TRAPPING SEASON COMES TO CLOSE

December 15 Marks End of Legal Trapping in Upper Michigan

Sunday marks the end of the 1940 raccoon season, both for hunting and trapping, and many small 'coons bagged alive by conservation-minded hunters will then be set free to grow into bigger ringtails for next season's nightly sport.

Muskrat and mink trapping also ends Sunday in northern lower Michigan, after closing two weeks earlier in the upper peninsula. It is scheduled to end December 31 in southern lower Michigan, except on the Monroe marshes where an extra month's trapping is being allowed this winter. Badger and skunk trapping continue until January 31 in all of the state.

Hunters afield now are shooting mostly cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hares in seasons that continue until the end of the month in southern lower Michigan, to January 31 in northern lower Michigan, and to March 1 in the upper peninsula. Heavy winter snows are aiding the more exciting and exacting sports of fox and bobcat hunting.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL NEWS

54.5% of County Soil-Building Allowance Earned on 657 Farms In AAA Program

Farmers who cooperate in the Agricultural Conservation Program have been able to earn payments by using approved soil-building practices to build up their soil. A definite soil-building goal is established on every farm participating in the program. This goal represents a maximum payment that may be earned by carrying out soil-building practices. The major practices receiving payment in the county during 1940 include the new seedings of adapted legumes and grasses, application of lime, marl, and commercial fertilizers, green manure crops, and the planting of pine trees.

According to records in the county AAA office, an average of 54.5% of the county soil-building allowance was actually earned by farmers participating in the farm program. Below are listed the various townships in the county showing the per cent of soil-building allowance earned in each township:

Bay 84.1, Boyne Valley 60.3, Chandler 52.7, Charlevoix 60.7, Evangeline 32.2, Eveline 52.8, Hayes 45.1, Hudson 42.3, Marion 66.5, Melrose 40.5, Norwood 56.3, Beaver Island 27.5, South Arm 55.1, Wilson 53.0.

Eighty per cent of the soil-building allowance earned was accomplished through the seeding of adapted grasses and legumes. A total of 4,672 acres of new seedings were planted during 1940 on 657 farms within the county. This figure includes 947 acres of alfalfa, 1958 acres of brome grass and alfalfa, and 1767 acres of clovers and other mixtures.

It is significant that over twice as much brome grass and alfalfa was seeded together than alfalfa alone, due to the greater emphasis placed and the additional credit allowed, through the farm program, for this practice.

It is worthy of mention that over 90,000 pine seedlings were set out on some 50 farms.

EDITORIAL

HOW NEWSPAPERS GROW

Every once in a while a newspaper editor should call the attention of the public to the service that his newspaper performs.

We will not insult the intelligence of our readers, at this time, by imputing to them gross ignorance as to the worth of a progressive newspaper to the people of any given area.

We will point out, very briefly, that a newspaper, attempting to sincerely serve its community, is limited in its undertakings by the amount of cash that the aforesaid community puts into its treasury.

The only way that an honest newspaper makes any money is through the sale of advertising and the payments that subscribers make for the regular receipt of the newspaper.

Regardless of what anybody tells you there are no short cuts, and efforts on the part of a newspaper, to get income from other sources is merely proof that the journal is not a paying proposition.

We are making no complaint. The service that this newspaper is offering to advertisers and the newspaper that it provides for readers meet with splendid response. If by chance the response would be greater it would mean increased obligations on the part of the newspaper in an attempt to improve the service it renders.

DIES ON THE WRONG TRAIL

The House committee investigating un-American activities, often referred to as the Dies committee, has been busy disclosing the results of its investigations.

The chairman, Rep. Dies, is on the right track in attempting to bring to public light the unwarranted efforts of Nazis, Communists and other 'ists' to interfere with the defense program and foreign policies of the United States.

It has been unfortunate that the committee got off to a shaky start a year or so ago, suffering somewhat in the esteem of intelligent citizens because of its poorly authenticated disclosures.

It is equally unfortunate that, at the present time, there seems to be some ilen on the part of Mr. Dies, and some members of his committee, that its function is to replace the regular work of the Department of Justice and other functioning investigating agencies.

FIGHTING TUBERCULOSIS

In the battle against tuberculosis, every citizen can do some front-line fighting, without risk to life or limb, by buying Christmas Seals or Health Bonds.

It is hardly necessary for the Courier to advise its readers to support the efforts of those who lead the attack. Just the same, for what it may be worth, we remind you to join hands with your fellow-man in this struggle against disease.

Gasoline for the average motor vehicle cost $135.75 in 1939, of which 41% was due to gasoline taxes.

THE PRICE WE PAY FOR SPEED

The 1940 death toll from automobile accidents will pass the figures for 1939, when 32,600 individuals were killed in traffic accidents.

This is a high price for a nation to pay for speed but there is no indication that the public thinks the cost is too high. Nearly every motorist takes it for granted that the accidents will miss him, or her, and the procession continues without ceasing.

We have called attention to the persons killed on highways on many occasions and we do not hesitate to do so again although we have not the slightest idea that it will impress the average reader any more than it impresses us.

Speed in transportation is definitely demanded by the average American and our people, as a whole, seem willing to pay the price as long as necessary. In time, no doubt, the fatalities will be reduced but, meanwhile, we pay the price for what we consider as progress.

Offer Soils Engineering

A request for a vote on the type of short course based on soils engineering studies most useful to Michigan engineers is announced by C. L. Allen, professor of civil engineering at Michigan State College. Principal question involves whether the course should be conducted an evening a week for eight weeks or should be a three-day conference operated probably the latter part of January. Soil is the oldest of engineering materials, claims Professor Allen, yet the investigation and study of soil and its behavior from an engineering standpoint is one of the newest phases of the engineering field.

Farm Income Improves

Michigan's farm income in the first nine months of 1940 ranged from 100 to 109 per cent of that obtained by farmers in the state in the same period in 1939, it is announced by the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. Moderate increases in Michigan in September from both crops and livestock is said to be enough to give a 4 per cent increase for the month over that of September, 1939.

Average length of popular species of fish taken by lake fishermen has remained fairly constant, according to conservation department creel census checks, for the last five years. The 1939 measurements are: bluegill, 7.5 inches; yellow perch, 8.1 inches; largemouth bass, 12.8 inches; smallmouth bass, 13 inches; and northern pike, 20.6 inches.

AXIS ATTACK UPON ENGLAND

The first evidence we have seen in a long time to indicate that there may be an attempted invasion of Great Britain came over the air the other day when an official Rome radio announced that "the Axis powers have abandoned their plnns for the defeat of Great Britain through actnal invasion."

For mnny weeks, nfter the fall of France, there was much talk about invading Great Britain and even Hitler advised the British to be patient, because he was coming. The talk, as might be expected, was not backed up by an invasion and some commentators in this country pointed out that if the Axis powers were plnnning an invasion they would not sny so.

Now, we have a definite Axis dcclaration that no invasion is contemplated. Thus, it appears, the thought is in the minds of the Axis powers and the aerial announcement is designed to mislead the opposition.

FHA SERVES AT A PROFIT

The resignation of Stewart McDonald as Federal Housing Commissioner calls to mind his stntement that the FHA has insured loans on small bomes in excess of $2,500,000,000 with a loss ratio of only two-hundredths of one per cent.

Moreover, through insurance premiums and inspection fees the program was conducted nt a profit, which during the present fiscal year should be in excess of $9,000,000, nfter payment of all expenses and deduction for all losses.

These are interesting figures because they demonstrate that the effort of the government to help thousands of Americans to finance their homes has not been a financial failure. It denitely shows that private enterprise, if nlert nnd anxious for investment, could have done the joh at a profit.

EXCESS OF MALES DECREASES

Population figures reveal that the excess of males over females in this country is declining and in about five years we will have a female majority.

In 1910, census figures recorded an excess of 2,692,288 males. This went down to 2,090,242 in 1920 and to 1,499,114 in 1930.

It is pointed out that male births average about 105 to 100 female births and that the females have an advantage of about three years in average length of life.

The number of males to die each year is about 787,881 or 155,559 more than femnle deaths. This lead is redneed by the excess of male births, about 56,770 per nnnum.

We attempt no deductions from the figures which carry certain implications in themselves.

SERVING THE EMPIRE

A few weeks ago a physician in Cincinnati, impressed with a medical paper published jointly by six British physicians, addressed a postcard to the six doctors, at Aberdeen, Scotland.

The other day the post card was returned to the American writer, with six notations by British postal officials, explaining why the card had not been delivered. It is interesting to note the explanation:

One doctor was in India, another in China, the third "in Malta with the fleet," the fourth in Greece, the fifth was "last heard of in Norway," and the sixth was in Sydney, Australia.

This postal bears mute evidence of the manner in which these Scotch medical men were serving their country in her extremity. It shows how the war has affected the men of the British empire.

The idea that the United States has given Great Britain vital assistance is true but the stuff has been paid for.

UPPER PENINSULA POTATOES TO OHIO MART

Boatload Shipment of 75,000 Bushels Is Largest On Record

In the early morning hours on Thursday, November 28, a lake steamer, the S. S. Saginaw, lifted anchor at Houghton, Michigan, loaded with 75,000 bushels of Michigan potatoes, the largest single shipment of potatoes in Michigan's history.

This was the ship's last southbound trip of the 1940 season, and it was bound for Cleveland, Ohio, to be tied up for the winter months, where it will be used as a warehouse for the distribution of its cargo throughout Cleveland and Ohio.

All of the 75,000 bushels of potatoes in the ship's hold were federal-stnte inspected by Jack Turner, Lake Linden, Department of Agriculture inspector for that territory. Mr. Turner reported that he made 3,000 individual inspections of the cargo before it was loaded.

Because of the cold weather nnd ship restrictions, speed was of the utmost importance in loading the cargo, and 150 men, 7 trucks and 4 conveyors were employed to load the entire shipment in 30 hours. It was necessary that the potatoes, which were in bags, be bulked when loaded on the ship, because of space restrictions, Turner said, and this proved to be the most difficult task of the entire job, due to the care in handling that was necessary to prevent bruising.

The shipment represented the entire crop of two growers, Julian Pelletier and Julius Drake, both of Chassel in Houghton county.

SEEK INSURANCE BENEFITS FOR ROAD EMPLOYES

Road Commissioners Find Township Road Maintenance Inadequate

County road commission employes, of which there are about 7,000 in 83 counties charged with the maintenanco of 84,000 miles of streets and roads, aro as entitled to group insurance and retirement benefits as any worker in private industry, in tho opinion of the Association of Southern Road Commissions, which met in convention in Flint last Wednesday and Thursday.

Furthermore, the association recommended that tho Michigan Association of Road Commissioners and Engineers seek legislation in the 1941 state legislature that would authorize county road commissions to expend county road funds for group insurance, pensions and other social and economic benefits for their employees.

County road employees are now excluded from the federal Social Security Act and from Civil Service laws, yet they "render n service virtually essential to the public" and are entitled to social benefits, a formal resolution explained. In the same resolution the association recommended that an attempt be made to include state, county and local employees in the federal Social Security Act.

Opposed to Change in Funds

The associntion also recommended that the state association of county rond officials seek additional funds for the maintenance of township roads from the sales tax on the auto and its allied commodities. A further stipulntion of the resolution was that the association he "vigorously opposed" to any change in the distribution of weight and gas tax funds now allocnted to the counties.

County road commissions now receive $60 per mile per year for maintenance of township roads, which total 67,000 miles and comprise the bulk of the county systems. The resolution termed this sum "entirely inadequnte for the proper maintenance and safeguarding of the traveling public."

CHAPMAN URGED HELP TOWARD TB CAMPAIGN

Cites Work of Tuberculosis Assn. in Charlevoix County

"A united front against disease is an important part of national as well as local programs at this time," stated Dr. W. M. Chapman, county health director, today as he urged that people return the money for the annual tuberculosis Christmas seals sent out hy the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

"We expect physical examinations to show from one to three per cent of all draftees tuberculous which means that the financial demands on the Michigan Tuberculosis Association will be heavier than they have ever been before," continued Dr. Chapman. "In buying Christmas seals we can all have a pnrt in fighting the most deadly of the diseases of young people."

Tuberculosis takes the lives of more people between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other sickness. In Charlevoix county, 6 persons died from tuberculosis last yenr. It is difficult to control hecause it undermines the health of its victim and germs are spread to others before any outward symptoms can be seen. Tuberculosis can he discovered in its enrly stages only hy the x-ray. To do this the Michigan Tuberculosis Association holds x-ray clinics thrnout the state.

During 1939 a total of 83 Chnrlevoix county residents received x-rays in the clinic held by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association," snid Dr. Chupman. "This work and the health educational program that the associntion carries on throughout the year are financed by the annual tuberculosis Christmas seal sale in which all of us can participate."

Wins $200 Scholarship

Michigan's 4-H representative in an annual rural electrifiention contest was one of six in the nation to receive a $200 scholarship in the recent National 4-H Congress in Chicago. He is Hugh Murrny, 17, Mackinaw City. Twenty-seven states sent winners to the Congress and six of these were named outstanding. Hugh Murrny's work included helping an electrician wire cottages nt his fnther's summer resort. Hc helped repair electricnl uppliances and install n large reflector outdoors, rehuilt n rndio, designed and built an electric basketball scorehoard, orgnnized a local 4-H electrical club and won both in county nnd state fair competition.

Average size of all legnl-size fish cnught by sport fishermen in 1939, as determined hy randonl sampling of the creel census taken by conservation officers, was 8.7 inches, 0.2 inches longer thnn the average in 1938 and 0.1 shnrter than the average in 1937.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Let's not forget the birds. A feeding station in a sheltered place, if possible, and high enough off the ground so the dogs can't run off with the food, or catch and kill the birds, will bring many feathered friends one never noticed in the summer time. A more interesting subject for observation than the birds would be hard to find.

Ladies, the men are getting ready for Christmas. Stores are looking gayer, and lights are shining brighter. The red and green banners on the street lights are very neat, the colored bulbs give Bridge street a holiday air. So don't let the men get a head start. Let's decorate our homes right away.

A good suggestion for obtaining evergreen boughs is to get permission of property owners to cut branches from the pines which were blown down by the storm, rather than to mutilate live trees. The tops of some of these evergreens might also be used as Christmas trees.

DISTRIBUTION WINTER HIGHWAY MAPS START

Are Free On Application to State Highway Department

Distribution of 100,000 copies of the newly revised winter highway map, which emphasizes Michigan's importance as a winter sports state, was started this week by the state highway department.

The front cover carried for the first time the reproduction of a natural color photograph of a typical winter highway scene. On the reverse side are pictures of winter sports and snow removal operations.

Hints for safe driving during winter are also listed on the reverse side, along with a list of Michigan state parks, their location, convenience, equipment and privileges. Snowplowing and ice-treatment operations are emphasized to assure visitors of safe and pleasant transportation facilities in coming to Michigan.

The map also contains the latest corrections on the trunkline highway system, together with a mileage table individual maps of the larger Michigan cities, the state ferry schedule, and a list of state game areas, national and state forests. In addition to these features, the map retains the accordian fold of past editions.

Copies of the map may be obtained free of charge by writing G. Donald Kennedy, state highway commissioner, or applying to this office.

DON'T GAMBLE AGAINST MICHIGAN WINDSTORMS!

The house, pictured above, was wrecked by a Michigan windstorm in 1939. Total damages exceeded $2,500. For $4.50 a year, the cost of a $3,000 policy with the reliable, 43 year old State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Company, the owner would have been amply protected. Destructive windstorms occur, all over Michigan, every year. Yearly windstorm losses often exceed $2,000,000. Protect yourself today. See your local State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Company agent or write us direct.

FARM TENANTS BETTER STATUS

Written Lease Proves Value As Stabilizer.

The Farm Security administration's national survey of the progress of farm families it is assisting shows that those renting their farms are making decided headway in their tenure status.

In the past, more than 80 per cent of farm renters operated under oral leases. But 81 per cent of the 161,395 tenants in the FSA rehabilitation program covered by the survey have written leases. These tend to stabilize them on their farms, and make it possible for them to plan ahead.

Many of these written leases are based on the Farm Security administration's flexible lease providing for arbitration of disputes between landlord and tenant, reimbursing the tenant for permanent improvements, and other features of benefit both to landowner and tenant.

More than 40,000 of the FSA tenants have written leases providing for more than one year of tenure, which encourage balanced live stock and cropping programs to conserve the soil instead of "quick cash" and soil-depleting crops which tend to go along with short tenure.

The survey showed that during the past year 26,800 of the families had made a difficult step up the economic ladder by advancing from sharecroppers to tenants. In addition, under the Bankhead-Jones act, the FSA has made loans to almost 7,000 tenants for the purchase of farms of their own.

Misbehaving Streams Take Toll in Lowland

Misbehaving streams cause an enormous amount of damage to fertile bottom-land farms, according to the soil conservation service. Sometimes these streams wander out of their courses and cut new channels across fields and pastures; or they undercut the banks and eat back into valuable farmland or overtop the banks and leave heavy deposits of sand on unharvested crops.

At sharp bends streams are particularly likely to kick over the traces. At the outside of the bend where the thrust of the flowing water is greatest they usually gnaw away at the bank. On the inside they often deposit soil matter washed down from farther upstream. In this way, a gravel bar is sometimes built up on the inside of the bend which tends to "shove" the stream farther toward the outside bank and increase the cutting on that side.

As a part of its demonstration program of erosion control, the soil conservation service is helping many farmers make these streams behave. On the outside bend of a stream where a considerable amount of cutting has occurred, service engineers assist in building structures, such as jetties, which divert the flow away from the damaged area and give protective vegetation a chance to become established. Such trees as osier, willow, or dogwood are recommended for permanent protection.

Urges Safety of Water Supplies in Rural Areas

Public health can be bought, especially in regard to the safety and purity of rural water supplies, according to Robert Newton Clark, district engineer of the New York state department of health.

"It can be bought," he said, "either by the use of money, time, or intelligence." He pointed out that the rural situation differs from that in the city; city water, used in great volume, is treated. In the country the use of home water supplies is not so managed.

"The clearest, coldest, tastiest glass of water may harbor death. In many instances the risk is unwarranted."

He referred to the many chances for contamination of water supplies and how pollution may result. The simplest way to sterilize a well, he said, is to use a chlorine compound, liquid bleaching solutions, or similar laundry bleaches. From one to four ounces are added to a pail of water and introduced into the water supply.

Then, enough water should be pumped or drawn from the system so that a distinct chlorine odor is noticeable at the tap or pump. After this, no water is drawn for a few hours, which gives the chlorine a chance to kill objectionable organisms.

Grinding Farm Tools

Edged tools in the farm workshop can work satisfactorily only when properly ground. The angle at which to grind a cold chisel depends on the hardness of the metal on which it is to be used; the softer the metal, the keener the edge. A templet consisting of a piece of tin with a guide notch, one-half inch wide and three-eighths inch deep, will help in determining the correct angle. Chisels ground to fit such a notch will be well suited for general work.

"Palimpsest Brasses"

The term "palimpsest brasses" means brasses which have been used twice. The dissolution of the monasteries led to thousands of brasses being sold for old metal, both from the churches destroyed and from those that were allowed to remain. In 1551 an order was issued confiscating all the church plate. It is therefore not surprising that great numbers of brasses were stolen. Elizabeth disapproved of these proceedings and ordered that fresh plates should be procured, and that the damaged monuments should be restored. The stolen brasses often went into the melting pot, but sometimes they were re-engraved and used to commemorate contemporary persons. The palimpsests are produced in three ways: (1) by engraving the back of the brasses (probably the most numerous); (2) by re-engraving and altering the figures, and (3) by substituting a fresh inscription.

"Welsh Rabbit"

There is every reason for supposing that "Welsh rabbit" was the original name for melted cheese served on toast; that it was so called as a joke, or for some whimsical reason, just as buttered eggs on anchovy toast are called "Scotch woodcock," and Irish potatoes "Munster plums." The term "Welsh rarebit" instead of "Welsh rabbit" is often seen on restaurant and hotel menus, but is incorrect.

More signs to warn motorists of their approach to deer areas are asked by members of the Northern Michigan Sportsmen's Association.

Old newspapers at Courier office.

If each fisherman licensed in Michigan last year went fishing on only one day, spent only 3.4 hours on the water, and had no better luck than the average established by 32,000 random creel census interviews in 1939, then the total catch would have been nearly 3,000,000 fish totaling about 500 tons, the conservation department's institute for fisheries research, using most conservative figures, has estimated.

tories located in those cities. The company suspended operation of all the plants and later abandoned them entirely. Instead of hundreds of workers drawing weekly pay checks, those cities now have empty buildings, more people either on relief or forced to leave to seek employment elsewhere.

Very stout lady: "Little boy, can I go through this gate to the river?"

Little boy: "You ought to, a load of hay went through there this morning."

Over in Presque Isle county the board of supervisors has provided a standing offer of $25,000 for the first commercial oil well brought in in the county. The offer, first made in 1935, still stands good and, according to reports, a Grand Rapids group will try for the "bonus" this winter. That's one way of going after industry, whether it be oil or factory!

Don Herrick isn't Santa Claus, and neither am I, but seeing how Don hasn't the means of making public letters addressed to Santa Claus by some local kiddies, and delivered to him, I'm more than happy to do so. Here they are:

"Dear Santa:
Would you please send me a pair of white snow boots, size 4½. I have been a very good little girl.
Bonnie Baumgardner."

"Dear Santa:
Do you think you could buy me a pair of wool slacks, size 16. I've been a good girl.
Shirley Coatta."

"Dear Santa:
I thought I would write you a line to ask you if you please send me a pair of snow boots, size 5½, white. I would be very thankful because I like them to wear. I haven't any. I have a pair of white skates from last year. I can skate fairly well, but not too good. Dear Santa, I have been a very good little girl this year and every year, in fact. Well, so long, Santa Claus, and farewell.
Sylvia Baumgardner."

"Dear Santa:
I think I would let you know what I want Christmas. Is it too much to ask you a sweater and wool slacks? If you can't bring them that is all right with me that I know that you have other children. But will you try for me because I was a good little girl and I have fun at Christmas.
Good Virginia."

Two days of thaw settled the 12 inches of snow upon which we are depending for a "white" Christmas and left streets which had not been peeled right down to the pavement a sheet of glare ice. It appears we've been favored as far as real cold weather is concerned when it is considered that Petoskey, Cheboygan and communities east have reported temperatures well below zero. About 12 above was the lowest registered here.

Bob Humprey's "Ramblings" column in the Cheboygan Observer is full of personal interest items. A friend of his told me Bob conceived the column as a means of letting his out-of-town friends know what was going on at home and thus get out of writing so many letters. Not a bad idea, at that!

And speaking of Humphrey, here's one of his most recent timely reflections: "If President Roosevelt can assume the responsibility of giving away 50 or 60 of our best planes to England, why can't he take the bull by the horns and tell these petty strikers that are cropping up all over the country and slowing up the defense program, what's what and where to get off at." Admittedly good reasoning, isn't it?

Harley Ochs continued a record of some few years by putting up the first lighted Christmas tree on the curb in front of his store this year. Some picturesque home decorations have begun to put in an appearance, too.

Sublime Credulity—
"Brown's wife thinks the world of her husband."
"Does she?"
"Yes, she even believes that the parrot taught him to swear."

The year 1940 is drawing to a close; if there is anything that you must do this year, you had better get started on the task.

NYA TRAINING WORK PROGRAM INCREASED

Age Limit Lowered to 16 Years; More Federal Funds Allotted

Employment on the National Youth Administration's out-of-school work program for unemployed youth will be increased to 20,000 by January 15, Orin W. Kaye, State NYA Administrator, announced today.

Present employment on the out-of-school work program is 12,493. Increased assignments have been made possible through additional funds recently allotted the National Youth Admiaistration by Congress to increase its work experience program in the mechanical fields, due to expanded work opportunities in industries receiving orders from the defense program.

Youth eligible for assignment to the NYA out-of-school work program must be between 16 to 24 years of age, inclusive, out of school and unemployed, in need of training and work experience, and registered at their local Michigan State Employment office. Until recently the age limit was 18 to 24, but because of the large number of 16 and 17 year old youth out of school, unemployed and in need of work experience, the age limit was lowered. Youth 16 years of age must be recommended by their local school officials for this work. Because of the high type of work experience received on NYA projects, a rapid turnover is experienced by youth leaving for jobs in private industry and the defense program.

Youth eligible for assignment to the National Youth Administration's out-of-school work program should contact either their nearest NYA office, located at Boyne City, or the Michigan State Employment office, located at City Hall, Charlevoix, every Tuesday, 9:30 to 12:00 noon.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Collecting and Clearing Your Checks

ONE of the most valuable services rendered by banks to the American people and American business is the clearing and collection of checks, drafts, etc. It is a service that functions so smoothly, efficiently, and quickly that it is taken entirely for granted and little thought is given to how it operates.

This system works through a well-developed plan of cooperation among country banks, city correspondents, and Federal Reserve banks.

Through it you can deposit in your bank a check drawn on a distant point, and in a few days the money will be transferred from that point to your bank, ready and available for you to use.

Did you ever stop to think what you would do without access to such a system?

ORE SHIPMENTS DURING YEAR ARE NEAR RECORD

National Defense Program Creates a Heavy Demand

Near record iron ore shipments from the Lake Superior district daring 1940 and stepped-ap prodaction on the Menominee range presage increased activity of geologists of the state department of conservation in locating new ore deposits.

The department's geological sarvey division cooperates with mine operators in such exploration work.

Lake Saperior ore movement hy boat in November is estimated nt aboat 4,000,000 tons. Storms darIng the first half of the month held back sbipment of an estlmated 2,-000,000 tons, yet the total of shipments daring the year will be about 62,300,000 tons, a record that pats the carrent year up among the comparatively few seasons when shipments have aggregated 60,000,000 tons.

The Lake Saperior Iron Ore Association reports consamption of Lake Saperior iron ore by blast furnaces in October totaled 6,051,437 tons, and was the best record since May, 1923, when 6,118,540 tons went to the farnaces.

Combined stocks of iron ore. on Lake Erie docks and in furnace yards on November 1 amounted to 41,125,-000 tons, compared with 37,090,058 tons a month previoas.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Anemia of Pregnancy

In the majority of expectant mothers an anemia gradaally appears dae largely to a poor choice of food. If the condition occars and is recognized a tendency to hemorrhage appears, the woman is weak, short of breath and the expected child itself may be adversely affected.

The entire difficalty centers aroand the intake of iron in the food. Pregnancy reqaires a hetter qaality of food than the expected mother may have been in the habit of asing. This is one period in life when it is advisable to be healthy and poor hygienic habits sach as lack of exercise, smoking and eating are taken into accoant. The growing child demands and takes the materials and the mother's health depends apon her own good care.

A good qaality of protein food is needed by everyone particalarly children and expectant mothers. Here the iron, minerals and vitamins are foand. These foods inclade lean meat, eggs, milk and whole wheat cereals. Mother's diets are freqaently low in iron. A well balanced basic diet of 1400 calories will be sapplied by the attending physician to the expectant mother. All food on this list is eaten and in addition is sufficient of starch, fat and vegetables to maintain the weight—asaally about 800 to 1000 calories more, making a total of 2200 to 2400.

In our present times when highly refined foods are so commonly used the expectant mother should have dietary instructions and follow them explicitly. Meat and milk are neither "strong" nor distastefal foods and there are no sabstitates. Even when medicinal iron in tablet or liqaid form is taken for anemia the building stones of protein can be compoanded only by natare, and the greatest pharmacist has never been nble to reproduce them.

The joy of having children is marred by illness and since pregnancy is a physiological and not an abnormal state most of the difficalties are those of ignorance or preventable accident. The anemia of pregnancy is one of those most easily prevented.

EDITORIAL

SOME SHOOT ANYTHING!

Not content with shooting legal game birds, some hunters had to be arrested in the first month of the current season for killing bluejays, sandpipers, yellowlegs, spruce hens, grebes, ospreys, bitterns, wooddncks, blue herons and hen pheasants. Game law violations accounted for 757 of the 833 arrests made by conservation officers in October, resulting in cases recently settled in the courts.

License difficulties tripped up many. Some hunters "borrowed" licenses, 15 nonresidents falsely obtained resident licenses. 87 tried to hunt without licenses, and there were 118 arrests for failure to display back tags properly.

Carrying loaded firearms in cars brought 76 negligent hunters to court. Other offenses included violation of sanctuaries, of bag limits, of season dates and proper shooting hours. Of the other than hunting violations, 31 concerned trapping, 38 involved fishing laws and there were eight cases of stealing timber from state lands.

Fines and costs totaled $11,996.40, jail sentences added up to 515 days. Of the cases tried, one resulted in acquittal, one was adjourned, six offenders were put on probation, and one case was dismissed.

SNOW PERILS

Accidents are seasonal, too. The arrival of snow and ice in northern states has brought out thousands of sleds and small fry eager for the yearly coasting, sliding and frolicking in the snow. That is as it should be provided they keep to proper places for such sport.

Early twilight makes the playtime between school and darkness very short. Icy streets make the automobilist's problems harder. If, with these added hazards, the youngsters are careless and coast down driveways into traffic, or if they hitch their sled ropes to the rears of cars for the sake of thrilling speed, there is likely to be tragedy.

Fun in the snow is normal to childhood, but it isn't fun when it breaks the safety rules and endnngers limhs and lives.

THREE BLESSINGS

The "object and end" of American government is aptly expressed by Clarence Manion, professor of constitutional law in Notre Dame University. It was stated by Thomas Jefferson with the first breath of life in this republic:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

"Here, he says, "is the most deeply philosophical crede of all political science. Here are the self-evident truths that distinguish the American constitutional system from any other government on earth. Here for the first and only time in human history is a man properly and officially oriented with respect to his Creator, his fellow-man and his government."

Today the nations of the earth mostly have only the first of the three supreme blessings which should be theirs, and even their life is precarious. Liberty is swept from this present world by dictators, and the pursuit of happiness is an almost forgotten dream.

The more reason, then, for Americans to cherish all three and make sure that the world shall not forget them.

RUMANIAN BLOODSHED

Even with a daily diet of violence and slaughter, an American's gorge rises at those murders in Rumania. They have lacked even the excuse of hot blood. They are committed coolly, as calculated reprisals and instruments of political policy. And there is no end to such procedure, because assassination inevitably leads to more assassination.

All this is sadly familiar in Bucharest, more so perhaps than in any of the other Balkan countries with their hot and endless fends. But now the Rumanian fendists are not entirely, or even primarily, to blame for the revolting bloodshed. For they are instruments of a far greater ambition and a far more savage spirit than their own. Such dramas now are nearly always inspired at Berlin.

The Rumanians, like their neighbors, would be far wiser to make peace among their factions, save their brains and blood for their own purpose, and leave the killings to Adolf Hitler.

Geographic center of Michigan is a point in Lake Michigan between 28 and 29 miles west of the southernmost point of South Manitou island, lying west of Leland in Leelanau county. Geographic center of the northern peninsula is a point in Lake Superior approximately 18 miles north of Laughing Fish Point, a few miles east of Marquette; and of the southern peninsula, a point in Isabella county about eight miles north and east of Mt. Pleasant. Port Huron is the farthest east city, Ironwood the farthest west, and South Camden the farthest south among Michigan cities. Copper Harbor on the Keweenaw peninsula is farthest north on the Michigan mainland and Tobin's Harbor on Isle Royale is the northernmost settlement in Michigan.

Ohio furnished more than half the visiting anglers who fished in Michigan waters last year. Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin fishermen ranked next among the visitors who represented, in all, 27 states, the District of Columbia, Alaska and Canada. License sales in 1939 showed non-residents to be 23.5 per cent of the licensed fishermen, including those holding 10-day permits, and in their random creel census interviews in the field, conservation officers found 16 per cent of the fishermen interviewed were non-residents.

IMAGINE THAT? MUST BE STEW

Imagination is an essential in every good meat-and-vegetable stew. But a few definite rules help to give the dish good flavor, save food value, mnke use of low-cost ingredients.

To get a rich flavor and deep brown color, start by browning the meat in hot fat, suggest members of Michigan State College home economics staff. Then add enough water to cover the meat, and finish cooking at a low temperature. Simmering, rather than boiling, softens the connective tissue and makes the meat tender.

Nnmber one rule when making stew is long cooking for the meat, short cooking for the vegetables. Modern cooks know that food values disappear when vegetables are overcooked. Short cooking also means full flavor, bright color, and firm texture for the vegetables.

Most stews start with the less-tender meats, because these cuts can be made tender with long, slow cooking. Tidbits and small pieces of tender meat can also be used to advantage in stews. Although these meats are low in price, they're just as nutritious as the more expensive steaks and chops.

Among the beef cuts suitable for stews, there's the fore and hind shank, the heel or round, flank, neck, short ribs, plate and brisket. Veal and lamb riblets, made by cutting between the ribs of the breast, are excellent for stew. So are small, very lean shoulders. And there are other irregularly-shaped pieces of veal, lamb, and pork that are also the starter for delicious and savory stews.

"Arise, My Love" Girl Reporter's Hectic Romance

From romance in the clnuds to kisses in the Forest of Compiegne is the wild and rooantic path that the lnve story of Clsudette Colhert and Ray Milland follows in their new Paramount picture "Arise, My Love," coming December t4, t5 to the Palace Theatre.

With a setting in Europe in 1939, "Arise, My Love" opens when Claudette snatches Ray from death before a firing squad in Spain. A lady reporter, she saves this flyiog fool to earn herself a big assignment, and she wios the Berlin job from her news agency.

There is a detour to the Forest of Compiegne with Ray however, and before she can get to her post war has beeo declared. Torpedned in an attempt to return to America, Claudette aod Ray decide to join the fight against the Nazis.

There is thrilling ndventure nnd heartbreak for both. But the sock romantic climax of the picture comes when they meet again in the Compiegne Forest and resolve tn go back to Amerlca to help their nation arm for defense. Walter Abel ls cast in the chief comedy role of "Arise, My Love," which was directed by Mitchell Leisen and produced by Arthur Hornblow.

"Street of Memories" is Excellent Screen Fare

"Street of Memories," a thoroughly enjoyable picture, opens December 18 nt the Palace Theatre. Beautifully filmed and expertly directed, the new 20th Century-Fox offering has Lynne Roberts, Guy Kibbee and John McGuire in the leading featured roles. Others in the stroog east include Ed. Gargan, Hobart Cavansugh nnd Jerome Cowan.

Newcomers Lynne Roberts and John McGuire nre outstanding in the rnmantic leads. Their sensitive, well-rounded portrayals of two young people fighting for a chance in life help mnke "Street of Memories" one of the most unusual love stories ever shown on the screen. Guy Kibbee, as McGuire's hnbo pal, gives a touching portraynl in a difficult role.

FOOD CROP IS EASILY STORED

Average Farm Provides Many Choice Spots.

By H. R. NISWONGER

Most farms provide plenty of choice spots where the family can store ample supplies of fruits and vegetables for the winter.

A cellar, basement, attic, or pit are favorable places to store apples, pears, root crops, dried beans or peas, onions, pumpkins, and squash, studies at North Carolina State college disclose. However, cellars containing furnaces usually are not satisfactory for fruits and root crops as the atmosphere is too warm and dry. Also, cabbage should not be stored in a cellar since the odor will penetrate through the house.

On the outside, hot beds or cold frames provided with a covering of boards and dirt may be utilized for storing root crops such as beets, turnips, and carrots, and for celery, collards, and cabbage.

Outdoor pit storage in a well-drained location is very satisfactory for storing root crops and potatoes. Several small pits should be constructed instead of one large one.

Vegetables should be stored in conical piles and covered with straw and dirt. As winter approaches, the dirt covering should be increased. Ventilation may be provided by inserting a section of stove pipe into one side of the pit, extending from the vegetables out through the straw and dirt.

Another section of stove pipe may be inserted on the opposite side. Not only will this provide ventilation, but it will permit the removal of vegetables in small quantities through the pipe. In this manner, the straw and dirt covering will not be disturbed.

After each removal of vegetables, the stuffing used in closing the stove pipes should be replaced. Some farmers erect a temporary board covering or shed over the storage pits to keep off the rain.

Many Farmers Use U. S. Marketing Aids

More farmers are carrying their problems to the county agent now than a few years ago, on the basis of nation-wide reports from the 3,000 agents of the agricultural extension service. Seekers after information on marketing, for example, numbered approximately 1,200,000 last year—more than double the number of farmers asking for help with marketing problems as recently as 1932.

Most of those assisted were members of co-operative selling or purchasing organizations. Records of county agents show that some form of assistance with marketing problems was given by extension agents in 18,500 communities. Individual farmers and organizations aided handled products valued at more than $640,000,000.

Among the types of marketing counsel most frequently requested by farmers was assistance in making best use of current market information, in locating markets, and in packaging and processing farm products. Organizations asked for similar services, and for assistance in accounting and methods of keeping their membership informed.

More than 100 specialists on state extension staffs spend either full or part time on extension work in marketing. County agents, at work in all agricultural counties, give a share of their time to marketing work, the amount varying in different counties. As with all activities of the extension service, the marketing program has reached its present proportions largely because of the assistance given by 14,000 farmers who voluntarily act as local leaders in marketing work.

Hot Spot Remover

Farmers near one Ohio town have found that rural hot spots can be cooled off with the right kind of competition, according to the Country Home Magazine. When a local dancing pavilion and tourist camp of questionable reputation began to get on their nerves, a dozen farmers contributed $2 each to hire a group of entertainers. Then they advertised a Saturday night dance with free ice cream and other mild refreshments, and for two Saturday evenings in a row attracted such big crowds that the hot spot was left high and dry. Seeing the handwriting on the wall, the dancing pavilion proprietor now operates his place in a manner which meets community approval.

Farming Briefs

Surplus products amounting to 1,700,000,000 pounds were bought and distributed by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation in the last fiscal year. The cost, including charges for freight and handling, totaled $66,000,000. Included in the list were 122,000,000 pounds of butter, 3,210,000 dozen eggs, 61,200,000 quarts of fluid milk and 13,900,000 pounds of dry skim milk.

Agricultural News

Close observers of conditions in the farm implement industry now believe that sales for the year will probably run about 10 per cent under the 1933 dollar totals.

Some folks still can't believe their eyes

GOING over Buick dealers' reports on our 1941 models, we find an unusual thing happening.

Time and again cars come in for the usual inspections with an extra note of instructions—"Please check the gas gauge needle."

Even after hundreds of miles, people mistrust their eyes when they see its snail-like pace from the Full mark toward Empty—they don't see how it's possible for a car as big as Buick to go so far on so little.

But it does—and for good reasons.

The whole FIREBALL engine was designed and built to get the most good out of modern gasolines.

And the simple secret of Compound Carburetion is that it keeps your engine running on its most frugal diet for all normal driving—and provides full feed only when you need, want and call for the lift of extra wallop.

Meantime even the gears are helping save money—for the regular high gear in a Buick gives you the economy of the so-called "gas-saving" top speeds you hear boosted so enthusiastically.

The big thing is, of course, that this is no small car that's setting these economy figures. There are all the room, size, impressiveness, comfort and downright thrilling performance you expect from a Buick.

But we assure you that it isn't because the needle's out of kilter that it goes down so slowly. It's simply because it's in a FIREBALL Buick.

emphasize a business administration.

Mr. Van Wagoner intends to seek a gradual liquidation of the $29,000,000 state deficit, a bookkeeping result of fund juggling, by having a specified amount of state revenues set aside each year out of the reach of pressure group spenders.

When times are good and the sales tax and liquor revenues are mounting, this thrift program should be no hardship on anyone. The sales tax this year is expected to reach the $70,000,000 mark, proof enough that it is productive if not ideally fair to the low-income group.

The governor-elect is confident that a more business-like collection of taxes, through a centralized agency, will enhance the productivity of the sales tax. This is a sore spot in state government, and it evoked a nasty situation last spring in Wayne county where rumors were thick that many retailers were being favored and that exemptions and adjustments were being made entirely too promiscuously.

Budget Revision

Under the present budget arrangement, the legislature appropriates funds for use of state institutions and departments, but there is no legal power to penalize or check state officials who exceed their appropriations.

For example, Budget Director Gus Hartman, who has earned a reputation for being hard-boiled as an army top-sergeant, has risked fire and brimstone by refusing arbitrarily to grant additional funds in excess of allotted budget sums.

A new budget control bill has been drafted by the "Young Republican" study committee of the legislature to achieve a two-way objective:

1. Consolidate all tax-collecting agencies into a single revenue department.

2. Invest the governor with power to veto individual items of legislative appropriations and otherwise fix financial responsibility on the executive office.

This imposes the responsibility of budget balancing squarely on the governor, as he could check the spending instincts of a legislature which gives way to pressure groups and thus invites fiscal troubles to the state administration.

How Far?

It is one thing to draft a bill, but it is entirely something else to get it passed by the legislature.

This would be particularly true in 1941 when a Republican legislature would be asked, by one of its own study committees, to clip the organization wings of such popular vote-getters as Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly. Mr. Kelly's department collects automobile license fees, for example, and it maintains a comprehensive network of local offices and deputies and clerks to serve automobile and truck owners.

What would be the political effect, for example, of having Governor Van Wagoner put in the position of favoring the reduction of Mr. Kelly's powers?

And especially when the Detroit Republican led the entire Republican ticket!

Also there is that important detail of depriving certain departments of constitutional tax-collecting powers, and any revision of state laws must run the gauntlet of a possible court test on its constitutionality. It may be predicted at this pre-inaugural moment that any tax collection and budget reform, no matter how desirable, will face the practical test of political horse swapping between Democratic Governor Van Wagoner and a Republican legislature, plus such prominent vote-getting Republicans as Messrs Kelly, Brown, Rushton and Elliott.

Agricultural Reform

Because of the independent sector of Michigan electorate has chosen repeatedly to throw the "rascals" out every two years at Lansing, whether said rascals be Republicans or Democrats, Governor Van Wagoner has seized upon an issue that sounds to farmers like pretty good "horse sense."

Instead of having a department of agriculture subject to house-cleaning every two years or so, says Mr. "Pat" why not put the department on a non-partisan basis of a commission whose members are appointed for long time terms?

Of course, the new civil service amendment to the state constitution was proclaimed as solving this very problem, but it still falls short of depriving the governor of certain prerogatives of political appointment of the commissioner who sets the pace for the entire department.

The Democratic state executive would like to see a staggered commission select a director on the basis of qualifications and then keep him on the job as long as he performs satisfactory service. The conservation commission is pointed to as affording an ideal pattern.

In this manner the farmer could rely on continuity of policies. The inspectors could become specialists and could enforce the laws without running the risk of political intervention through the local senator or representative. At least, such is the story, and it does sound plausible.

Appeasement?

If all this business-like administration, whether due to Republican foresight or Democratic diplomacy, contributes more money to the state treasury, it would be possible for Governor Van Wagoner to appease the hungry hordes of pressure lobbies with more appropriations.

State aid for the schools could be stabilized, if not slightly raised. The crippled children could have a hundred thousand or so more. The new and empty additions to our state hospitals would be equipped, manned, and opened.

Some 30,000 aged and infirm persons, now eligible for old age pensions, could receive pension checks to which the federal government had contributed, instead of state checks payable only from state welfare funds.

Appeasing the pressure groups, balancing the budget and reducing the state deficit is a three-in-one goal of Governor-elect Van Wagoner. Whether or not he can achieve it remains to be seen.

Succeeds Thomas as M.E.A. President

Mrs. Daisy E. Howard, commissioner of Genesee county schools, is the fourth woman to become a president of the Michigan Education Association during its eighty-eight years of organization. As vice-president of the association, she automatically succeeded to the presidency, following the death of Dr. John F. Thomas of Detroit. Dr. Thomas died November 20 of injuries sustained in an automobile accident the previous day.

Mrs. Howard has been a member of the M.E.A. board of directors since 1935. She was a member of the M.E.A. finance and membership commission from 1935-1938, and has been a member of the M.E.A. legislation commission since 1938, in addition to her membership on the board.

ALUMNI CAGE TILT IS ATTRACTING INTEREST

Red Rayders and Former High School Stars Play December 27

Local basketball fans are looking forward with interest to the Red Rayder-Alumni basketball tilt scheduled for Friday evening, December 27th.

The holiday alumni cage tilts have become annual attractions of particular interest due to the element of rivalry between present and former team members.

Practice is now under way for the approaching game. The alumni lineup will be announced when completed.

EARLY SNOW DRIVES DEER IN SWAMP YARDS

Snowfall Heavier at Present Than During Last Winter

Early snows this season which have driven deer into cedar swamps two weeks earlier than last year may cause increased loss by starvation during coming months.

L. H. Bartlett, conducting deer fencing experiments in this region for the conservation department, reports that deer began moving into winter yards before the hunting season ended. In some areas where deer concentrations are heavy, more snow lies on the ground now than was present during the entire winter a year ago.

Because the winter of 1939-40 was mild, fewer deer starved in swamps which have been overbrowsed. Winter yards, consequently, must accommodate more deer during coming months. This fact, and the longer time deer will be held close to the swamps by snow, offset the good effect of above-normal rainfall last summer which spurred growth of vegetation.

COURIER OFFICE DAMAGED BY FIRE

HEAVY LOSS IN BLAZE EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

Lewis Building Heavily Damaged Also; Paper Continues Publication and Job Department

In Charlevoix's most disastrous fire during the past year, the R. L. Lewis building was heavily damaged, and the Charlevoix Courier, occupants, suffered a heavy loss Sunday morning.

Following investigation, inspectors from the State Police reported the blaze was caused by a short circuit in electrical wiring in the south portion of the basement. That the fire had gained considerable headway before discovery is indicated by the fact that two units of heavy printing machinery had fallen through a collapsed portion of the floor before the department arrived in answer to an alarm given from the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. office around 7 o'clock.

The fire was brought under control after two hours. Heavy smoke and intense heat hampered efforts of the fire department.

The east portion of the building was badly damaged with loss yet undetermined. The Courier lost its newspaper and one job press, practically all pressroom fixtures and equipment, all paper stock in addition to heavy damage to type and miscellaneous equipment. Damage in both instances was covered by insurance.

With composing room equipment useable, the Courier is continuing publication, using facilities of the Boyne Citizen, at Boyne City, to handle presswork.

The Courier will continue regular publication and handle job printing requirements uninterrupted.

Up to the present time 85 aliens have registered at the Charlevoix postoffice. Registrations are made only at first and second class postoffices and cover all persons of foreign birth 14 years of age or older.

All proceeds of the affair, to be held at the I. O. O. F. hall, will be turned over to the fund after actual expenses have been paid. Turkeys, hams and chickens will be offered.

The Odd Fellow party marks the first public response to a campaign to raise $1500 locally to match a $3,000 donation pledged by summer residents. The funds will be used to purchase a modern x-ray machine and build addition at Charlevoix Hospital to house the unit.

BUILDING NEW POWER PLANT AT BOYNE CITY

REA Requirements Given as Reason for Expansion Program

The Michigan Public Service Co., Saturday started construction on a new $100,000 power plant at the Boyne City dam.

The new plant will supply approximately four times as much power as is being developed by the powerhouse now located there, O. W. Wing, vice president of the company, said.

The increased demand for electricity and the supplying of power to the Top O' Michigan REA created the need for the new project. Work will be finished by June 1.

Our Deep Appreciation

Because of Sunday's fire completely disabling our press room facilities, this week's, and perhaps several subsequent editions, will be printed on the presses of the Boyne Citizen, at Boyne City. We pause at this time to express our sincere, wholehearted appreciation to the management of the Boyne Citizen for their thoughtful and timely assistance. We would acknowledge at the same time profers of assistance from other northern Michigan publications and expressions of condolence from individuals in Charlevoix and this region. It is our uppermost desire to continue sending the Courier without interruption to our family of readers. The encouragement resulting from public response in our misfortune will play no small part in strengthening our endeavors to this end.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

I'm awful glad Christmas is just around the corner, and I certainly hope Santa Claus reads the letter I slipped in with the kids', for if he didn't, things are going to be bad. I've waited these twelve months without buying any socks and either the big or little toes are sticking out of every one; I managed to keep one shirt good for Sundays, but otherwise I'm strapped; the dog chewed up one of my bedroom slippers and I've stuck my tender tootsies out on the cold floor since winter started; last winter's underwear would hold out 'til spring with a little patchin' but it might be safer if I had a change; the biggest one that "got away" last summer broke my only fish line and the Armistice Day hurricane blew my fish basket away, and then, if I was to get choosy, the old car's getting a bit wheezy. If Santa Claus didn't get my letter, I hope my wife reads this.

P. S.—The ties I've got suit me o. k.

TUBERCULOSIS ASSN. SPEAKER WAS HEARD

Roger Richards Address Kiwanis and School Pupils Wednesday

Both students and business men of Charlevoix had as their guest speaker last week, Roger Richards of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. Mr. Richards spoke before the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix at 6:15 Tuesday night and at a morning assembly in the school, Wednesday.

Stressing the importance of an early diagnosis for an early cure both to the student a, an audience of any particularly susceptible to tuberculosis, and to the adults in the evening, Mr. Richards showed how tuberculosis Christmas seal sale money is used to support this work. Mr. Richards has been working on a survey, recently granted a thousand dollars by the National Tuberculosis Association, to discover why Michigan leads all other states in early tuberculosis case-finding.

Arrangements for Mr. Richards' appearance in Charlevoix were made by Max H. Smith of the Kiwanis Club, and O. P. North, superintendent of Charlevoix schools.

RAYDERS DIVIDE TWO CAGE TILTS

LOST TO HARBOR SPRINGS BY 22 TO 16 COUNT

Mark Up First Victory in Two Years With 29 to 17 Win Over Gaylord Quintet

Charlevoix high school's Red Rayder basketball team won their first game in two years when they topped Gaylord by a 29 to 17 count here Tuesday night. This victory followed a defeat last Friday night at Harbor Springs by a close 22 to 16 margin.

Even though the Rayders lost at Harbor, the result stamped them an up-and-coming aggregation in view of the fact Harbor's veteran outfit is considered one of the strongest in the northern Michigan class C circuit this year.

One bad period, the second, proved their undoing. They trailed 7 to 4 at close of the first period, then were blanked completely as shots rimmed the hoop in the second. Harbor tallied 9 more for a 16 to 4 advantage at the half. The winners snared 5 to Charlevoix's 2 in the third stanza, but were buried by a Rayder rally which netted 10 points to Harbor's 1 in the fourth period.

Jack Stewart led Charlevoix's scoring as he did in the Petoskey tilt, netting two goals and a free toss for 5 points. Carey and Mitchell scored 4 each, Kohler 2, Swanson 1.

Charlevoix 29, Gaylord 17

The Rayders tucked away their first victory since the 1938 season by trouncing Gaylord 29 to 17 in their first home appearance Tuesday night.

They led from the start with a 4 to 0 advantage at the quarter, 13 to 7 margin at the half, and 23 to 12 at the third intermission.

Kohler and Carey shared scoring honors with 8 each. Stewart netted 5, Rowe 4, Swanson 3 and Mitchell 1. Simmons was best for the visitors with 5.

Rayder reserves lost both the Harbor Springs and Gaylord contests, Harbor tripped them by a 17 to 13 score, and Gaylord nosed them out in the last quarter by a 17 to 16 margin.

A contest Friday night at Mancelona precedes the annual alumni contest scheduled the evening of December 27th.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Joy is lacking in Michigan today when the old holiday refrain is sung: "Yo, ho, ho! And a bottle of rum!"

With a nosey federal grand jury returning indictments by the dozen as the result of a four-year-old investigation into the purchase and sale of liquor, this rummy business in Michigan is utterly devoid of "yo, ho, ho!" Believe us, mates!

Michigan is one of 14 states which have sought to control the sale of liquor for the purpose of preventing political, social and economic abuses. We have what is known as a "state liquor monopoly," and while the emphasis has seldom been on revenue, nevertheless the monopoly has paid handsome dividends to the taxpayers for state and municipal activities. The consumer pays the usual prices; yet a slice of the profit goes to the state. European countries even have established monopolies for tobacco, or salt, or even matches—all for the purpose

STATE COLLEGE SALE OF TREES SETS HIGH RECORD

Greatest use in the history of the Michigan State College federal-state nursery was recorded in spring and fall of 1940 when more than 5,200,000 trees were sold at cost to farmers, schools and communities and more than 1,200,000 sold to the same groups by the State Department of Conservation.

School groups alone planted more than a million small trees, according to Roy Skog, assistant extension forester at the college.

FISHERMEN SEEK NEW REGULATIONS

FISH PRODUCERS' ASSN. MEETING AT TRAVERSE CITY

Extension of Lake Trout and Whitefish Closed Seasons Among Proposals Considered

A list of proposals pertaining to commercial fishing and mackinaw trout trolling are being prepared for submission to the state legislature following a meeting in Traverse City last week of the Michigan Fish Producers' Association, an organization of Michigan commercial fishermen.

With delegates and alternates of the 10 districts present, proposals of the State Junior Chamber of Commerce, Michigan United Conservation Clubs, state conservation department and U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, groups also represented, were discussed.

Lacking rejection or approval were proposals asking that the lake trout closed season, now October 10 to November 15, and the closed season on whitefish, running from November 1 to December 10, be extended. Approval of such changes would also be contingent with adoption of similar laws by Wisconsin.

A proposal making it unlawful to troll for lake trout other than sports trolling was rejected by the council, but the committee decided to submit the measure to the legislature nevertheless. The council approved a $25 commercial fishing license.

No action was taken on proposals to limit trout taken by sportsmen to three in one day and five in possession and to charge a $1 license fee for sports fishing on the Great Lakes. Also rejected were two proposals, one making it illegal to take chubs in water less than 50 fathoms deep in Lake Michigan north of a line due west from Frankfort, and the other a proposal that deep trap nets be declared unlawful in waters controlled by the state of Michigan.

DEFENSE DEMANDS MAY AID MICHIGAN COPPER

New Sources Being Sought by Conservation Department

If demand for copper by defense industries continues to mount, upper peninsula producers seeking new sources of supply will be aided by recent activity of survey parties sent out by the geological survey division of the conservation department.

The division is soon to publish maps which will correlate new information concerning location of copper bearing rock on the east side of Ontonagon county.

Increasing demand for copper may spur mining operations in Michigan, Arizona, Utah and Montana where too-high recovery costs in normal times have been reflected in declining production. The increased demand may boost the price of copper, permitting Michigan operators to finance necessary exploration work in opening up new sources of supply.

MARRIED MAN'S DRAFT STATUS IS EXPLAINED

Wife Considered a Dependent and Reason for Deferment

The state selective service organization Tuesday defined, as closely as possible, the status of a man eligible for the draft but married.

A wife is considered a dependent, and therefore, reason for deferment if :

1. She is a U. S. citizen, or lives in the U. S., its territories or its possessions.

2. She must depend on her husband for support "in a reasonable manner" at the time the registrant is classified.

3. She must receive his "contributions" for support and such contributions "must not merely be a small part of such wife's support."

The board also commented: "The question af whether or not the registrant and wife are living together is irrelevant."

CONTINUE HIGHWAY ROADSIDE PROGRAM

Survey Under Way to Determine Right of Way Requirements

A survey of state highways having 100 feet or more of right-of-way to determine future roadside development was ordered this week by State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy.

The program is expected to continue roadside tree planting, snow fence plantings, vegetation erosion control work and improvement of present and future picnic table areas.

Kennedy stated the tree planting would include shade and pine trees for both safety and ornamental purposes and also the planting of groups of higher growing shrubs and dwarf flowering trees.

"Snow fence planting," Kennedy added, "will be planned for highways having 150 feet or more right of way and will be concentrated in the northern half of the lower peninsula and the upper peninsula."

Improvement of present and development of future picnic table sites are to be surveyed with the idea of making the areas more economical to maintain, according to instructions issued district foresters, while vegetative erosion control items will be planned mainly for backslopes and will include the planting of vines, shrubs and pine trees. In addition, sodding and seeding on slopes and berms in agricultural sections will be included.

POSTOFFICE PREPARING FOR RUSH

EXTRA HELP OBTAINED FOR CHIRISTMAS SEASON

Postoffice Open All Day Saturday, December 21; Urge Shoppers Do Mailing Early

With a record volume of business expected during this week and the two days of next week before Christmas, Postmaster J. M. Foster reports that plans have been completed to handle the 1940 holiday season mail rush.

While issuing an annual plea to Charlevoix shoppers to mail their Christmas packages, cards and letters early, Postmaster Foster announced that two extra employes had been added to the regular force to handle the increased volume of mail, and that as an added service, the postoffice will be kept open all day Saturday, December 21, instead of closing at noon as customary.

Persons are advised to use care in addressing cards and packages, making sure that the correct street and house number is given and that the proper postage is used. Cards containing holiday greetings may be mailed for 1½ cents for each two ounces, providing they are sent unsealed. If cards are sealed in envelopes, the postage is two cents for any address in the city or local rural routes, and three cents if sent outside the city.

It is essential that packages be carefully wrapped and more important that they be sufficiently addressed. Articles measuring as much as 100 inches in length and girth combined will be accepted. They may weigh up to 70 pounds and no more. Packages which contain breakables should be packed to prevent damage by shock or jar. Packages with tags for address should also have the address written on the package as well.

There will be no deliveries on Christmas day except special delivery packages and letters. The postoffice will be closed all day.

NORWOOD SCHOOL RETURNS SEAL PROCEEDS

Reported As First In County to Return Sale Funds

The Norwood school at Charlevoix, with Martin Elzinga as teacher, was the first in Charlevoix county to send back proceeds from the annual rural school sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals, the Michigan Tuberculosis Association announced today. Many of the schools are requesting more seals as the sales this year are going higher than ever before.

The seal sale in rural schools is usually conducted on a competitive basis. This year, the children are divided into two teams: one called Microbe Hunters, and the other Germ-Chasers. Children sell the seals only in districts where it is difficult to reach all purchasers by any other medium.

The tuberculosis Christmas seal pennies bring many health education activities and programs to schools. Sound movies are available to parent-teacher associations and schools; the Wolverine Health Bulletin is distributed monthly to all rural schools as an aid to both teacher and pupil in their health programs; and many school health plays and songs will be sent out during the coming year.

This program has been carried on for many years by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association with the purpose of making better health habits a part of education.

THE LAST FIVE MONTHS OF WAR

When France tottered on the brink of disaster, and the war seemed about to end, Benito Mussolini plunged the dagger into the back of his neighbor. Il Duce undoubtedly expected Italy to gather her share of the spoils with a minimum of sacrifice.

The course of the war has probably surprised the Fascist leader but it has presented Adolf Hitler with a great surprise also. When news came that France had requested an armistice Der Fuehrer cut loose with a jig, to the delight of his entourage.

There is every reason to believe that both dictators thought the war had been brought to a successful conclusion and that the "new order" would begin almost immediately in Europe.

The events since that day in June have brought no confirmation of their joyous thoughts of complete victory. The stubborn and pernicious British refused to quit their war and the battle goes on.

In the diplomatic manoeuvres, since June, Hitler and Mussolini have scored only mediocre successes. Despite their pressure Spain remains aloof and looks to the British to permit food shipments to reach Spanish ports. Bulgaria and Russia have balanced on the fence and Greece has taken up her own protection. Turkey gives no sign of bowing to German demands.

The warfare, since June, has not produced a decisive totalitarian victory. The British drop bomb for bomb and refuse to weaken their naval forces in the fighting areas to protect convoys on the oceans. In the Mediterranean the Italian navy fails to protect the line of supply to Libya and the fighting in Greece, to this time, is nothing but an Italian disaster.

FOUR FORTUNES AND "A FAILURE"

"Tired of fighting," and unable to carry on any longer," Jesse Livermore, aged 63 years, was found slumped in a chair, with a bullet in his head.

Known as one of the nation's most spectacular stock market operators, Mr. Livermore, who began work on a farm, was reputed to have made four large fortunes in the market, ranging from three to ten million dollars.

Four times he went into bankruptcy, as things went wrong, but each time, according to his attorney, he paid his creditors in full.

At one time he possessed a home, valued at more than $1,300,000 and his successful strokes were punctuated with large yachts, special railroad cars are similar luxuries. He dazzled other speculators by his daring and the facility with which he profited from market trends.

Yet, with all this sucess, he spent an afternoon, writing notes in a memorandum book, just before taking his life. His own conclusion, probably during a state of mental confusion, was that his "life had been a failure."

A CORRIDOR TO ALASKA

The United States and Alaska are separated by the territory of the Dominion of Canada and while our northern neighbor is about as good a friend, apparently, as a nation could possess, there has been discussion about the possibility of securing a corridor to connect the United States and Alaska.

Anthony J. Dimond, delegate in Congress from Alaska, estimates that a good road to close the gap between Hazelton, Canada, and the existing Alaskan highway system, could be built for $25,000,000.

The through highway has been advocated in the past as a means of freeing military outposts in Alaska from dependence upon a long sea route. Naturally, with the Army and Navy enlarging their bases in Alaska this is more important.

Whether Canada would approve the granting of such a corridor to the United States is another question but the highway could be constructed, perhaps, and a condition that would meet the approval of Canada and the United States if there were no cession of Canadian sovereignty.

HERE'S A WISE OBSERVATION

Many foolish statements are made by public men, duly reported in the newspapers, but occasionally one comes across the truth tersely stated, which makes it worth while to read a lot of trash.

Chester C. Davis, former official of the Department of Agriculture, but now serving on the National Defense Advisory Commission, is to be credited with a wise remark when he told the members of the National Grange the other day:

"We cannot be military friends and economic enemies of Latin America at the same time."

You can read this sentence over and think about it and the more you cogitate the more convinced will be your conclusion that Mr. Davis has something.

IN REGARDS TO THE WAR

The United States is, in relation to the war in Europe, in the position of the loyal rooter when his eleven has been pushed to the ten yard line and he begins to chant, "hold that line."

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES OUTLINED AT MEETING

Large Group Local Men Pledge Time As Troop Leaders

Impetus to Boy Scout activities in Charlevoix is expected to result from a meeting held last Friday evening in the dining hall at the high school building.

A committee of Kiwanians, whose organization has sponsored the Scouting movement here, called the session in an effort to enlist more "man power" to aid the Scouting program. With the activity of the local troop at near zero more from lack of quantity than quality of leadership, the meeting drew 32 business and professional men who pledged to devote part of their time in the future to the Scout program.

Present at the meeting was Charles Boyer, of Traverse City, executive director of the Scenic Trails Council, with which the Charlevoix troop is affiliated. Mr. Boyer outlined Scouting from its founding and explained activities necessary to aid the local troop. It is anticipated, as a result, that a Sea Scout and Cubbing units may be formed.

Those present at Friday night's session will meet in the near future to plan activities to be carried out. The meeting was preceded by an oyster supper.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS OF WOMEN EXPLAINED

Opportunity for Reinstatement to Be Provided January 1

The citizenship status of American native-born women who lost their American citizenship by marriage to an alien before the Nationality Act of September 22, 1922, has been clarified by an amendment to this act, which became effective July 2, 1940.

Providing that her marital status has terminated, a woman can regain her citizenship without going through the usual form of naturalization. By filling out an extensive questionnaire, and by giving the oath of allegiance to the United States that is required of a naturalized citizen, her American citizenship will be re-established.

Applications for citizenship may be filed with County Clerk Fenton R. Bulow after January 1, 1941, when the proper forms will be available. Applicants must furnish proof of birth and marriage.

Women who married aliens after the act of 1922 are not regarded as having lost their American citizenship.

McMillan's birthday was honored by n gift from the chapter, presented by his daughter, Mrs. Freda Shupeck, and singing of "Happy Birthdny" by the nssemblage. The new Worthy Matrun and the retiring Matron received gifts, and a past Matron's pin was given to the retiring Matron.

A reception for Miss Siminow in the temple dining room followed the program. Christmns decorations in the dining room were in charge of Miss Lillis Flundecs, Miss Mary Bnstian, Miss Junet Livingston, and Mesdnmes Edgur Behrens and C. M. Bice.

Refreshments were in charge of Mesdnmes E. F. Sloan, O. P. North, Hacry Ludd, Glenn See, Harold Lamb, M. A. Levinson, Frank Partridge, Harold Bedford, F. F. McMillnn, Harold Withers and Miss Olive Allen.

In connection with the 51st installation ceremony of Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, O.E.S., the following article is taken from the farewell address of retiring Matron Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff, reviewing the history of the order from its founding until the present day.

The origin of the Order of the Eastern Star is of far more recent date than that of the founding of Freemasonry. Although based on Masonic principles, the Order is no part of that ancient institution. Its origin is credited to Queen Henrietta Maria, widow of Charles I of England. Following the execution of King Charles in 1649, Masonic brothers of His Majesty, in assisting the Queen to escape with her life to a safe haven in France, entrusted her with certain Masonic signs to aid her in her perilous journey. These she in turn confided to the ladies of her former Court, who shared her exile.

England, ever a conservative land, embraced the idea of feminine Masonry very slowly. It remained for pleasure-loving France to extend the advantages of Masonry to their women. Here Masonry of Adoption was in vogue as early as 1765. In this case, feminine relatives of Master Masons were banded together and literally adopted by the Masonic group to which their men belonged. These groups flourished in 1805 under the Empress Josephine Regime; even aristocrats considered membership an hunor.

We are given an account of an initiation in 1819, when a certain Lady Morgan of England received the degrees in Paris in a room of crimson, gold and marble, decorated in flowers and with music and incense to add dramatic effect to the ceremony. Lndy Morgan's remark, following that two-hour ceremony, speaks for itself: "—That so many women, young, beautiful, and worldly, should never have revealed the secrets of the Order, is among the miracles which our much distrusted sex is capable of working."

We all know the history of the Order in America; how one Robert Morris, a Master Mason, conceived the plan in 1850. However, the first American Adoptive Rites, as in conservative England, had little appeal to American women and not until the name was changed to Order of the Eastern Star did the plan become popular enough to survive the hardships and discouragements of all pioneer enterprise.

From the modest beginning in Jackson, Mississippi in 1850, the organization prospered surprisingly and spread rapidly, reaching Michigan seventeen years later with the establishment of the first Michigan Grand Chapter, October 3, 1867. Charlevoix chapter followed twenty-three years later, August 27, 1890.

The Order has always been distinguished for its philanthropy, and Michigan chapters maintain a home at Adrian for the children of members of the Order who have left them orphaned or are unable to maintain a home due to the death of one parent. Here, at our Eastern Star Villa, our children receive the same education, social advantages and care, as their more fortunate associates.

INCREASED DEER KILL '40 SEASON INDICATED

More Deer Brought Across Straits Than Last Season

Apparent increased kill of deer in the upper peninsula during the 1940 season is indicated by counts of animals brought across the straits, and permits issued for transportation of deer through Wisconsin. Deer brot across the straits since November 15 totaled 7,789 compared with 7,602 in 1939. Permits issued by conservation officers in the west end of the upper peninsula for transportation of deer through Wisconsin total 785. The 1939 total was 663.

More foxes and bobcats, less coyotes and wolves were taken by lower peninsula sportsmen hunting above the straits; eight coyotes during deer season this year, nine in 1939; five wolves this season, six last; 22 foxes this season, 18 last, and seven bobcats this season, none last.

The highway department keeps the straits tally.

of revenue for public services.

Both Parties

It is common law custom not to imply guilt until the accused has been convicted, and the innocence of a defendant is likewise assumed until court and jury decide otherwise.

Hence the grand jury indictments may be taken, for our purposes, only as a peg upon which to hang certain observations and interpretations, none of which will attempt to try the case in print.

In the first place, the grand jury inquiry has been under way for the past four years, two years of which were under Democratic control and the other two years under Republican control.

The indictments cover a period of eight years. It is also noteworthy to observe that the fluctuating independent voting block of Michigan's electorate has swung the political scales from one party to the other every two years in the past decade.

Frank A. Picard, of Saginaw, now a federal judge in Detroit, was chairman of the state liquor control commission during the first two years of the liquor control law in 1933 and 1934. Then came the first Fitzgerald administration with Judge John S. McDonald of Grand Rapids, a Republican, serving as chairman. After Frank Murphy, now a United States supreme court jurist, became governor on January 1, 1937, Prof. Edward W. McFarland of Wayne University, Detroit, was appointed chairman as a Democratic member. The swinging pendulum back to Fitzgerald brought Orrin A. DeMaas of Detroit, a Republican, into the position as commission chairman.

Millions of Dollars

The making and sale of liquor is big business with two capital B's.

November sales in Michigan exceeded $3,500,000 of which 54 per cent were in Detroit. Package sales through private dealers accounted for 55 per cent of the state sales; licensees (clubs, taverns, etc.) 30 per cent, while the state liquor stores sold 15 per cent.

Detroit sales through private dealers or state stores were less than the state percentages, while purchases by the glass rose to 41 per cent instead of the 30 per cent state average.

Also of interest is the continued rising demand for hard liquors, and the lagging consumption of beer on the basis of pre-prohibition figures. Brewers have a real problem on their hands, not only to dignify their product through the control of social abuses but to maintain popular consumption of their product.

The distillers, too, have had a perpetual headache. The Michigan situation, if so determined in court, was apparently just one annoyance of many.

Voluntary Control

It was seven years ago that the eighteenth amendment was repealed, and the liquor distillers have yet to solve the problem of stabilization through voluntary control.

Faced with a certainty that a repetition of liquor abuses, or lack of proper control, would invite the ultimate return of prohibition, leading distillers sought to impose self-regulation. They proposed for themselves a czar such as Will Hays for the motion picture industry, or Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis for organized baseball. Dr. Wesley Sturges, Yale professor, was elected to be director of the Distilled Spirits Institute.

The Institute sought to police its own affairs. The Michigan situation, wherein distillers are said to have made graft payments for the questionable (if not mythical) "privilege" of selling their products in Michigan, became just one of the numerous worries. However, disagreement among the distillers disrupted the liquor czar plan. Dr. Sturgis resigned. A price war recently broke out in New York City and Chicago. The U. S. Treasury department, successor to the defunct federal alcohol administration, is threatening to invoke powers against unfair trade practices, while the Federal Trade commission is swinging a club against so-called collusive fair-trade enforcement which is another phrase for price stabilization to the industry, or price-fixing to the consumer.

Dry Sentiment

A recent survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion, headed by Dr. George Gallup, revealed that dry sentiment has not increased sharply in the past year or so. The trend toward prohibition is still to crystalize. Majority public opinion still holds as socially acceptable the drinking of cocktails by both men and women.

The Michigan Anti-Saloon league recently abandoned an effort for an initiatory law to prohibit liquor sales outside of municipalities, and there has even been some talk of changing the name of this venerable organization, now headed by Senator Earl Burhans, Paw Paw.

But the federal grand jury activity is bound to provoke certain repercussions in the 1941 state legislature. It has opened up, once again, the ancient problem of controlling the sale and consumption of that bottle of rum.

SOAKING PLUMPS WRINKLED PRUNE

How to take the wrinkles out of a prune may be a secret to Michigan residents who favor Michigan fruit, but the process is not difficult. It merely involves some coldwater soaking before the cooking.

Prunes for some families are a winter staple occupying pantry shelf space alongside flour, sugar and spices. A few useful suggestions are offered by members of the home economics staff at Michigan State College.

Proper soaking and cooking makes the dried fruit plump and juicy. The prunes have more taste appeal when spiced up to go with a meat course, combined with cooked cereal for breakfast, mixed with butter or peanut butter for a sandwich filling, or used like fresh fruit in salads and desserts.

About 12 servings are obtained from a pound of prunes. This pound of prunes supplies food values, too—in the form of iron, calcium, vitamin A, and vitamin B1.

In deciding on a dessert, keep prunes in mind as a filling for dumplings and turnovers, for topping shortcake and upside-down cake, for combining with sugar and beaten egg whites or with whipped cream to make a fruit whip.

Prune bread offers another way of using this versatile fruit. Made like raisin bread with a yeast dough, it is excellent toasted. Or roll the dough out in a thin rectangular shape, spread with butter and a mixture of chopped prunes, nuts and brown sugar, roll up like a jelly roll and cut off pieces to make pinwheel rolls.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

This is the Season for Scarlet Fever

Scnrlet fever has appeared in a soattered manner throughout the district comprising the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego during recent weeks. Fortunately the cases have been mild in character. Even so, every precaution should be taken against the spread of infection from one person to another. No matter how mild the case, it may give rise to sevore illness in a brother a sister or playmate of the patient.

The most common signs of scarlet fever are sore throat fever, vomiting, nnd a bright red rash. The onset of illness is usually sudden. When these symptoms appear it is easy to see that the person has scarlet fever. However, in eases seen recently there is often no vomiting, and the rash ia ao faint as not to be noticed, except on close inspection. It ia best to be on the safe side, and to take precautions whenever scarlet fever is suspected.

Even in mild cases the scarlet fever patient and the person who takes care of him will be quarantined for at least three weeks. Thereafter, the quarantine will be continued until any abnormal discharges have ceased in cases with infected ears, glands, or other complications.

If the scarlet fever patient is well isolated, adults are permitted to go and come from the house to work, provided they do not handle or sell food or milk or come in contact with children. School children living in the same house with u ease of scarlet fever will be quarantined for the same length of time as the patient. To prevent loss of time at school, children in the family, who do not have scarlet fever, may be permitted to move to another house where there are no children. After seven days quarantine in this new location, they may return to school, provided they have remained well.

Scarlet fever usually comes on in three or four dnys, rnrely more than seven. Neither the family physician nor the Health Department has authority to shorten the quarantine period in any particular case.

Epidemics often result from the uncontrolled activities of mild or doubtful cases. To prevent spoiling the Christmas season by having illness, close observation of methods for prevention of communicable diseases is urged by the District Health Department.

EDITORIAL

THE BISHOP'S TWO-THIRDS

(Baltimore Evening Sun)

Declaring that no lnw had been more maliciously misrepresented or disregarded than the now defunct prohibition act, Bishop Ralph S. Cushmun, president of the Anti-Saloon league, yesterday dwelt upon what he called the "substantial benefits" which prohibition brought to the nation. Among these benefits, he asserted, was a one-third decline in the consumption of liquor and a rapid increase in the nntional wealth.

It is perfectly true thut the prohibition law was disregarded—it was, in fact, unenforceable on that account. But consider the dry bishop's statement about a one-third decline in the consumption of liquor. Assuming, for the sake of argument, that his statement is correct, tho we are by no means assured that it is, what about his willingness to return to a situation in which two-thirds of the gigantic liquor traffie would be in the hands of thugs, gangsters, gunmen, hijackers, racketeers, murderers—criminals of the vilest stripe imaginable? For that, in effect, is exactly what he proposes.

Prohibition gave rise to this breed of underworld gentry. The very names of many kinds of the most vicious outlaws were a product of the dry era. They operated without benefit of any law—except, of course, the prohibition law, which brought them into being. Two-thirds (or was it more?) of the gigantic liquor traffic paid no state or federal taxes, underwent no liquor control board supervision, bred contempt for all laws and disregarded every principle of decency. The "substantial benefits" of which Bishop Cushman speaks, the "rapid increase in wealth," went to the prohibition gangsters. Is it to this foul mess that the Anti-Saloon league would have the nation return?

TIRES AND ICE

One of humanity's greatest pleasures is that of feeling superior. So the south gets a great kick out of reading of the troubles of the north with snow and ice. The north gets its inning in the summer when pleasant breezes blow. Right now, and for three months to come, the north wrestles with its annual winter problems, one of the greatest of which is skids.

The winter driving hazarda committee of the National Safety Council has released a report with five points which should be incorporated into the very nature of the driver:

1. Unequalized brakes start skids.
2. Tire chains are vital during bad snows or icy weather.
3. Chains will not prevent skids unless cars operate at redueed speeds.
4. It takes from three to 10 times the normal distance to stop on snow or ice without chains.
5. Traction afforded by chains does not duplicate dry pavement braking ability, but on snow and ice chains cut stopping distancea about 40 per cent.

One interesting point waa that smooth tirea are no worse than tires with good treads on smooth ice, although on icy or loose snow they have advantnges. Deflating tires does no good. The added traction for stopping ia very slight and the tendency to side skid or skid on curves is much increased. The tires wear out faster, too, with not enough air, increasing danger of future blowouts. Decrensed speed in icy weather is of the utmost importance.

AT THE MOVIES

"The Long Voyage Home" Superb Sea Thriller

Against the highly-dramatic and emotionally stirring story of men who dare the perils of sea and sky, Walter Wanger's new screen presentation, "The Long Voyage Home," will be unveiled December 21 at the Palace Theatre.

The hand-picked cast of this thrilling and suspenseful film is headed by such distinguished performers as John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell and Ian Hunter and includes: Barry Fitzgerald, Wilfred Lawson, John Qualen, Carmen Morales, Arthur Shields, J. M. Kerrigan and Mildred Natwick.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy Come to Palace Screen in "Bitter Sweet"

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy appear for the second time in Technicolor in "Bitter Sweet," picturization of the Noel Coward operetta, which opens December 24 at the Palace Theatre. Their first appearance in color was in "Sweethearts," last year.

Story of London nnd Vienna in the Gay Nineties, "Bitter Sweet" presents Miss MacDonald as Sarah Millick, London belle who on the eve of her wedding elopes to Vienna with her singing teacher, Carl Linden, played by Eddy, and lives an idyllic life there until a captain of the Imperial cavalry, Baron von Tranisch, begins paying her attention.

Laughs are the order of the day for audiences attending the new comedy, "Dulcy," starring Ann Sothern, which opens December 27 at the Palace Theatre for an engagement of two days. Ann Sothern's "Maisie" fans will find their favorite in a new characterizotion os the beautiful but dumb Dulcy who has a heart of gold and a faculty for getting everyone she meets into trouble.

Fence Posts Require Chemical Preservatives

With the annual replacement of posts required each year, it is easy to understand why many farmers inquire about giving chemical treatment to their fence posts to make them last longer. There are two principal types of treatment which have been developed; namely, the tar or creosote method, applied by dipping or submerging well seasoned posts into hot creosote; and the relatively new method of applying a zinc poison to freshly cut posts, using the natural process of sap movement to absorb the poison into the wood.

The zinc poison is proving very practical for farmers with woodlands containing willow, poplar, ash, basswood, and soft maple trees of cordwood size; yet this tire-tube method of treatment, as it is called, will work well on trees of almost any species.

The preservative used in the tire-tube method is known as zinc chloride. It is extremely poisonous to insects as well as to rotting fungi, but it has one weakness—it slowly dissolves and is carried out of the post by rain and ground water; yet if it is properly applied, it will add many years to the life of even such fast rotting woods as cottonwood and aspen or poplar.

The posts to be treated must be strictly fresh and green, and the bark must be left on. Dried or split posts will not take the chemical by this method. Posts from four to six inches in diameter at the small end are most easily treated.

Office supplies of any description may be obtained quickly through this office. Charlevoix Courier.—Adv. 3tf

American railroads report that most grade crossing accidents occurred in 1937 between five and six p. m. on Saturday, which is a good thing for farmers to bear in mind.

Oklahoma's Farm Chermurgic council has found that immature broom corn seed heads, heretofore a waste product, contains oil that is worth $7 a ton.

The new regional laboratories set up by the U. S. department of agriculture will have as their main purpose the search for wider uses for farm crops, particularly the surplus crops.

Hired men on the farms of the United States declined by 25 per cent since 1914. The average wage advanced in the same period from $22 to $27. It is a question if the efficiency of the men has been stepped up enough to balance the loss in numbers.

A farmer in Minnesota had a sow that produced a litter of blind pigs. He recently sold this litter at South St. Paul and topped the market. The pigs showed a remarkable ability in finding their feed.

SHOT AT RANDOM

If this column doesn't sizzle this week, it ought to, because some of it sure got hot Sunday. And if you can't hear it sizzle, you surely should be uble to smell it, for no doubt it usually "smells" anyway and now has a very good reason for such. A fire can cause an awful mess?

Mother: "Who taught you that wicked word?"
Small son: "Santu Claus."
Mother: "Santa Claus!"
Small son: "Yes, when he stumbled over my bob on Christmas morning."

Since publishing the group of letters addressed to Santa Claus last week, the postoffice crew just dropped the next letter so addressed into our mail box, so here's the message of another child:

"Dear Santa Claws:

Will you please bring me a doll with lots of dresses. I would also like 4-runner skates. Yours friend, Muriel Noonan. P. S.—I want my doll to be a Shirley Temple doll."

And writing what I am about to write gives me more pleasure than anything in a long while. Don Herrick informed me this morning that a summer resident who read the kiddies' letters to Santa Claus which were published in this column last week sent him a check for $25 to provide the things they asked for. Don't ever let anyone tell you there isn't a Santa Claus!

Just occurred to me that if everyone who belongs in Charlevoix comes home for Christmas, the old town's going to look twice its size, what with all the fellows working in Detroit and down-state points and all the young folks attending college. Hope they're all able to return!

Lizzie Hoehandle: "I'd like to buy a brassiere."
Clerk: "What bust?"
Lizzie: "Nothin', it just wore out."

What a surprise that deer hooter north of Nahmu must have got when the shot he fired at a supposed buck hit a bag containing 36 sticks of dynamite. What he thought was a deer was a gunnysack containing the explosive, hid in a trunk of a hollow tree for safekeeping by a contractor. The resulting explosion was heard for miles around.

If all railway tracks in the United States were extended in a single line, it would take a train, traveling at the rate of a mile-a-minute, 292 days to run from one end of the track to the other.

And just between you and me, the "package" dropped to us last Sunday was a long ways from a desirable Christmas present. I mean the fire.

The conservation department won't have one "trouble" to take to the state legislature if they follow the opinion of local sportsmen regarding opening a season on antlerless deer. Practically every sportsman you talk to is definitely opposed to any measure allowing legal killing of does. Possibly the only exception would be a law which would permit the taking of one doe or fawn for camp meat by a group of not less than four hunters, on a special license. Such a line of thought is only sensible when it is considered that killing does will bring the same elimination of Michigan deer herds as would comparable practice by dairymen of killing off the heifers and expecting to maintain their herds.

BENEFIT CARNIVAL DATE IS SET

MEMORIAL FUND PARTY TO BE HELD DECEMBER 28

Cooperating Organizations to Set Up Booths at School Gymnasium; Fine Program Planned

Saturday evening, December 28th, has been designated for the big carnival party to be given as a benefit for the Charlevoix Hospital memorial fund.

Success of the entertainment is already assured with pledges of cooperation with the sponsoring committee by numerous fraternal, religious and civic organizations to establish and conduct booths at the carnival.

While details have not been fully completed, such amusements as fish ponds, shooting ranges, "hall of horrors," various games, etc., are being arranged. The high school gymnasium and rooms in the grade school building will be used. It is estimated at the present time that at least fifty booths will be set up.

All proceeds from the carnival outside of actual expenses will be given to the Charlevoix Hospital fund to establish a memorial to the late Dr. R. B. Armstrong. This money, together with funds donated and derived from other benefit affairs will be pooled to provide a $1,500 local contribution to match a $3,000 pledge by summer residents for the memorial fund. Purchase of a modern x-ray machine and construction of an addition to house it, is planned.

Charlevoix citizens are requested to keep the date of December 28th reserved and make their donation to the memorial fund by patronizing the carnival.

Groups desiring to participate that have not already expressed their intention may contact either Bill Supernaw, Bob Miles, Edgar Behrens or Dean Davenport, members of the sponsoring committee.

ELLSWORTH CANNERY ENDS SEASON'S PACK

Reid, Murdoch & Co., Closed Record Run This Week

Reid, Murdoch & Co. finished their season's run and closed their canning factory at Ellsworth on Saturday of last week, with another record year to the company's credit.

The factory started operation on July 16 and had run constantly day and night during that time. Employing more men and women than last year, they paid out $100,000 for labor. The growers received a total of $200,000 for produce, about $1,000 of this being for beets and carrots which could not be delivered. The total paid for labor and produce combined, approximately $300,000, was $25,000 more than the company paid out last year.

The amount of produce canned will also run well over last year's pack. Much new machinery and equipment was also added this year and the plant was expanded by the addition of a large warehouse.

RAYDERS VICTOR OVER MANCELONA

HUNG UP 27 TO 19 WIN THERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Reserves Copped First Game by 36 to 7 Count—Play Alumni in Holiday Game Friday

Charlevoix high school's Red Rayder basketball teams hung up a pair of victories at Mancelona last Friday night. The varsity won by a 27 to 19 count and the reserves turned in a lop-sided 36 to 7 win.

The victory was the Rnyders second in conference competition. While lacking the aggressiveness which marked their win over Gaylord earlier in the week, the varsity squad showed sufficient power to lend all the way against Mancelona.

They had a 11 to 7 margin at the quarter, were out-scored 7 points to 5 in the second period, but led 16 to 14 at the half. The Rayders garnered 5 points to Mancelona's 4 to lead 21 to 18 at the third intermission and scored 6 to the losers single free toss in the final stanza.

Carey topped the Rayder scoring with 9 points, Stewart followed closely with 7 and Kohler netted 6. Swanson contributed two goals for 4 points and Gengle added a free throw to the total. For Mancelona, Velesz was high with 8. Coach Kipke used 9 players during the contest and Mancelona used a like number.

Charlevoix's reserves ran off with the preliminary contest in no uncertain manner for their first victory of the season. They led 12 to 2 at the quarter, 25 to 5 at the half. Don Bellinger's 14 points was high, Lusk scored 6, Martin 5, Gallagher 4, Chambers 3, Steffens and Rowe 2 each.

The annual Varsity-Alumni tilt scheduled for Friday evening, December 27, is next on the list for the Rnyders and is the only contest during the holiday season. They go to Rogers City on January 10th and make their next home appearance on January 21 against Petoskey's class B Northmen.

ACREAGE GOAL FOR '41 IS SAME AS LAST YEAR

Walter H. Henley, County AAA Chairman, Gives Schedule of Crops Payments

Notification of the rates of payment and the national acreage goals for the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program have just been received here, Walter H. Henley, chairman of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Conservation Committee, reported this week.

MILD INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC IN PROSPECT

Spread From West Coast May Be Expected in Michigan

Influenza in the mild form which is spreading east and south from the Pacific coast may reach Michigan, and if it does the State Health Department says that any person who becomes ill with flu should call a physician immediately and go to bed.

"Going to bed under the care of a doctor is the best thing that a victim of influenza can do," said Dr. H. Allen Moyer, State Health Commissioner. "The high fever, headache, pains in back and legs and extreme weakness which accompany flu make it unmistakeable. The attack is usually sudden, and comes on only a day or two after exposure to a case. Influenza is spread chiefly from person to person in the same way that a cold is spread."

The present epidemic of influenza may have been brought from Hawaii to the west coast when part of the fleet returned recently. Influenza became epidemic in the Hawaiian Islands in September.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Just between you and me, writing a letter to Santa Claus to give him a line-up on what you need at Xmas time, is the real thing! I got everything I asked for except a new car, which I really didn't expect. Of course you have to have excellent behavior during the preceding year, or you get left out. You might try it next Christmas.

The Cost of Crime—

In the minute it will take you to read this, fourteen persons will be sent to jail and insurance companies will have paid out forty dollars for burglaries and robberies. During these sixty seconds the Federal Bureau of Investigation will have filed two sets of finger prints and will have identified one person. Every minute costs America, $250 to maintain its prisons, and every minute crime costs you, the taxpayer, $3,000.

Perhaps it's none of my business, but regardless, I'd like to make a suggestion on the conduct of so-called "Feather" parties. Not so many years back, the local meat market operators handled a big volume of holiday fowl. Now, because of the numerous pre-holiday raffles, he sells only to those who come away from such affairs empty-handed and consequently can establish no

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's holiday light opera, "Who Won the Election?," which is now being presented on the front page by Dickinson, Van Wagoner & Company, is downright heavy "drammer" to party politicos even if the readers are only mildly concerned.

It was inevitable that a contest of power would ensue when voters jumped fences to elect a Democratic governor, lieutenant governor, and state treasurer, while returning a Republican secretary of state and auditor general, selecting a Republican attorney general and returning a Republican majority to both houses of the legislature—all in the same day!

Bi-partisan government may possess an intriguing allure to the man on the street. But to the officials in the statehouse, it's beginning to appear like a two-year headache that is already under way.

Here is the situation in brief.

LAND PURCHASES PROTECT ANGLERS' RIGHTS

Large Lake and Stream Frontages Bought With License Money

Michigan fishermen are getting their 40 cents' worth.

Forty cents of each dollar resident fishing license sold since last January 1 has been earmarked by the conservation department, with legislative approval, for purchase of land providing public access to lakes and streams, for improvement calculated to make fishing better and for research.

In the last 10 months, the conservation commission has approved purchases of 51 sites on lakes and streams in 29 counties in both peninsulas.

More than 14 miles of frontage has been acquired at a cost of $84,000.

Frontage acquired on lakes totals 26,670 feet; on trout streams, 36,650, and on non-trout streams, 11,300 feet.

Most recent acquisitions include 400 feet on Rose lake, Osceola county; 4,900 feet on the Sturgeon river in Otsego county; 300 feet on Big Shag lake, Marquette county; one mile of frontage on the Cedar river in Menominee county; 4,500 feet on Swanzy or Oliver lake in Marquette county; 100 feet on Frenchman lake, Chippewa county; 4,600 feet on Dowagiac creek and drain in Cass county; 225 feet on East lake, Kalkaska county; and 204 feet on Bower's harbor, west arm of Grand Traverse bay.

The fishermen's license money spent so far insures their right to fish, for all time, on 36 lakes, 11 trout and four non-trout streams in Allegan, Antrim, Berrien, Cass, Charlevoix, Chippewa, Clare, Crawford, Delta, Genesee, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Kalkaska, Lake, Lenawee, Livingston, Luce, Marquette, Menominee, Montcalm, Montmorency, Oakland, Oceana, Ontonagon, Osceola, Otsego, Presque Isle, Van Buren and Washtenaw counties.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Vitamins and Humidity

Housewives who wrap their green vegetables in damp towels or paper before storing in the refrigerator are following a procedure which has the hearty approval of science siace it conserves the maisture in the vegetable and thus preserves the vitamin conteat.

Addressing the division of agricultural and food chemistry of the Aaerican Chemical Society, meeting in Detroit, two invcstigators of the Massnchusetts Institute of Technology reported on experiments which tended to prove that wilting is a cause of Vitamin A and C destruction.

The scientists stored fresh green lettuce under various conditions in the conventional domestic refrigeratar at 41 degrees fahrenheit, 69 percent humidity and with air movement at 10 feet per minute; at slightly higher temperatures in the same type of refrigerator but with a humidity of 88 per eent and with only 2 feet per second air movement; and in "hydrators" or covered containers within these refrigerators.

The lettuce was then fed to rats known to be suffering from a deficiency of Vitamin A.

It was found thnt the rats obtained nearly twice the amount of Vitamia A from the lettuce which had been stored ia special high-humidity refrigerators and which had heen prevented from wiltiag, than from the vegetable which had been kept in the conventional type of refrigerator.

The result of the experiment eorresponds elosely with those obtained from other vegetables containing Vitamia C.

It waald seem, then, that "Wilt not, want not" would be an excellent aphorism for the housewife. Prevent wilting, and vitamins will not he wanting.

FASCISM SUNK

It may be that the incredible collapse of Italy, under the blows administered by the Greek and British armies, will turn out a blessing for the Italians. For it doesn't necessarily mean the collapse of the Italian people or Italian Civilization. It is primarily a revolt against autocracy and the Fascist system imposed on the Italian people by Benito Mussolini.

That statesman, now in eclipse and fallen physically and mentally far from his own ideal of a super-man leading a super-civilizntion, seems to be ending as he began—a mere political adventurer. His system is going to pieces under his feet. What will happen to Italy from now on is hard to say, but that country can hardly be worse off than it is. After a period of readjustment it may find itself again as an effective nation, playing an honorable part in the world that should arise when this ideological rubbish is swept away.

As for Adolf Hitler, he still lords it in Berlin and in the captive nations he has struck down and looted. But his time will come, too. And his fall may be greater than the Duce's because he has risen higher.

COKE FOR WAR STEEL

"Carrying coals to Newcastle" is nothing. Britain is shipping coke to this country, which has more coal and potential coke than England ever dreamed of. It has been coming at the rate of 50,000 tons a month, and the volume will probably increase. The coke is used in steel furnaces, and will help swell our steel production to a new record of 100,000,000 tons or so next year.

Many Americans have not yet realized the intensity of our industrial production, real or potential, in this and other lines. An expert says that it is not only greater than Britain's and Germany's output, and greater than all Europe's, but probably greater than that of all the rest of the world together.

There is a lag at present in this and other branches of our basic industries, but experts expect production to hit its war stride within the first half of next year. There is need of hurry, because British industry is so harrassed by the Nazi bombing, and the Germans are working feverishly to accumulate enormous munition supplies for their supreme effort next spring.

At this season of the year we wish to take the opportunity of expressing our thanks for your past patronage.

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT BULLETINS

Upper peninsula trout fishermen are rallying in support of the beaver.

Through the Northern Michigan Sportsmen's Association, they have recommended that a closed season on beaver shall be declared, to be continued indefinitely. Also, they want the conservation department to move beaver from slow-flowing to fast-flowing streams.

The conservation commission is getting the opinions of conservation officers and game area managers concerning the need for the proposed closed season. Take of beaver pelts has been climbing in recent seasons and investigators seek to learn whether beaver are increasing or whether the larger take reflects greater cunning and more ambition on the part of trappers.

A bear-shooting career begun nearly 70 years ago when he was six years old has enabled Art Jackson, aged woodsman of Roscommon county, to run his total of bear kills to 103. It is believed doubtful hereabouts that any other Michigan hunter can equal his record.

Jackson, who lives beside the Dead Stream swamp in the newly-established Dead Stream game area, administered by the conservation department's game division, made his 103rd bear kill in a part of the swamp which lies in Missaukee county. The bear weighed approximately 250 pounds.

Now past 70, Jackson finds bear hunting as exciting as when he shot his first with a muzzle loader when he was six years old. It might not have happened, he says, if he had not, against parental orders, taken a gun along with him in search of a stray calf. "After that all I wanted to do was hunt bear," Jackson says.

So far as Jackson is concerned, 500 and 600 pound bears do not exist; the largest bear he has bagged thus far weighed 450 pounds, he says.

Red Cross Report Corrected

In last week's Red Cross article, Mrs. Jay Adams, chairman of Marion township, was reported as having raised $8.00 for the annual Roll Call drive. The correct amount was $20.00.

STRICTER GUN LAWS RESULT IN ARRESTS

One-Fourth of November Violations Were Firearms Cases

The drive for stricter gun laws in Michigan is pointed up by convictions for conservation law violations in November, when one-fourth of the arrests were for improper possession and handling of firearms. There were 125 arrests for having loaded guns in automobiles, alone.

About 500 of the 577 offenses against conservation laws in November involved hunters, while 56 concerned trappers and only 16 took fishermen to court. Fines assessed will yield $8,000 for the state's library fund, while costs amounted to $3,500, and jail sentences totaled 955 days. Conservation officers lost only one case.

BENEFIT CARNIVAL SET FOR SATURDAY

This community's provision of $1,500 will be met with a donation of $3,000 by summer residents for the purchase of a modern x-ray machine and construction of addition to house the unit.

The sponsoring committee and various cooperating organizations urge everyone to respond generously to this worthy community undertaking.

County Land Use Planning Report Given to State Committee

The State Committee on Land Use Planning met on Thursday and Friday, December 19th and 20th, at the Michigan State College for the purpose of hearing the progress reports of the five counties which have carried on intensive land use planning this year.

Howard Stephens of Charlevoix, chairman of the Charlevoix county committee; Winfield S. Harrison, assistant county agent; and B. C. Mellencamp, county agent, gave the report for this county.

The report touched upon the history of the county, its distinguishing advantages, and the results of the studies carried on. Among these were the types of soils, present land utilization, valuations, indebtedness, cropping practices, and finally recommendations as to the proper use of state-owned lands. Other counties likewise gave similar reports, after which the state committee discussed the recommendations made.

The five most important recommendations, approved by our county committee and likewise adopted by the state committee, are as follows:

1. The $30.00 allotment for tree planting, offered by the A.A.A. last year, should be reinstated and continued in 1941.

2. The Hardwood State Forest Nursery should employ local labor, where practical, to supplement CCC labor, thereby offering a source of employment to farmers in areas adjoining the nursery.

3. The present system of selective cutting of timber on state-owned land within state forest areas is endorsed and in case of sales of state-owned land to individuals outside of forest areas the same supervision of selective cutting should be maintained.

4. Government loans should not be granted to farm units on land not suited for agriculture and, if on marginal or borderline land, only under strict supervision and after careful adjustments or changes have been made to safeguard the repayment of the loan.

5. All farmers qualifying for payment under A.A.A. must earn 25 per cent of soil building allowance before receiving any payment.

The Charlevoix county report is made up of some forty-five pages of material and discusses all types of agricultural information on which it was possible to get material and statistics. During the year forty-five meetings have been held in the county to present this information to local groups. This coming year the work is to be expanded to take into consideration the resort possibilities and to accomplish some of the recommendations that have been made.

Tuberculosis germs can resist drying and freezing, but can live only a few hours in sunlight or fresh air and die in a few minutes in boiling water.

Treatment of tuberculosis is successful in any climate of the United States. Giving up good medical care, comfort, and friends for the sake of a different climate is a poor bargain.

Workmen are assembling troughs and painting the interior of the newly constructed Oden state hatchery building, in preparation for its occupancy about the first of the year. Plumbing and electrical work are in progress.

The Oden building, a big hatchery, will produce trout.

Floral Legends of the Christmastide

To flower lovers the legends that have grown up around different species are always intriguing. At this season of the year those associated with Christmastide are naturally of special interest. Here are a few of them.

As the Wise Men rode into Bethlehem they heard no sound of welcome for the new-born King. Nor did they know where to look for Him, everything was so quiet and so dark. The star hung at rest in the sky. Then, looking down, one of the Wise Men spied a strange new flower with white, shining rays like a star, and he knew that at last they had reached the place. He placed the beautiful White Daisy in the hand of the Babe lying in the manger, who held it like a scepter as the Wise Men knelt before Him.

After the star had led the Wise Men to the manger it burst like a meteor and the pieces were scattered far and wide over the whole countryside. Each bit as it touched the earth took form as a pure five-petaled flower. The sight filled Joseph with awe, and he gathered a handful of the fallen-star blossoms and carried them in to Mary. Ever since, that flower has been called the Star-of-Bethlehem.

The little sister of one of the shepherds followed them to the manger but would not enter, because she had no gift to offer the Babe. With downcast head she turned away, when the sweet voice of one of the announcing angels called to her and asked why she was so sad.

"I have no gift," she replied tearfully. Then, lo! there at her feet she saw blooming some lovely white flowers.

"Roses for the Christ child!" she exclaimed and plucked a handful and gayly carried her offering to the Babe. The child dropped the golden gifts of the Magi and reached for the shining flowers. Since then the Christmas Rose has never failed to bloom at Christmas. — New York Times.

OUR CHRISTMAS

It was a rather military Christmas, in a way, for Americans. Among the children's toys are modern tanks, planes and so on. We may be thankful that it isn't more serious than that.

Speaking in general, this might be called a hemispheric Christmas. The presents will be nearly all American-made goods, with many toys from Latin-American countries and few from the war-torn Old World. They have other things to consider over there, and our trade with them has almost vanished. It was a slim Christmas, too, that they celebrated for themselves.

As for this country, the outlook is so tremendous that a sensitive person hesitates to mention it, remembering how things are abroad. The business statisticians say we spent about $5,000,000,000 on our Christmas. This vast sum, of course, wouldn't all be for luxuries. Nevertheless it makes us feel so rich that we're apologetic about it.

Scrofula, the ancient disease in England supposedly cured by the touch of the king, was actually tuberculosis of the lymph glands of the neck contracted by drinking milk from tubercular cows.

Lungs of a husky person are just as tempting to tuberculosis germs as are lungs of a thin man or woman. A regular check-up by x-ray is your only protection from tuberculosis.

We know some little boys whose daddies are planning a good time with toy train sets.

CHECKS ON DIET .PROTECTS HEALTH

What foods does it take to keep a Michigan boy or girl healthy?

Here is a method of checking a diet, suggested by members of the home economics department at Michigan State College.

The list of protective foods is suitable as a guide to a good daily diet for any growing boy or girl:

Milk—1 ½ pints to 1 quart.

Butter—1 to 3 servings.

Fruits and vegetables—4 to 5 servings. (Interchangeable to some extent).

A good balance is: 1 serving of potato; 1 serving of citrus fruit, tomatoes, or raw cabbage; 1 serving of green - or yellow-colored vegetable; 2 additional servings—fruits or vegetables (emphasize green or yellow kinds).

Whole-grain bread or cereals—1 to 2 servings.

Eggs, meat, fish, cheese, dried beans or peas—2 servings.

Total liquids (water, milk, soup, beverages)—2 quarts or more.

Drink water as soon as you get up in the morning.

Cod liver oil—1 teaspoon. (A fine supplement in winter when you cannot afford plenty of whole milk, butter, eggs, and green-colored vegetables.)

EDITORIAL

THE NEW GOVERNOR

Seldom has a new governor come into office with so much in his favor as Mr. Van Wagoner. The signs point to plenty of money and plenty of items to need reforming and easy ways already laid out to accomplish these betterments. All he has to do is put them into effect. Reform of state purchasing and reform of the liquor control commission are already made a mandate and all that is required in either case is more or less simple honesty coupled with a modicum of intelligence and complete removal of politics. Doesn't sound like a difficult task. Such matters as change in the state department of agriculture to promote efficiency and remove politics—what, again?—and creation of more efficient methods of tax collections, and setting up an honest budget which will work, also are plain mandates. Mr. Van Vagoner quite frequently is quoted as saying: "We will do it like we have been doing it in the state highway department." Well, there might be some carping critics who are not too enthusiastic over the way it was done in that department, at that. But, however, these items are accomplished, so long as they are done, that is the answer. They need doing all right.

HEALTHY YOUTH

The high rate of rejections of volunteers and draftees in the military forces has alarmed some people as suggesting general physical unfitness on the part of American youth. A statistical study made by a large life insurance company brings out a happier explanation.

Minor defects, only, were the grounds for a large part of the rejections. In the New York area, where one-third of the first men called were found unacceptable, the causes were tooth, eye or foot troubles which could be easily corrected. Some men were merely underweight. That, of course, might be the symptoms of a serious ailment. On the other hand, variations above and below the table of average weights are common and often normal and healthy.

On the whole, the company reports, these young Americans will be found to be healthier, better developed physically, and with fewer serious impairments than the draftees of 1917, 1918.

Certainly that ought to be true. Knowledge of various diseases, of nourishments, of preventive measures and of treatment has improved immensely in the last 22 years. It would be strange, indeed, if the youth of the land did not show the benefits of such health progress.

KROGER GIVES XMAS BONUS TO EMPLOYES

Divide $300,000 Among Low Salary Group; Increase Insurance

Distribution of Christmas bonus checks to approximately 800 employes of the Grand Rapids branch of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., which operates Kroger food markets in this area, was under way today, L. O. Griffin, branch manager, announced. Similar distribution was in progress throughout the company, he said.

Accompanying the checks was a personal Christmas greeting from Albert H. Morrill, Kroger president. In his message Morrill also informed employes that $500 had been added to their group life insurance policies for the year starting December 2, 1940, without any additional premium cost. This increases the value of their original $1,000 policies to $2,500, two other $500 increases having been effected previously.

Griffin said that directors of the grocery firm had appropriated $300,000 as bonuses to all who have been in the employ of the company for a year or more, except branch executives and keymen who already are participating in a profit sharing plan.

Kroger employes receiving Christmas bonus checks include store clerks and managers, warehouse, transportation, office and factory employes.

HENS NEED EXTRA VITAMINS DURING WINTER

More Than Lime Necessary to Produce Heavy Egg Shell

It takes more than lime to permit a hen to build a shell around an egg. Poultrymen whose hens are laying eggs with thin shells should examine the poultry rations.

Advice of C. G. Card, head of the poultry husbandry department at Michigan State College is that not enough attention is given to supplying birds with Vitamin D,—the mineral retention vitamin.

Egg gatherers often find that an egg shell breaks as the egg is being lifted out of a nest. The loss of the egg is serious but it also points a finger at the neglect of the flock operator. Supplies of limestone and oyster shell are commonly offered laying flocks but sometimes the thin shells appear in spite of that.

"Even if the hens are getting sufficient limestone to make egg shells, these hens may not be getting sufficient of the mineral retention vitamin," says Professor Card.

"Sources of this vitamin in spring and summer are in the sunshine. In winter an artificial supply often is needed in addition to what might be present naturally in the feed. Usual sources in winter are the fish oils."

NEW WINTER HIGHWAY MAPS ARE AVAILABLE

Copies May Be Obtained On Application at This Office

The state highway department has begun the distribution of newly revised winter highway maps and copies are now available at this office.

The new map carries for the first time a color photograph on the cover. The attractive water scene of Michigan characterizes a great deal of the landscape traversed by our Michigan highways.

The highway department aims to contribute as much as it possibly can by the way of highway service to the good reputation of Michigan as an all-year-round tourist state, and the highway map is one typical example.

SMALL GAME LICENSE GOOD TO SEPT 30, 1941

Special Permit Needed to Carry High-Powered Rifle

Small game licenses issued during the 1939 small game season are good until September 30, 1941.

A small game license and a gun permit are needed by any person wishing to carry a high-powered rifle or shotgun with buckshot, slug loads or ball cartridges, for shooting coyotes, foxes, crows or other unprotected animals, until the end of the last open season.

After all open seasons on protected animals are closed, the small game license and gun permit are needed for use of any firearm.

EDITORIAL

DOES MIGHT MAKE RIGHT?

Those who cling to the philosophy that "might makes right" like to remind Americans of their own conquest of the American Indians and others who stood between them and mastery of a continent facing two oceans.

Germany can see no justification for British control of vast areas thruout the world, most of it gained by gun and sword. And it is Nazi Germany that seeks to "equalize" these territorial "injustices" by the same weapons which served the British so well.

There was a time when all the strong nations of Europe, on the pretext of finding new trade outlets with Asia, attacked the "savages" they encountered. They piously contended that they would "Christianize" these people, but the primitive lust for new wealth and power was their chief motivating force.

We do not defend these acts, either in Europe or America, although historically those early conflicts did lead to an exchange of cultures greatly hastening new and more promising forms of civilization.

Now, however, the American people deeply respect and befriend the American Indian, and the British, despite many mistakes, have introduced education and other benefits among the people of their vast empire.

Civilization in France, Belgium, Holland, Poland, Denmark, Norway and elsewhere in Europe was sufficiently well developed to make bloody conflict unnecessary. If Hitler had been less of a politicinn and more of a statesman he could have brought prosperity to Germany without recourse to arms. Britain's early "appeasement" policy, while unfortunate in some respects, was superficial recognition of Germany's right to a higher economic position. But the Nazis, in their extreme vanity, chose war.

The well established democracies had outgrown the primitive doctrine of "might makes right." It was the Nazi leadership that proved itself "uncivilized" this time. But then, Germany never really understood democracy.

If the democracies have made any real mistake, it has been the assumption that others thought on the same high plane with them. For once we had advanced too rapidly to be realistic about the shortcomings of others. Realistic self-discipline is just as important as charity for our neighbors.

But no country calling itself civilized will ever remain peaceful and prosperous until it arbitrates its difficulties, both domestic and international. Hitler or those who succeed him will learn the truth of this in time.—Grand Haven Tribune.

CASH CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR ALL EMPLOYES OF MICHIGAN BAKERIES, INC.

Percy Owen, president and general manager of Michigan Bakeries, Inc., announces that, following its usual custom, the company will distribute gifts at Christmas to each of its 325 employees.

"Sharing earnings of the company with every member of our organization at this holiday time," says Mr. Owen, "is characteristic of Michigan Bakeries' policy of long standing. A week's vacation with pay was given last summer to each employee who had been with us a year or more. Vacations and bonuses are our way of showing company appreciation of the cooperative efforts of each member of our organization to promote the general success of our business."

Most people will cooperate if they have their own way.

Greetings . . .

Winter Fun

In several score Michigan communities, Christmas week will usher in the winter sports season. Upper peninsula cities and towns are preparing a program of carnivals and tournaments to be climaxed with the crowning of a winter queen at Marquette February 22. Below the straits, Grayling winter sports park, weather permitting, will bring the first snow trains from downstate before December ends. Other Michigan state parks, supervised by the conservation department, will provide facilities for winter sports enthusiasts, and many cities and towns are readying ski and toboggan slides and ice rinks. Above picture was taken in Ludington state park.

Who Runs Senate?

In the first place, the Republican dominated state senate has decided that Republicans should retain the privilege of committee appointments.

For a week or so factional strife threatened to divide G.O.P. ranks into two groups whom we will call the "regulars" and the "independents." Senator Earl W. Munshaw, Grand Rapids, was the choice of "regulars," while Senator D. Hale Brake, Stanton, was picked by "independents."

Hopeful democratic senators, sensing a possibility of a coalition majority composed of the ten Democrats plus one of the two Republican factions, had selected Senator Ernest C. Brooks, Holland, to be a coalition candidate for president pro tem.

It has been the traditional prerogative of the lieutenant governor to make all committee appointments, and under a party system where the minority seeks to check the majority at every political opportunity and where the majority desires to carry out the "popular mandate" as to the "will of the people," a legislative committee can be most helpful if the right legislators are in charge of its deliberations. The senate majority, however, can checkmate any appointment; hence the political tug-of-war.

Under the guidance of Senator Don VanderWerp, Fremont, as caucus chairman, the threatened Republican revolt was squelched and an agreement was reached whereby Senators Munshaw and Brake are to split the leadership. Munshaw will be Republican floor leader, while Brake will be president pro tem.

December 27 is the date of the next organization meeting at which time committee chairmen will be named. Frank Murphy, lieutenant governor-elect, has indicated he will probably co-operate. If the Republicans stick together, Murphy has no alternative.

Governor's Appointments?

While it may be legally possible for a Republican majority to override a Democratic lieutenant governor, the governorship holds vast powers, and Murray D. Van Wagoner, the popular choice by some 130,000 votes, is ready to live up to his campaign slogan of being a man "who gets things done."

After the November 5 balloting, Governor Luren D. Dickinson was in a most co-operative mood. He pronounced his blessing generously on Mr. Van Wagoner; said he might pick a Democrat to fill the vacancy of lieutenant governor between Nov. 5 and January 1; formally named Don Kennedy to be state highway commissioner.

Republican officials became openly alarmed at such astounding goings-on, and they implored the governor to be more sensible. Soon the honeymoon was over (if it ever began) and the word went out that Dickinson and Van Wagoner weren't seeing things, eye to eye.

Complicating the situation is the new civil service amendment which may "jell" thousands of appointees into state jobs, subject of course to court interpretation and, then to friendly administration by a civil service commission.

Defoe and Reid

A state bureau that has always offered generous patronage is the liquor control commission with a far-flung system of state stores and warehouses. The term of Murl H. Defoe, Charlotte newspaper editor, expired Sunday, December 15. Governor Dickinson believes that the temperant Charlotte editor merits a re-appointment, and he also has indicated that Alva M. Cummins is worthy of further state service.

On the unemployment compensation commission the governor's choices for immediate appointment are John Reid, secretary of the Michigan Federation of Labor, and Harry A. MacDonald; for the state labor mediation board, Arthur C. Lappin.

Although under normal circumstances the appointments of a retiring governor would never weather legislative acceptance, Dickinson's choices will go to a friendly State Senate. The strategy emphasizes the intention of the Republican legislative majority to prevent any wholesale housecleaning of state employees by starting at the top itself—the men who possess the power to hire and fire.

What the civil service amendment will do is a genuine puzzle. Attorney General-elect Herbert Rushton has intimated he will ask the State Supreme Court for an interpretation on the act's jurisdiction. There are also rumors that Rushton will frown officially after January 1, 1941, on any wholesale firing of employees, if such would be attempted.

Run Again in 1942?

Amid all the front page fuss over what who was going to do what and when, the 81-year-old governor released a youthful hint that he might be receptive to being a candidate for governor in 1942. Previously he divulged in an amused moment to the press that he recently received a number of proposals of marriage. And so it went.

It was all a bit confusing.

But with the last few days of his administration waning, the redoubtable Mr. Dickinson is astutely wielding his authority for all it is worth. Let it be known to one and all, Michigan in 1939 and 1940 has had a remarkable governor.

basis for stocking his coolers. Over in Cheboygan, instead of handing out dressed fowl to raffle winners, they give them an order redeemable at any local meat market. Thus the market operator continues to handle this type of trade which is justly his anyway, and everybody is satisfied. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

Charlevoix has never before had so many beautiful home Christmas decorations as this year. To mention them all individually would be an impossibility. Might suggest everyone spent one evening during the holiday season going about the city to see the many beautiful, unique designs. While so doing make it a point to stop at St. Mary's rectory. There is a most unusual decoration—outstanding for the significance it portrays, praiseworthy for the personal effort it represents. Examine it closely. In the meantime, orchids to the Charlevoix Garden Club for its efforts in arousing the keen interest in holiday home decorations these wonderful displays represent.

Mrs. A.—"How can Mrs. Jones afford to keep three servants?"

Mrs. B.—"Oh, she plays bridge with them every Saturday evening and wins back all their wages."

Editor J. L. Keddie of the Manistee County Pioneer Press must have had a lot of explaining to do recently when type lines from an obituary and club notice got mixed. The last paragraph of the obituary read something like this: "The next meeting place will be announced later."

Citizens of the area served by Charlevoix Hospital would certainly be a bunch of pikers if they couldn't raise $1500 to match $3,000 pledged by local summer residents to provide a modern x-ray unit as a memorial to our late beloved Dr. R. B. Armstrong. With this thought in mind, everyone can relieve their conscience by contributing generously at the carnival to be staged Saturday evening, December 28, at the school gymnasium to raise money for this memorial fund.

Acknowledge with deep appreciation a letter from Irving N. Klein, of Chicago, well known summer resident. Mr. Klein said: "I felt quite badly to read of the bad fire you had in your plant, but I got a real thrill over receiving the paper on its regular day. I look forward each week to receiving the paper because with its local news and your personal comments, I kind of feel that I am keeping rather close to a lot of good friends in Charlevoix. I want to wish you and your family a Merry Christmas and a Very Happy New Year." The same to you, Mr. Klein, also my expression of satisfaction that the Courier is so highly appreciated.

The astounding capacity of kids (for peanuts) unfolded itself to an amazing benefactor last Saturday at Mart Block's annual "Christmas Peanut Party." The only limit to the quantity of peanuts each could have was the child's capacity and if you could have seen them standing ankle-deep in shells you would know what I mean by "capacity." Well, what's Christmas for, anyway, if it isn't to make somebody else happy?

Just run across an instance where it took one year and four days for a letter to go from Petoskey to Ann Arbor, back to Petoskey and then to Charlevoix, which makes me think I'd hate to be away from home broke and have to wait that long for the money to reach me. Over a year ago, Mrs. Jess Gates sent a letter from Petoskey to a cousin at the University Hospital in Ann Arbor. The letter was returned "undelivered" to her last week. In the meantime the cousin died, so I don't suppose there's much use in trying to forward it any farther.

Wit from an exchange—

It's a good thing Christmas comes along right soon after election. It kind of changes the topic of conversation so that the losers quit growling and the winners quit crowing.

Have had a lot of folks ask how we go about to get our news. Well, here's somewhat of an explanation: "Mix a little Who? with a batch of What? Find out Why? and How? Then season with a bit of Where? and When? and you have a news story."

Well folks, will see you next year! In the meantime, accept my sincere wish that the New Year brings you all the good things you would like to have.

INCREASED BUDGET PLANNED NEXT YEAR

State Budget Director Gus T. Hartman announced Friday he would recommend to the incoming legislature appropriations of $88,379,024 for the next fiscal year, a $2,000,000 increase over this year's appropriations.

Hartman said that he would recommend appropriations for the general fund purpose for the 1942-43 fiscal year of $86,613,618.

Hartman estimated 1941-42 revenues to be used for general fund purposes at $88,865,250 and the 1942-43 revenue at $88,837.05.

A deficiency bill totaling $5,100,000, to come out of the 1940-41 revenues, also will be recommended to the legislature, he said. The deficiency bill brings the total appropriations for the present fiscal year to $90,013,038, he said.

Among outstanding numbers on the program were a violin solo, "Ave Maria," by Miss Evelyn Alexander, and a vocal duet by Miss Ernestine Chew and Miss Ora Howe.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a long table decorated with evergreen and colored tree lights.

ALUMNI TOSSERS DEFEAT RAYDERS

SCORED 24 TO 13 VICTORY FRIDAY NIGHT

Carey and Gallagher, Alma College Stars, Among Performers In Annual Holiday Contest

Basketball as it is played by college masters was displayed before a packed crowd at the gym last Friday night as the Alumni thumped the high school Red Rayders by a 24 to 13 count.

A trio of Careys—"Chuck," Tom and Keith—the latter Alma college's MIAA high scorer and former Charlevoix high school star, teamed with "Chick" Gallagher, present Alma college ace and formerly of local fame, and Keith Nickerson, to form the first-string Alumni squad. They alternated at quarters with Leslie Shapton, Harold Potter, Lewis Brown, Richard Bergmann and C. McGhan, former CHS players, to give the Rayders a basketball lesson.

How the game progressed is indicated by the score. A tight first quarter ended with the alumni leading 3 to 2, and at the half the alumni was out in front 10 to 2, holding the Rayders scoreless for the period. Each team counted 5 points in the third period, giving the alumni a 15 to 7 advantage going into the final period, which saw the winners net 9 points to the Rayders' 6.

The alumni scoring was well divided, McGhan, Keith Carey and Nickerson scoring 4 each, Shapton and Potter 3 each, Nickerson, Tom Carey and "Chuck" Carey 2 each. For the Rayders, Swanson was high with 5, Carey scored 4, Nowland 2, Kohler and Stewart 1 each.

After watching the classy ballhandling of the two Alma College aces, the crowd left with the impression that a far bigger score might have resulted had the alumni really "opened up."

The Rayders have two engagements away from home before returning to the local hardwood. They play Rogers City on January 10, Gaylord on January 16 and meet Petoskey here January 21.

BOYNE TO STAGE THIRD GOLDEN GLOVES EVENT

Dates for Tournament Scheduled for January 23, 24 and 25

Plans are under way for the third annual golden gloves boxing tournament at Boyne City.

Ernest Peterson Post, American Legion, is again sponsoring the event. At a meeting held December 26th, dates for the three-day tournament were set for January 23, 24 and 25.

It is expected entries will hail from all northern Michigan, some as far distant as Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie. Winners at Boyne will compete in the state finals at Grand Rapids instead of going through preliminaries at Grayling and Bay City.

Up to the present time, no word has been received of the entry of Oliver Duplessis, local youth who last year won the state novice lightweight title.

Those desiring to enter may obtain entry blanks by application to the Boyne Citizen, Boyne City.

CHRISTMAS MAIL SHOWS INCREASE

VOLUME THIS YEAR WAS MUCH HIGHER THAN IN 1939

Stamp Sales and Volume of Parcel Post Handled Is Reported by Postmaster J. M. Foster

Charlevoix kept pace with the rest of the nation in reporting a decided increase in Christmas business, indicated particularly by an increase of postage sales and parcel post deliveries through the local postoffice.

Postmaster J. M. Foster reports stamp sales this year were $1,736.84 as compared to $1,578.95 a year ago, an increase of approximately 10%. Postals receipts for the entire year of 1940 are expected to be $200 in excess of 1939.

The largest volume of incoming parcel post was the period from Friday through Monday preceding Christmas day. Every afternoon train brought several truck loads of parcel sacks which taxed the efforts of the entire postoffice crew and extra workmen to handle. The morning city mail delivery was advanced to an earlier hour to provide delivery of the previous afternoon's accumulation.

Postmaster Foster stated that it was due to the splendid cooperation of the public in mailing early this year, that enabled the postoffice crew to better handle the Christmas rush. Despite the heavy volume, mail was completely cleaned up every day at train time, reflecting credit upon the entire postoffice personnel for their diligent efforts.

PRIZES ARE GIVEN XMAS CONTEST

GLENN SEE, CHARLEVOIX OIL CO. AWARDED

Fr. Collins Receives Special Mention; Many More Homes Are Entered This Year

Awards in the second annual Christmas decoration contest were announced on Christmas Eve by the board of commerce, judges this year.

First prize for residences went to Glenn See, who had a life-size wallboard Santa Claus, complete with reindeer, on the roof of his home, and an artistic arrangement of blue lights and evergreen around the front door.

For business places, the award went to the Charlevoix Oil Co. Honorable mention was given Martin Block for outside decorations, and H. I. Ochs and Bergeon's for their interior decorations.

It was felt that special mention should be made of St. Mary's Rectory, where Fr. John W. Collins had transformed the front of the house to portray the Christmas story. The manger scene, in amazingly lifelike miniature, was the center of the plan, with wise men coming from the east, and angels hovering above. A loudspeaker system played Christmas carols, and over all shone the Star of Bethlehem.

Residences of Clinton Cooper, Arthur Ranger, Mayor Robert Bridge, Andrew Essenberg, Sheriff Floyd W. Ikens, and Ray S. Hamilton received honorable mention, as did the grade school building. This year more homes and stores were decorated with more planning and care than ever before.

Sponsors of the contest were the Charlevoix Garden Club, who presented prizes to those who were selected by the judges from the board of commerce.

WILL SEEK MONEY FOR STATE GUARD

LEGISLATURE WILL BE ASKED TO PROVIDE UNIFORMS

Organization of Troops to Replace National Guardsmen Is Required by Law

The incoming Legislature will be asked early in January to appropriate approximately $275,000 to purchase uniforms for the proposed Michigan state troops, Col. Leroy Pearson, state quartermaster general, has announced.

Pearson said the appropriation would be used to provide minimum uniforms for an estimated 3,500 troopsmen to be organized to act in the absence of the National Guard, and was scheduled to be supplemented by war department issue of rifles, bayonets and scabbards.

Pearson specified that $275,000 was a tentative estimate of the appropriation that would be requested. He said that future changes in organization plans might alter the amount.

Lieut.-Col. Roy J. Sindlinger, U. S. property and distributing officer for Michigan, revealed that he had submitted a requisition for material shortly before the war department announced its plan of issuing arms to state military organizations.

Organization of the troops is required by a state law calling for their establishment to assist civil authorities in the event of emergencies ordinarily met by National Guard mobilization.

Pearson said that the troops would drill in armories vacated by the mobilized National Guard units. In cities lacking armory facilities the community will be expected to furnish drilling quarters, he said.

The adjutant general's staff will select former army and National Guard reserve officers to command the troops, Pearson said. The troops will be on a voluntary basis, with members receiving no salary unless an appropriation for their pay is made by the Legislature.

LAKE TROUT SPAWN IS TAKEN BY FISHERMEN

Despite Storm, Results This Year Near Record Set in 1939

In spite of a poor beginning after the Armistice day storm, the take of lake trout eggs this season is just about three million short of the all-time high of 57,500,000 set in 1939. Commercial fishermen taking spawners after the reopening of the season strip them and turn the spawn over to the conservation department's fish division for hatching and rearing.

This season Lake Huron fisheries yielded 30,900,000 eggs, Lake Michigan produced 23,750,000 and Lake Superior 100,000. Thompson, Oden, Harrietta and Harrisville state hatcheries and the Duluth hatchery of the federal Fish and Wildlife service will hatch the eggs. Most of the young lake trout will be planted back to Great Lakes waters, except for a small number which will be planted in the few inland waters in which lake trout are established.

BIRTHDAY BALL HEAD IS NAMED

ROY WINEGARDEN, BOYNE CITY, IS CHAIRMAN

Annual Party to Aid Infantile Campaign Schedule January 30—Will Name Committees

Charlevoix county's part in the nation-wide "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign is in the process of being mapped out following the appointment of Roy Winegarden of Boyne City as general chairman for the county's activity again this year.

Appointment of Mr. Winegarden by national headquarters marks the second successive year that he has served as general chairman in this county for the celebration of the President's birthday.

Mr. Winegarden will shortly announce his committees to represent various cities and townships of the county as assistants in preparing the program.

The birthday party will be held the evening of Thursday, January 30, and activities are expected to follow closely those of previous years. In past years a dancing party has been held at The Argonne, and no doubt a similar event will be held there this year.

Proceeds derived from the party will be combined with funds raised by the "March of Dimes" to carry on the national campaign against infantile paralysis. A portion of the proceeds remain in the county to be administered by the local Infantile Paralysis Chapter, and the balance is sent to the national committee.

Petitions are being circulated in this city and Charlevoix county for the nomination of Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, as circuit judge of the 13th judicial circuit.

With the completion of his present term, Judge Gilbert will have served the district, comprising Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties, for 18 years. Present indications are that Gilbert will not be opposed, thus eliminating the necessity of a spring primary election.

Proceeds Aggregating $280.72 Turned Over to Charlevoix Hospital Memorial Fund

Marking a fine manifestation of community cooperation, Saturday night's hospital benefit carnival staged at the school gymnasium was a great success.

No less than 42 organizations, groups, clubs and individuals combined their efforts with those of Dean Davenport, Bill Supernaw, Edgar Behrens and Bob Miles, the sponsoring committee, with the result that $280.72 was contributed to the fund being raised to provide a memorial at Charlevoix Hospital for the late Dr. R. B. Armstrong. As reported Monday, total proceeds aggregated $325.38. Expenses were $44.66.

The carnival provided a most varied group of amusements, booths and entertainment features. Public response was indicated by the huge throng which milled through the gymnasium, school rooms and basement corridors where booths were set up from an early to late hour.

Following are the cooperating groups and individuals, type of booth or contribution, and amount taken in:

Dickens Club, lunches and baked goods, $24.30; U. S. Coast Guard, penny pitch (two lamps donated), $2.23; T. M. T. M. SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Greetings, everybody! This is 1941, a brand new year. What it will bring for you and I, nobody knows, but we can all be assured of one thing, the measure of success or failure to come will depend on our own efforts. Let's make it Charlevoix's biggest and best!

Just in case you hadn't figured it out that way for yourself, the spirit of cooperation manifest by that fine hospital benefit carnival last Saturday night is a sample of the kind of community effort that accomplishes things.

Well, another year has gone by and we haven't substituted, "Heil Hitler" for "Merry Christmas" yet.

If I hadn't known Carl Kohler's reputation for sobriety, I'd have thought something was wrong with him when he told me last Saturday that the night before he'd picked up night-crawler angler worms. And

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

When historians record the world events of 1941, Michigan may rightfully have merited a place of distinction.

We refer to an American man of the hour—William S. Knudsen.

Upon the shoulders of this General Motors past president rests a responsibility of appalling consequences.

Military experts agree that the second war has not been a battle of men, but a battle of machines. They also point out that Hitler's present domination of Europe, the constant parade of falling democracies, has been due, to a large degree, to a totalitarian application of mass production methods conceived in democracy.

In other words, the Michigan automobile assembly line!

It is a sober fact that a decade ago, before Hitler's coup in 1933, a delegation of German industrial experts visited the Detroit automobile

WINTER ICE ANGLERS PREPARING FOR SPORT

Ice Has Formed on South Arm of Lake Charlevoix

First ice nn the northern Michigan lakes already has supported the first fish shanties of the brave souls who vie with each nther and risk a wetting in the chill waters to see who will be the first to get their "coop" out.

Ice has formed on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix and any day now reports of smelt fishing in the vicinity of Holy Island are expected to come nut of the north country.

Beulah, on Crystal Lake, and Boyne City, on the north arm of Lake Charlevoix, usually do not get ice of sufficient thickness to support their fishing villages untll after the first of the year. When the wind swept waters finally are conquered by the chill the ice forms thick and fast, and fishing villages uf several hundred shanties dot the ice at both places.

SCIENCE LOPS OFF ONE-SIDED FOODS

Forget that once-popular fashion of worrying about just vitamins, just counting cnlories or just specializing on energy or protein content of foods.

That is the modern advice handed out by nutrition specialists at Michigan State College and given approval in nearly all centers of foods learning today.

Lop-sided interest in foods is wrong, they contend. They advise better balance in meals and better knowledge of how to supply this balance in fuel, protein, vitamins and minerals.

For those who worry about being underweight or overweight there's good news for Michigan dairymen. Milk is an excellent food and well balanced whether it's for persons who want to reduce or want to gain in weight. Cereals and bread also get apprnvnl.

Certain low-calory fruits and vegetables also belong in both gaining and reducing diets. These include tomatoes, citras fruits and the leafy vegetables such as kale, chard, collards, spinach, Brussels sprouts and green cabbage. Other protective vegetables include carrots and squash and the green ones — broccoli and peas. An egg a day still seems to be a food rule.

Where weight is a factor, then nutrition science says to cunsult a doctor before embarking on n very rigid diet. In general the reducing process involves reducing portions of sweets and fats and staying away from pnstries and foods fried in fat.

Tuberculosis is not hereditary. It is sprend, as are all other contagious diseases, by infected persons.

There are many ways to make money if you only get to work on one of them.

50,000 Acres of State-Owned Land In Charlevoix County

The State Department of Conservation has requested the township committees, appointed to work nn the Cnunty Lnnd Use Planning Project, to cnrefully discuss state-owned lands and to make recnmmendntinns as tu its most desirable use. During the month of November all township committees were met and it is interesting to note their recommendations:

To be retained: 1. For state and national forests, game area, etc.—36,137 acres. 2. Township forests—120 acres. 3. School furests—617 acres. 4. Airport — 240 acres. 5. Grazing under permit — 80 acres. Total—37,194 acres.

To be sold: 1. For farming—5,750 neres. 2. For grazing—4,470 neres. 3. For private forestry—620 acres. 4. For private hunting and fishing—140 acres. 5. For commercial recreational area—1,160 acres. Hotal—12,140 acres.

It can rendily be seen thut only a small part of the present state-owned land would find its way back to the tax roll if the recommendations of the committee are followed. Hnwever, if the state coald sell timber land or cut-over land with the provision that any timber removed will he on a selective cutting basis and that the land could not revert, then the township committeemen would have recommended that a lot of land be snld. Until such time as provisions can be made for the disposal of state-owned land nn the above basis, it was the opinion that the state should keep lands of that nnture.

It was felt that the state should sell state-owned lnnd where it coald be added to regular fnrm units and make them that much more efficient and prnfitable. Also, the matter of roads and schools was kept in mind ns in no case was state-owned lnnd recommended for sale where it was remnved any distance from the road. It is grntifying tn note the wonderful interest shown by farmers in working out these varions problems lhat confront agriculture. It is a healthy condition when local people can make their recommendatinns nnd have them really receive proper consideration among the higher-ups.

Grand Traverse Erosion Control Demonstration Visited By Charlevoix County Farmers

On December 14 seventeen farmers from the Boyne City area, accompanied by the Smith-Hughes agricultural teacher, H. H. Lytle, visited the Grand Traverse erosion control demonstration. These farmers were able to get first hand information on contour strip cropping, proper land use, sodded water-ways, temporary dams, proper rotations, fertilizer, and seeding treatment. Most of the time was spent at the Neil Morrison farm at Acme, where all of these practices were viewed. The following farmers made the trip: Ed. Feldt, Henry Johnson, Ray Patrick, Robert Tainer, James McNeal, Charles Reidle, Peter A. Jensen, Clyde Clute, Bert Lumley, William Thayer nnd Howard H. Lytle, of Boyne City, Elden Jones, Harry L. Smith, Franklin Sneathen, Lyle Demerest, and Howard Stephens, of Charlevnix; Charles Healey and John Noble, of East Jordan.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the cnunty on contour and strip cropping. The AAA program, the coanty committee of our Land Use Planning Pruject, and the members of the Smith-Hughes night class have all indicated their interest in seeing snmething accomplished in Charlevoix county by passing resolutions that several demonstrations be conducted this year. Already the official npplication for this type of activity has been forwarded to the proper agencies at the Michigan State College. We certainly hope that three or four farms can he selected as demonstration farms so that these desirable practices may be demonstrated to all farmers throughout the county.

I THANK YOU . . .

NOVEMBER SALES TAX COLLECTION A RECORD

Over Million Dollars More Than Same Period Last Year

Sales tax collections for the first 23 days of December from business transacted in November totaled $6,100,632, an all-time high, Walter F. Reddy, deputy state sales tax director has announced.

Reddy said the November collection represented an increase of $1,100,181 over a similar period in 1939.

Use tax collections in November, 1940, were $97,507, Reddy said, compared with $68,873 in November, 1939.

Reddy attributed the increases to the upturn in business conditions, amendments of the sales tax act by the 1939 legislature and more efficient administration.

The Red Geranium

I like the red geranium
Because it is so gay
The bit of bloom it puts into the room
Of cruel gray days.
In windows there are many to be by
It shows a woman's care,
And always I am glad to spy
Its flash of splendor there.
It is a sturdy plant that thrives
And seems to be content
To light with grace the window space
Of shack and tenement.
The red geranium gladly shares
What humble folks endure,
And seems to me well pleased to be
The orchid of the poor.

Author Unknown.

Thanks to Mrs. John Burns for the lines quoted above.

The common geranium needs no introduction, but even the geranium needs a little care. Full sunlight, not too much water, and a cool temperature are essential items. Plants over one year old should be discarded, and replaced with young specimens started from cuttings taken in the spring or summer.

It is not generally known that there are scores of different varieties, having a wide range of flower colors, shapes and sizes. Try ivy and the trailing geranium; they make a nice hanging arrangement.

Charlevoix is still wearing its holiday dress. Don't we look fine?

Thanks for the orchids tossed to us in last week's column, Ken!

plants and witnessed with admiration the astonishing efficiency in production of a constantly advancing line of machine parts which finally grew into a finished product, ready for immediate consumer use.

"Total Defense"

It is significant that in the 1941 battle of machines, the fate of England may rest on whether the United States can achieve under democratic processes maximum production of vitally needed arms.

As the mass bombing of English industrial centers will continue to cripple the manufacture of munitions and arms, it is becoming increasingly evident that the English must put greater reliance on American plants to replace lost production and to effect ultimate superiority of machines.

And hence the importance of an appeal by Mr. Knudsen to the American people "to pull off their coats and roll up their sleeves and give their concentrated undivided attention to one thing—the swiftest possible production of the means of defense."

Because Michigan is first among all states in volume of government arms contracts let to date, we cannot dodge the responsibility that accompanies these defense orders. One newspaper writer in a dispatch from Detroit referred to the predominating sentiment today in Michigan as "a mixture of determination and resentment," as follows:

Determination to achieve a swift output of war machine goods.

Resentment against critics for expecting miracles overnight in an engineering task that demands blueprints and machine dies before mass production can begin.

Management, Labor

In turning to Michigan industries the federal government is placing a heavy burden on not only management but also on labor.

Otto Tolischus, Pulitzer winner for foreign correspondence from Germany, recently pointed out at a dinner in Detroit that this war was one of motors and that Michigan held a trump card.

Unless we—and apply it to Michigan—can effect a further speed-up of supplies to Britain, the United States may face Hitler alone in 1941, he warned.

Tolischus said the French collapse was due to French emphasis on social benefits, while Germany was busily rearming herself. German industrial production rose from 54 to 130 while French fell from 75 to 67, all during the familiar period of 1932 to 1938.

Mr. Knudsen called it our Friday night to Monday "black-out." He admits that plane production is 30 per cent below expectation. He deplored the machine-tool industry bottlenecks, and he appealed to management and labor alike to accomplish the "impossible" in view of the "terrible urgency of the situation."

Overtime, Strikes

In breaking the bottlenecks, and in achieving the "impossible," industry is confronted with many problems. Here are a few:

1. Can labor be induced to work six days instead of five without the penalty of overtime wages?

2. Can labor be induced to forego strikes in national defense plants unless management is given ample advance notice, say 30 days?

Labor's problems include these:

1. Can management be induced to share the profits of war orders by payment of overtime wages?

2. How can labor retain its present social gains—collective bargaining, higher wages, etc.?

Presidential Powers

If both management and labor fail to achieve the "impossible" in meeting the demands of the present crisis, then look for the declaration by the president of a national emergency which would bring the near equivalent of a military dictatorship.

A further step would be our actual involvement in the war (we are already in the war financially) under which the president, by the 1936 mobilization plan, could commandeer any manufacturing plant, fix prices, regulate sale and distribution of commodities, and even provide a "system of licenses for organizations or persons engaged in manufacturing, mercantile, or public-service industries."

Roy O. Woodruff, Michigan representative to Congress, has even hinted that the bogging down of the defense program was a political conspiracy to create a public demand for the enactment by congress of the 1936 war dictatorship plan.

This may appear to be far-fetched. However, the question does remain: Will management and labor work together under a democratic peace-time economy to a degree greater than ever before? The alternative may be compulsory regimentation by Washington—the ultimate goal of national socialism.

Defense But Not War?

Despite the vast astronomical spending of federal money in Michigan because of arms awards, the sentiment of Michigan residents is divided as to whether we should continue a policy of isolation under national defense or participate actively with men and arms in defense of Britain.

It is reported reliably that the preponderant opinion among the Polish [illegible] in Detroit is against all-out aid. Even Detroit's 100,000 Canadian-born residents are not united on this point.

As for labor, both CIO and AFL leaders oppose the sending of man power overseas.

The American Legion through its national defense committee chairman recently declared: "We are against the use of a single soldier, sailor or ship in a way likely to get us into the war."

General Marshall, Secretary of War Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War Johnson and Mr. Knudsen all advise that an army of a million men will not be trained and equipped until the end of 1941.

Warships and Planes

A two-ocean navy will not be completed until 1945, although we do possess the largest single-ocean navy of any nation in the world.

Pilots and planes adequate to defend the United States will not be ready until 1942.

Representative Fred Bradley of Michigan returned last week from a 12-day trip to the Canal Zone. Bradley asserted: "There is not a modern bomber in the Canal Zone . . . I was told the fastest airplane there was capable only of making 140 miles an hour."

Senator Arthur Vandenberg has asked Mr. Knudsen to make public "full information" on the progress of our defense program.

In this period of emergency the new governor of Michigan, Murray D. Van Wagoner, may wield a disciplining influence. He is capable of strong leadership; he has the confidence of a substantial majority of Michigan citizens.

Thus in our present national crisis—one which is also the crisis of Britain—fate has decreed that Michigan plants and Michigan men are to play crucial roles. What we do, or fail to do, during the coming months may shape the course of our lives for many years to come.

CCC CAMP WOLVERINE
News Bulletin

Parents of Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees and other interested citizens have but little conception of the complex organization required to operate the average CCC camp. Nearly everyone knows that enrollees are well clothed and comfortably housed; that the average enrollee gains pounds in weight during his "hitch;" that many complete elementary school, high school and college training, or learn trades and acquire skills while in the camps; that the CCC built a dam, or fire tower or developed a state park in the vicinity, but few people know that different groups of people are responsible for each of those various accomplishments.

The seventy-fifth Congress of the United States of America passed an act establishing the Civilian Conservation Corps for the purpose of providing employment and vocational training for youthful citizens of the United States, who were unemployed and in need of employment, and, to a limited extent, for war veterans and Indians, through the performance of useful public work in connection with the conservation and development of natural resources of the United States and that at least ten hours each week should be devoted to general educational and vocational training. The president was empowered to appoint a director, with the consent of the senate, to direct the activities of the corps in carrying out the purpose of the act.

Three agencies cooperate directly with the director in organizing the corps. The Civilian Conservation Corps division of selection, through its representatives, selects those eligible for enrollment. The United States Army and its affiliates examine, enroll, house, clothe, feed and provide medical attention for the enrollees.

The Bureau of Education of the United States Department of Interior provides an educational adviser and much instructional material for each camp and cooperates with local schools and other organizations for providing educational and vocational training in the camps.

When all of the above mentioned agencies have completed their initial organization duties, [illegible]pply of labor is then available for the accomplishments of the needed conservation work. The corps can rightfully be considered a labor agency. It has no work projects of its own but relies on the various conservation agencies to provide approved types of work for its members to do.

At this point several other public agencies are brought into the picture. The U. S. Forest Service, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Soil Conservation Service, National Parks Service, U. S. Indian Service, and various State Conservation departments are some of those charged with the conservation and development of the nation's natural resources which provide the work on which the corps is engaged. They are usually referred to as the "using agencies or services." In addition to planning and laying out of the work for accomplishment by the corps, theirs is also the responsibility for selecting the supervision required to bring to the desired state of completion the scheduled work.

Thus, when the camp is established, the work provided, the selectees enrolled and the supervision provided, we find in each camp, three different agencies represented. The Army personnel engaged in housing, clothing, feeding and looking after the welfare of the enrollees. The Bureau of Education representative or educational advisor planning and coordinating the educational and vocational training facilities of the camp and the "using service" personnel training the enrollees to do the work and supervising them while they are engaged on the work projects as well as procuring the necessary tools, equipment and materials required to complete the work.

That all Civilian Conservation Corps stake body and pickup trucks and passenger cars carry a large sized, completely equipped "first aid kit," and that in nearly every instance the driver of the vehicle or one of the passengers is the possessor of a Red Cross certificate, certifying that the bearer is a trained administrator of first aid treatment, is a fact unknown to the general public.

The significance of this lies in the fact that in any case where a CCC motor vehicle of the types noted is involved in, or overtakes, an accident, there is a trained man and the necessary equipment immediately available to minister to the needs of the injured. This service is only one of the Civilian Conservation Corps many contributions to the public welfare that is seldom recognized.

In addition to those vehicles mentioned, many CCC dump trucks carry first aid supplies when traveling the public highways and minor roads.

The Michigan State CCC operates approximately 100 stake body trucks, 36 pickup trucks, three passenger cars and many dump trucks equipped with first aid kits at all times.

The drivers of these vehicles, in addition to having to successfully complete a stiff course in truck driving must be the holders of Red Cross first aid certificates or be enrolled in the regular sixteen hour first aid course and complete it in the required length of time. In addition to the driver, each CCC foreman and at least one enrollee with each crew being transported in CCC vehicles must have a Red Cross first aid certificate.

Hunters, tourists, and all motorists should keep this information in mind, and remember at all times when traveling the highways and sideroads of the north central part of the lower peninsula and the eastern half of the upper peninsula that emergency help of this nature and perhaps other sorely needed assistance may be procured, if the need is not recognized and offered, by simply signaling for a "stop" to the drivers of the golf-green vehicles bearing the now well-known emblem of the CCC.

AT THE MOVIES

Bette Davis Stars in "The Letter"

W. Somerset Maugham wrote the play, Betty Davis is the star and William Wyler the director. The film is "The Letter," long awaited by movie audiences throughout the country, which promises to offer magnetic entertainment when it opens at the Palace Theatre January 4.

Gripping, in the best Maugham style, the play made record runs on Broadway and on the legitimate stage throughout the world. Its powerful drama, smoothly drawn by its writer and scenarists, makes a perfect vehicle for the rare talents of Miss Bette Davis.

Bette Davis—a name now full of magic to those who appreciate the art of acting—plays Leslie, wife of a Singapore plantation owner. Sunve, British Herbert Marshall is her husband.

"Brigham Young" Called Zanuck's Greatest Film

The epic and heroic Mormon trek along a trail of almost insurmountable odds to ultimate freedom is one of the most impressive chapters in the growth of America. Because of the valiant battle they fought to find a place where they could live as they believed, much has been written about them and their leader, Brigham Young. But it remained for Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief for 20th Century-Fox, to realize the screen potentialities of such a colorful subject. Zanuck, who has recreated many outstanding characters and events for the screen saw in Brigham Young and his people a stirring story—and decided to bring it to life. The famous Louis Bromfield was assigned to write the story for the production of "Brigham Young," which comes January 8-9 to the Palace Theatre.

Tyrone Power was given the important role of Jonathan Kent, Mormon scout in "Brigham Young." Opposite him is beautiful Linda Darnell as "the outsider." Twice denied success in Hollywood, Dean Jagger had returned to the New York stage where he had first made his mark. Last season he portrayed Jesse James in the stage hit, "Missouri Legend." Rugged, two fisted, a capable actor, Jagger seemed ideal for the role of the Mormon leader, and got it.

"Brigham Young" has an impressive list of featured players including Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers and Ann Todd.

KNOW ● YOUR BANK

A Bank's Investments

AFTER a bank has taken care of its demands for sound loans it invests any available additional funds in high grade bonds so that this money will be profitably employed.

In making investments the bank must always keep in mind that its primary obligation is to safeguard its depositors' money, and be prepared to return it whenever the depositors want it. For this reason, in purchasing securities, the first consideration is the safety of the money invested. The second is liquidity—that is, that the investment may be readily sold without loss. The third is yield or income from the investment.

In buying bonds large banks have investment departments which devote their entire time to analyzing securities to determine those most desirable for the bank to purchase. Small banks have access to this information through correspondent bank relations.

then, to make argument further impossible, he had the proof in a big, lively, juicy morsel of bass tid-bit. Doesn't sound much like winter, does it?

And speaking about winter, bet most housewives gave plentiful thanks for the nice week-end snow flurry which covered the grime and sand left from more than a week of thawing weather. If you had any kiddies in the home, you no doubt was able to appreciate how almost impossible it was to keep the floors clean of the sand they tracked in.

Those of you who didn't hear President Roosevelt's message Sunday night missed a talk which will go down in history for the weight of its import. It was a masterful appeal to the people of our democratic nation to forget all thought of personal gain in a united effort to guard the freedom our country stands for; a promise of more substantial aid to citizens of those nations fighting to retain the freedom we so fondly cherish; a blunt warning to such maniacs as Hitler and Mussolini that their ambitions to dominate the world will be defeated.

They tell me that Boyne City's Bob Davis was a popular fella over the holidays. While cleaning up the basement of his store shortly before Christmas, he found a bottle of Hayner Rich Private Stock dated November 30, 1897. Everybody wanted to sample that 43-year-old stuff!

Little Muriel Noonan was one of the children whose appeal to Santa Claus was made a delightful reality through the generosity of a summer resident donor. She expresses her appreciation as follows:

"Dear Santa Claus:

I want to thank you very much for my pretty doll and skates. I like them very much. I will keep my doll nice and clean.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Dutton, former local residents now living at West Branch, dropped in Monday to see what was left of us since the fire. The "Duts" remarked they liked to read this column and, seein's how they used to know me quite well when I was a kid, said some of the things I wrote expressed thoughts which brought back to them former memories of me. And I told them if I printed all that was on my mind sometimes, they'd probably put me in Leavenworth or some such place of safe-keeping.

Seeing Allie Moore go through his routine on roller skates at the benefit carnival last Saturday night brought back memories to this writer. Myself, and perhaps many others, can remember when Allie took on and beat all comers in a speed race at the old skating rink located on the present Olds property on the south shore of Round lake. Also recall when Allie trained for his last 7-day skating race. Part of his routine was running cross-country to Big Rock Point and back. He used to skate on a second-story hardwood floor in the south end of the old beet sugar factory and I was one of the admiring kids who used to watch the former world's champion in action. Will admit Allie wasn't up to his old-time form Saturday night, but it must be remembered there's been a long span of years since he was at his best. Bet you give him a chance to practice up a bit and he'd cut some fancy capers on skates today.

Prior to this year the filing deadline has been late in January.

ISSUES WARNING TO TRANSIENT WORKERS

No Jobs in Florida, State Industrial Body Head Statement Says

The Michigan State Employment Service has been called on by Parks Glover, chairman of the Florida Industrial Commission, to warn workers, skilled and unskilled, not to migrate to Florida in search of work.

"The influx of transient workers from other states," Glover declared, "is creating a serious problem in Florida. Thousands of workers are coming to Florida expecting to obtain work on one of our many defense projects.

"In addition to these thousands," he continued, "we have the transients who habitually come into the state annually to avoid the winter of the north. We would like to warn all workers that there are no jobs available in Florida. All workers, skilled and unskilled, should postpone migration to Florida unless they are certain before leaving home of employment here."

Glover suggested that workers contact any one of the 51 offices maintained by the Michigan State Employment Service for information concerning job opportunities in other states.

The Michigan employment service, it was explained, constantly is furnished with information concerning job openings in other states, and through a nationwide clearance system, operates to save workers much needless expenditure of time and money in fruitless trips elsewhere in search of work. Local offices of the Michigan State Employment Service are listed in the telephone book. Workers are urged to register at their office if they have not already done so.

REGISTRATION ALIENS COMPLETED THURSDAY

Ninety Were Registered at Postoffice Before Deadline

The job of registering and fingerprinting 90 aliens at the Charlevoix postoffice and an estimated 260,000 in Michigan, was completed last Thursday evening.

Any who failed to register during the past four months are subject to arrest and prosecution which carries with it maximum penalties of six months in jail, $1,000 fine, or both.

There was no last-minute rush of registrations at the local postoffice. Four aliens registered between the period from December 18 to the final day, December 26th.

Postmaster Foster was aided by other members of the postoffice staff in taking registrations. Those who come for registration after the deadline will have to fill out a form stating their reasons for being tardy.

It was stated at the postoffice that the work resulted in no unpleasantness. Indifference, lack of understanding and finances were reasons particularly why most of the aliens had not already been naturalized. Many had voted for years under the impression they were full citizens only to discover they just had their first papers.

WILL CONTINUE SURVEY COAST GUARD AIR BASE

Locate Plane at Traverse City for Patrol Next Summer

Establishment by the U. S. Coast Guard of an air base on the Great Lakes today awaits further investigation to determine its necessity.

This information was contained in a news article appearing Monday in the Traverse City Record-Eagle, which made the announcement that city had been chosen as the base for a mobile air station "to protect the Great Lakes by air patrol and to conduct an investigation of permanent needs."

The article further revealed that as soon as the ice leaves Lake Michigan, a detachment of 12 or more coast guard men would be located at Traverse. Providing the crew for a twin engine Grumman amphibian will be a pilot, a co-pilot, three mechanics, a ground crew of three radio men, three seamen and one or two others.

The coast guard board, it is understood, will seek more data about prospective locations before a final selection of the permanent base, if approved by congress, is made.

NEW BRIDGE PLAN AWAITS APPROVAL

COUNCIL HAS HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT DRAWINGS

Bascule Type Bridge to Cost An Estimated $350,000 Planned for US-31 Channel Crossing

Plans for the state highway department's proposed new bridge over the channel between Round lake and Lake Michigan on US-31 have been placed in the hands of the city council for approval.

The plans show a Bascule (jackknife type) bridge 90 feet long with two 45-foot spans. The structure is 56 feet wide, including 44-foot roadway and 6-foot walks on each side. The present pivot type bridge is 72 feet long with 24-foot roadway.

It is understood plans call for taking bids on the structure within a short time and for construction within the present year. The estimated cost of $350,000 includes $50,000 for a temporary pivot type bridge to handle traffic while the new bridge is under construction. It is understood the temporary bridge will be erected east of the present bridge, with traffic swinging off Bridge street on the street leading to the municipal dock, swinging north across the temporary bridge over the channel, thru the Charlevoix Lumber Co. yards and back to the highway again. Trestles will lead up to the temporary bridge on each side of the channel.

Working in conjunction with the highway department plans, the city council Monday night adopted a resolution authorizing the city to furnish cable and water main materials to be laid by the highway department when the new bridge is constructed. Under this plan, the city's obligation will be cost of materials.

CHARLEVOIX KIWANIS ACTIVITIES

To assist the campaign to raise sufficient funds to purchase an x-ray machine for the Charlevoix Hospital, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club at its meeting here last night voted to contribute $50.00 to the fund.

Rollie L. Lewis, 1941 club president, appointed some of the committees for the year. Committees were appointed for Boy Scout work, Americanization, support of churches and inter-club relations.

Dr. William A. Petzoldt, of Lodge Grass, Montana, delivered a timely and forceful address on the subject "Keep America, American." The speaker asserted that we are in the birth-pangs of a new age; and that now, if ever, we must all see clearly and high.

Public Enemy Number 1 today is Uncertainty; replacing the Dillingers of a few years past, in the opinion of Dr. Petzoldt.

Six revolutions facing America today were enumerated as: Political, with a steady change in the field of government; religious, with a changing attitude towards the churches; yet democracy cannot survive without the churches; agriculture, with new methods and outlooks; industrial, with its turbulent forces; social, with rapidly changing family and community relations; economic, with changing ideas of finance and relation of government to the people.

Concluding, Dr. Petzoldt told his audience that the frames in which we have set our lives are now broken; and that we are engaged in a war to the death between conflicting ideas of life and government.

HUNTING FATALITIES IN '40 ESTABLISHED RECORD

Greater Emphasis on Careful Gun Handling Planned as a Result

Thirty deaths from gunshot in the 1940 hunting season, the most recorded in the last 12 years, are resulting in renewed emphasis in the conservation department's educational campaign for greater familiarity with firearms through more off-season practice at ranges.

In previous seasons, from 1939 back through 1929, the toll of hunters killed has been 23, 23, 27, 23, 18, 29, 24, 20, 15, 27, and 26. Casualties are not in proportion to the hunting hosts, which now number about 500,000 in small game season and 160,000 in deer season.

Seventeen of the 1940 season's fatalities were in small game hunting. Nonfatal accidents, totaling 45 in small game season and 26 in deer season, were fewer than in 1939.

In 46 of the 1940 accidents, fatal and nofatal in both seasons, the shotgun was the fireurm in use, in 31 cases the weapon was a rifle, and in one instance a hunter was wounded with a pistol, and in other accidents the type of gun involved was not reported. In 27 cases the hunter was shot by his own gun. Twelve of those fatally injured were less than 20 years old.

OUT-STATERS MUST HAVE CAR TITLE GET LICENSE

Regulation Is Announced by Local Secretary of State Branch

Persons who have moved into Michigan from other states must have a Michigan title for their cars before 1941 automobile license plates will be issued to them, officials at the branch office of the secretary of state's office announced today.

Several persons have applied at the local bureau recently for new plates but have not had Michigan titles for their vehicles. When a person enters this state and becomes employed here the law requires that that person obtain a Michigan title to his or her car from the secretary of state's office.

Although the deadline for 1940 license plates is February 28, bureau officials advised new state residents to secure their Michigan titles early to avoid delay.

The board allowed $75 for copies of a recently completed county land survey, allowed claims presented and passed a resolution requiring all county officers to show proof of naturalization as American citizens.

The next session of the board will be the regular April meeting.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Returning Sunday to resume their studies, after spending the holidays in Charlevoix, were Miss Esther Lou Fochtman, Michigan State Teachers College, Ypsilanti, and her brother, Edward, Michigan State College, East Lansing, who had visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Fochtman; Miss Jeanne Campbell, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, who had been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell; and Louis Orlowski, who had visited his mother, Mrs. L. S. Orlowski. Mr. Fochtman took the young people back to their respective schools, and returned here Monday evening.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the many friends who remembered me so generously during my long stay in the Charlevoix Hospital. The calls, cards and gifts of flowers, fruit, books and surprises helped to while away many long hours.

Especially do I thank my teachers who devoted much time and effort in helping me to keep up with my subjects; the Freshman class, who remembered me on party nights and at Christmas time; also Rev. and Mrs. Parker and Rev. and Mrs. Pulsipher, for their prayers and comforting words which I am sure helped me on my way to recovery; and the nurses for their patience and good will.

For everything, friends, I thank you.

AUTO FATALITIES TO BE HIGHER LAST YEAR

November Accidents Drop, Year's Total to Reveal Increase

November automobile fatalities were the lowest since 1934, but the total for 1940 will be higher than for the last two years, according to the Michigan Department of Health.

"The November total of automobile fatalities, on and off the highways, was 159, and brought the total for the first 11 months of the year to 1,481. This compares with 1,355 for the first 11 months of 1939," said Dr. H. Allen Moyer, state health commissioner.

When December deaths are reported, the total for the year will be higher than the 1939 total of 1,536 or the 1938 total of 1,474. The all-high was 2,175 automobile fatalities in 1937.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Phisical Preparedness (1)

Once more the nation is turning to the task of reconstructing its military defences and, as with the inauguration of selective service in 1917, medical men are expressing their astonishment at the generally poor physical condition of those who must man the airplanes, tanks, battleships and guns.

Attention is naturally focused on the health and physique of America's defenders in time of crisis. Unfortunately, once the emergency has passed, little or nothing is done to correct those defects which, in civil life, account for many a failure. The economic loss, amounting to millions annually, resulting from preventable illness is placidly accepted as inevitable.

Michigan's record during the World War is far from enviable though perhaps no worse than for the country as a whole. Approximately 25,000 men were instantly rejected for military service. Of 70,000 who were accepted, 45,000 had some defect. Diseases of the circulatory system were most common; second on the list of disabilities were conditions that precluded marching. There followed, in order, diseases or defects of the eyes, tuberculosis, hernia, mental disease, malnutrition, ear trouble, defective teeth, goiter and spinal curvature.

Analysis of these conditions results in the conviction that parents were largely to blame. Treatment in the early years of life, many of these defects might have been corrected.

It is true that, of the 2,000 Michigan men rejected for faulty vision, many inherited their defects. Yet refractive errors can be corrected with proper glasses and, if not so corrected, lead to strain and congestion within the eye itself. The school child who is subject to sties and to other diseases and disorders of the eye may later blame ignorant or indifferent parents for a permanent impairment.

About 1,400 Michigan residents examined by the medical corps were rejected because of ear disease. It is probable that many, if not most of this number, were allergic children of families with histories of asthma and hayfever.—Doubtless these children complained of sore throats, colds and running ears during the winter months and were told that they would "outgrow" these ailments or received treatment with ineffectual "remedies."

Had the family taken the child to the doctor's office, he would have diagnosed an ear infection, opened the drum, prevented damage to the mastoid process and promoted healing of the involved structures. (Had deafness threatened, the Eustachian tube might have been treated with radium with good effect.)

The family saved the doctor's fee—and allowed the child to acquire a disability which could not but prove a severe handicap in a highly competitive world.

New Year's Poem

No resolutions we make
Which we are only sure to break.
But just a few things bear in mind;
And happiness we're sure to find.
A little kindness every day
Is bound to keep the blues away:
A smile here and a smile there
Will make the day seem more than fair.
Help a friend who is in need,
And when you can, the hungry feed;
Tell not your troubles, why and how,
But soothe the other's troubled brow.
Speak no evil but sing praise
And let your voices to Him raise;
Love those about you, one by one,
And from the clouds will come the sun. —Evalyn Washburn.

Care of Cyclamen—

The cyclamen is a popular house plant, valued particularly because of its long keeping qualities. The flowers should be removed as fast as they fade, and the leaves as they turn yellow. It requires considerable water while blooming, and the amount of water should be reduced after the flower buds. Repotting is done in April or May and the plants moved outdoors in early summer.

One of the common pests of the cyclamen is a mite similar to red spider that causes damage by disfiguring the flowers, and that may kill the plant. It can be controlled by inverting the top of the plant in nicotine solution, by placing tobacco leaves on the surface of the soil, and by spreading napthalene flakes in the saucer under the pot. Another method which has been used effectively is to dip the tops quickly two or three times in water heated to about 140 degrees.

It may be hard to believe but you can help yourself by helping others.

ADVISE ISOLATION NEWLY PURCHASED CATTLE

Two Weeks Necessary to Find Symptoms of Shipping Fever

Farmers purchasing cattle, either dairy or beef type, from any source should keep them isolated from their regular herd for at least two weeks, warned Department of Agriculture officials this week.

This is the length of time necessary to find symptoms of shipping fever (Hemorrhagic Septicemia), which all cattle transported, handled in stockyards, exposed to definite changes in temperature or transferred from different sections of the country are apt to be infected with.

"Several warnings have been issued concerning shipping fever and its effects," Dr. C. H. Clark, state veterinarian, said. "But recent losses suffered by farmers who have mingled purchased cattle immediately with their regular herds makes it necessary to again reiterate the seriousness of this disease."

"It should be remembered," he continued, "that there is no known way of preventing cattle from contracting shipping fever under present methods of sale, which sometimes involves long distance transportation, changes in climate, exposure to infected yards and trucks, but caution in keeping newly purchased cattle separate from other animals for a long enough period will prevent the spread of the disease to other cattle.

CONSERVATION DEPT. REPORTS FISH PLANT

Lack of Perch "Runs" Cuts Transfer to Inland Waters

Perch runs are strangely unpredictable, and where a year ago nearly 9,000,000 fingerlings were taken for transplanting to inland waters, in the season just closed only a little over a quarter of a million were seined and transplanted, the fish division of the conservation department reported today.

Brown trout, rainbow and lake trout plantings were heavier than in the year before. Brown trout released totaled 3,165,882 as compared with 2,549,309 the previous year. Rainbow stocking totaling 1,633,322 exceeded the next earlier year's planting by more than 300,000, and an inland-waters planting of 286,820 lake trout fingerling was 70,000 greater than in the year before.

Brook trout plantings were slightly less, at 3,233,020, against 3,448,986 a year ago. Unfavorable weather early in the season restricted production and planting operations.

Bluegill plantings also slumped sharply from 22,819,953 to 15,645,530 in 1940. The number of black bass stocked slipped slightly from 1,246,666 to 1,224,130, and 113,275,741 walleyes were planted on inland lakes and rivers, as compared with more than 139,000,000 in 1939.

sponsive to popular needs.

Bi-Partisan Control

Today's situation at Lansing is extraordinary in several respects.

It is thoroughly bi-partisan. While tho Democrats elected a governor, lieutenant governor, and state treasurer, the Republicans retained majority control of both houses of the legislature, elected an attorney general and re-elected a secretary of state and auditor general.

Responsibility is divided whereby each party may raise the hue und cry that the other is responsible for failure of accomplishment.

Phrased in more familiar language, the door is wide open for political buck-passing!

To make democracy work under these circumstances is a Herculean assignment, and it will take all the diplomatic skill of the practical-minded Van Wagoner to achieve even a moderate success.

"Men without jobs, children on crutches, don't care for party labels," he cautioned in an appeal for "unity of will, unity of purpose, unity of administration."

The role of a governor battling against a selfish partisanship is one to inspire popular sympathy for Van Wagoner. Therein lies a peril to the Republican leadership, as future developments may reveal.

Four-Point Program

In outlining his ideas about how a democracy should function, the governor presented a four-point platform:

First, "we must do our part in the national defense program."

Because of a previously voiced lack of sympathy for the illegal sit-down strikes of 1937 (declared illegal by the United States supreme court), Van Wagoner may be expected to discourage hastily-conceived strikes in Michigan plants where national defense awards are centered.

"It is the duty of state government and every citizen of the state," he said, "to speed this important work and to co-operate with the federal government so that the defense program may proceed unhampered and unmolested."

He praised labor and management for working more closely together in effective national teamwork.

Second, "we must never lose sight of the real things we are building to defend our traditional constitutional rights."

What are these traditional rights? Freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of religion. Or in other words, freedom of a minority to criticize the majority; freedom of the individual to "believe and speak and write" as he chooses without fear.

As the governor expressed it, we should foster an "active spirit of tolerance for the beliefs of those who may happen to disagree with us."

Social Gains

Third objective of the Van Wagoner program is "to preserve and develop these social gains"—the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively; the right of the farmer to a "fair share of our national income;" the right of all to be "secure from the worst hazards of unemployment, old age and physical disability."

Governor Van Wagoner echoed the determination of President Roosevelt to withstand pressure "of many people" to curtail these newly granted rights on the assertion that they interfere with national defense.

Regardless of defense urgency, Van Wagoner indicaes that he favors greater spending by the state government for old age pensions, unemployment compensation, crippled children benefits, state hospitals, and public schools.

The Fitzgerald-Dickinson administration emphasized home rule and a local financial responsibility. Van Wagoner's attitude would suggest a return to the conception of a strong centralized state government, and it may presage the opening wide of legislative purse-strings to the possible embarrassment of the executive office unless badly needed budget reforms are enacted during the 1941 session.

In his message to the legislature last Friday, Van Wagoner recommended more business-like collection and administration of state funds to prevent the re-occurrence of the $30,000,000 deficit left by his Democratic predecessor, Frank Murphy—only he didn't say so in that many words.

Honesty, Efficiency

Fourth objective of the Van Wagoner platform is this:

"The job of putting our own house in order."

Put your own interpretation on this sentence. The governor accompanied it with these words: "of seeing to it that our state government is honest and efficient and effective."

To many persons the fourth point has partisan implications, arising out of the federal grand jury indictments.

And yet the logic is irrefutable. The governor linked his fourth point to the general goal of making democracy work, and in a reference apparently to the dictator's way of regimented efficiency he observed:

"A democratic government in our world of today just can't afford to be inefficient or ineffective or corrupt."

"Election is Over"

As Governor Van Wagoner well said, "The election is over . . . Ours is the sacred duty of working together for the common good."

And therein is a reflection that democracy, if it is truly to be a democracy, must recognize the will of the majority.

Regardless of the Republican victories, the electorate chose Murray D. Van Wagoner to be governor of Michigan.

Likewise, Franklin D. Roosevelt, although not the choice of a majority in Michigan, was re-elected to serve a third term as president of these United States.

Wendell L. Willkie in his November 11 radio speech summed up the bi-partisan problem in these words: "Let us not, therefore, fall into the partisan error of opposing things just for the sake of opposition. Ours must not be an opposition against—it must be an opposition for—an opposition for a strong America, a productive America. For only the productive can be strong and only the strong can be free."

Invents a Toy to Save America

It was a model of an ocean liner, which was easily convertible into an airplane carrier. That's how Admiral Emory S. Land sold the idea of the two-purpose ships that are putting America back on the seas . . . for business or battle or both.

AT THE MOVIES

"Mighty," Word for "Howards!"

A page torn out of history . . . a headline torn out of today's newspaper . . . a tender, emotional love story as stirring as the saga of a people . . . that is "The Howards of Virginia," the mighty Frank Lloyd screen epic, based on Elizabeth Page's best-selling novel, "The Tree of Liberty," which opens January 11 at the Palace Theatre with Cary Grant and Martha Scott co-starred.

It was for freedom and democracy that "The Howards of Virginia" fought; Matt Howard, the stalwart, earnest man of the soil portrayed by Cary Grant; Jane Peyton Howard, the gracious, beautiful Virginia belle portrayed by lovely Martha Scott.

"The Son of Monte Cristo" Heads Parade of Big Hits

An exciting and dramatic event in the history of motion pictures will take place January 15 at the Palace Theatre, when Edward Small's production of "The Son of Monte Cristo" is unreeled as one of the outstanding screen hits of the current season. Directed by the brilliantly talented Rowland V. Lee, who previously gave film fans the extremely successful "The Count of Monte Cristo," the new Small picture easily scores as entertainment plus.

"The Son of Monte Cristo" is not only exceellently and thrillingly staged, it is acted by a cast of top-notch actors who were chosen carefully for their special talents. Heading the line-up are Louis Hayward and Joan Bennett, who play the starring roles, while featured in their support are George Sanders, Florence Bates, Lionel Royce, Clayton Moore, Montague Love and many others.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Preservation of the Upper Incisor Teeth

A mother states that her daughter, age 12, has broken both central incisors with a loss of a large amount of tooth structure. She wishes to know if it is possible to preserve these teeth and keep them healthy and vital.

This type of injury is rather common to children due to accidents during play. If an x-ray shows that the pulps of the teeth are not exposed there is usually little trouble in saving these teeth, provided that the injury did not drive the teeth into the sockets and sever the blood and nerve supply to the pulps.

The family dentist usually places a protective covering over the exposed tooth surfaces such as a gold band or temporary cement cap. If these are watched carefully until the teeth have achieved their complete development and the pulps receded to their normal size, it is then possible to restore the broken surfaces by the use of a porcelain jacket crown. If x-rays show that the pulp of the tooth is exposed it is often possible, provided immediate attention is given to the tooth, for the dentist to resect the upper portion of the pulp, fill the cavity with a sedative cement and thus preserve the vitality of the lower portion of the pulp.

This treatment is successful in a certain percentage of cases. If the treatment has been delayed until the pulp has become putrescent or partially dead it is usually advisable to have this removed and the canal filled with the proper medication and gutta-percha canal point. The modern methods of dental treatment taught today particularly emphasize the saving of such teeth because their preservation means considerable to the patient throughout life.

RIGHT FOOD LIST SAYS NINE A DAY

Whether a family eats heavy or light breakfasts or has dinner at noon or in the evening, it takes something from nine types of foods to make a balanced daily diet.

The following daily outline is approved by home economics extension workers on the staff at Michigan State College:

Milk—For a growing child, ¾ to 1 quart. For other family members, 1 pint or more.

Leafy, green, or yellow vegetables—1 or more servings.

Tomatoes, oranges, grapefruit, any raw fruit or vegetable rich in vitamin C—1 or more servings.

Potatoes, other vegetables, or fruit—2 or more servings.

Eggs—1 (or at least 3 or 4 a week).

Lean meat, poultry, fish — 1 or more servings.

Cereals and bread—At least 3 servings of whole-grain products.

Fats and sweets—As needed to satisfy the appetite.

Water—6 or more glasses.

The group called "milk" includes dry and evaporated milk as well as fresh fluid milk. Skimmilk, buttermilk and cheese also belong under this general heading.

When counting the eggs that go into the family meals, full credit is given for those in sauces, custards and baked dishes. Some eggs should be served as eggs—poached, scrambled, fried or cooked in the shell.

gation to determine need of a permanent air base on the Great Lakes. It is to be supposed that either Traverse City or Sault Ste. Marie, only cities in the northern Great Lakes region with airport facilities capable of handling the huge plane to be sent next summer for patrol duty, would be chosen as the sites from which to conduct further investigation aimed to determine necessity for a permanent base. We Charlevoixans can continue hopeful that the location offered here will fill the requirements for a permanent base, if and when it is decided to establish one.

A year ago last Sunday the temperature dropped to zero here and below in the country. Round lake and Lake Charlevoix froze over, the latter for the remainder of the winter, fish shanties put in their appearance at the west end of Lake Charlevoix two days later. We've been anticipating a similar occurrence this winter, but it hasn't happened yet. In fact, the temperature's lowest so far has been around 12 degrees above.

Local fox hunters, frustrated during several weeks of persistent trailing since tracking snow became available, "clicked" for the first time Sunday. Clare Staley and Godfrey McDonald bagged a nice pair of red fox over on the peninsula and the Kipke-Withers combination brought in one killed by Jack Withers south of town. Now that the boys "have the feel" of it, the fox are probably in for trouble. They are reported plentiful in this region this year, too.

As one newspaper man to another—congratulations to David Humilton on the third anniversary of his publication, St. Mary's School News.

To quote an oft-heard expression: "There's something rotten in Denmark"—meaning the complete lack of pre-election rumblings. Here it is less than a week before the deadline for filing nomination petitions, and not an inkling as to who is going to run for what. It isn't like Charlevoix, at all, unless everyone is completely satisfied with the way things are being run. Next Tuesday will "let the cat out of the bag," no doubt.

The good prizes of life go to those who dare to do what others dare only to think.

If the male population of Charlevoix appears somewhat small this winter, the main reason is that just exactly 177 local men are working in one Detroit industrial plant.

The opportunity again affords itself to laud the board of education and city council for furnishing a skating rink at the school grounds for Charlevoix kiddies. The rink provides a safe place—far removed from lake dangers—for the children to enjoy skating.

DAVID ALEXANDER, PIONEER RESIDENT, IS DEAD

Succumbed Sunday After Brief Illness; Came Here 63 Years Ago

David H. Alexander, 79, a resident of Charlevoix and vicinity for more than half a century, died Sunday, January 5.

He was born February 20, 1861, at St. Catherine, Ontario, Canada, the son of James and Katherine Alexander. He came to Barnard 63 years ago. After a few years' residence there, he moved to a farm near Ellsworth.

In 1889 he married Miss Emily Hostler and to this union seven children were born. She died 33 years ago. He moved to Charlevoix in 1911. In 1930 he married Mrs. Clarissa Russell, who survives him.

Besides the widow he is survived by five sons, Warner of Ellsworth, Perry of Pontiac, Alvie of California, Milo and Charles of Charlevoix; and a daughter, Mrs. Lenu Yettaw, of Grand Haven.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. J. Pulsipher on Wednesday afternoon, January 8, from the See Funeral Home. Interment was at Barnard cemetery.

An advertisement elsewhere in this issue contains the announcement of Clifford Mayhew having taken over management of the Richmond Shell Station on South Bridge street.

THE NAZI ATTACK BRINGS WOMAN BURNING HATRED

So Writes Resident of Bradford, England, to Brother Here

An indiction of the attitude of citizens of Britain in their struggle against domination by dictator nations is contained in a letter to Joe Gornell from his sister, Mrs. Emma Gill, a resident of Bradford, England.

The letter, in part, follows:

"I suppose you in America are following this war almost as intensely as ourselves. Well, it is something to follow, too. I may tell you that you would get some thrills if you were over here. Planes, bombs and guns; the town you live in fired, and for you to stund and watch it gives you a feeling of burning hatred, knowing what had happened in all the other countries. But I think we shall pull through it alright with the aid which America is giving us. That is the opinion of all the people over here. We all hope you will go on sending help to us until the war is won, as we know that we shall need all the help we can obtain before we finish it.

"It seems that the Nazis are working very hard there, too, according to the press, but I think you will be wide awake to their game by this time. It is to be hoped you have profited by other people's experience.

"You must not worry over me. I have the same chance of survival as anyone else."

Mrs. Ira A. Adams Died at Birmingham; Funeral Here Friday

Mrs. Ira A. Adams, 69, died Monday night, December 30, at Birmingham, Mich., at the home of her nephew, Vincent Madison, with whom she had resided for several years. She had been in ill health for some time.

Florence Smith was born in Charlevoix on December 29, 1871, the daughter of Willard A. Smith, founder of the old Charlevoix Sentinel. Later in her life she was associated with the weekly publication, founded by her father in 1869 when Charlevoix was still known as Pine River, and believed to be the first Michigan newspaper north of Traverse City.

In 1911 she married Ira Adams, Sentinel editor until his death, July 19, 1936, shortly after which the paper ceased publication.

In her youth, Mrs. Adams sang with Chicago light opera companies. She later served as customs officer for the port of Charlevoix, as well as working for the Sentinel.

Surviving are her nephew, Vincent Madison, and a sister, Mrs. Hudson Smith of Toledo, Ohio.

Her body was brought to Charlevoix for funeral services and burial. Services were conducted by Rev. G. R. Parker at 2:00 Friday afternoon, from the See Funeral Home. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

WESLEYAN GUILD MEMBERS WERE GUESTS OF MISS DARLENE WILLIAMS

Miss Darlene Williams was hostess to members of the Wesleyan Service Guild at her home last Thursday evening. Miss Ernestine Chew led the devotionals. After the business session, an interesting review was given by Mrs. A. C. Belding of the book "Dangerous Opportunity." Written by Earle H. Ballou, an American missionary in China, the book gives a clear picture of the present situation in China, and tells much of Chinese history.

Refreshments were served by the hostess later in the evening. The next meeting will be with Miss Violet Bush, at the Bird's Nest, Thursday evening, January 16.

METHODIST WOMEN'S SOCIETY HEARD TALK BY MISS ANN LAWRENCE R. N.

RAYDERS WINNER AT ROGERS CITY

TOPPED CLASS B HURONS FRIDAY BY 35 TO 23 SCORE

Play Thursday Night at Gaylord; Meet Petoskey Northmen on Home Court Jan. 21

Continuing their winning stride, Charlevoix high school's Red Rayder basketball team trounced the class B Rogers City Hurons by a 35 to 23 count at Rogers City last Friday night.

The victory atoned a 27 to 18 defeat handed the Rayders by the Presque Isle county team last year, and was their third win in five games.

With Carey and Stewart leading the scoring, the Rayders grabbed an early advantage and were never headed. They were out in front by a 10 to 6 count at the third quarter, led 19 to 13 at the half and 25 to 19 at the third intermission. Coach Kipke made frequent substitutions, using ten men during the contest. Each combination out-scored and out-played the class B Rogers City outfit.

Don Carey led the Rayder scoring with 12 points. Jack Stewart tallied 8, Mitchell 6, Gengle and Meggison 4 each, Swanson 1. Micketti was best for Rogers City, scoring 17 of their 23 points.

The Rayders take to the road again this week. They go to Gaylord for a return contest Thursday night before taking on Petoskey on the home hardwood next Tuesday evening, January 21st. Charlevoix defeated Gaylord by a 29 to 17 count on the home floor. They lost 33 to 21 to Petoskey's class B outfit in the opening game of the season. The return contest, in view of Charlevoix's improved play, should be a real battle.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Thought for the week: "Between the great things we cannot do and the small things we will not do, the danger is that we shall do nothing."

While Monte Withers and Ray Kipke were out fox hunting last Saturday, the rear wheel of their car broke through the ice and sank into a mud hole. While digging to get a jack under the car they dug up a frog, proving they must have got down pretty deep, and then, when they did get the jack under the car axle the darn thing froze up so it wouldn't work. Doesn't make much sense, does it? Well, most everything's screwy nowadays, anyway.

See where rationing in Norway permits a man to buy only one suit of clothes a year. Just between you and me, if I get a new suit once in four years I'm darn lucky and we're not at war either—or are we? And speaking about clothes, Bert Beaudoin told me one day recently that

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The biennial legislative juggling act, appeasing pressure groups with more state aid while trying to balance the budget, is going to be something to behold in 1941.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner is confident that it can be done.

In fact, in his message to the state legislature he predicted boldly that the rising tide of prosperity in Michigan, plus increased efficiency in collection of taxes, would net a 25 per cent increase in state revenues during the coming two years.

Furthermore, he averred that a study of state finances had convinced him that "at least 25 per cent" of the existing state deficit, now $29,000,000 could be retired annually without curtailing "essential services."

All of this would be accomplished, the state executive explained, by a bi-partisan combination of "curtail-

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

New Series of Dairy Meetings Will Attract Attention of Dairymen

After a lapse of two years a series of dairy discussions have been arranged for all dairymen in Charlevoix county. These meetings will be short courses on six different subjects and will feature the appearance of five different specialists from the Michigan State College.

The first discussion will be held in the community room of the city hall, Charlevoix, on Thursday night, January 23, beginning promptly at 8:00 o'clock. Art Bell, specialist in agricultural engineering, will discuss proper and economical housing facilities. From his observation and study it is only fair to charge each cow with 10% of the initial cost of the barn she lives in. To help her meet the charge keep the construction costs and the equipment costs as low as possible. The pen-type barn is one way of accomplishing this. In a new barn the use of laminated rafters may cut construction costs as much as half.

In building new or remodeling the earning power of the cow is increased where proper ventilation is provided. Any masonry wall should be insulated to prevent condensation of moisture. Many practical points of barn construction, remodeling, equipment, home made devises, and making the job of handling cows easier will receive attention from Engineer Bell. These meetings will be very informal and we hope that those attending will enter into the discussion freely. All six meetings will be held at the same place. The second discussion is scheduled for January 30; the third February 13; the fourth, February 20; the fifth, February 27; and the last one on March 6. Why not mark these dates on your calendar and plan to attend as you will be delighted with the discussions and they will prove to be most valuable to you as a dairyman. We know this is the time of year to think about feeding and care of the dairy cows. Remember the first meeting on January 23, at 8:00 o'clock p. m.

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

HERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor.

During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employes, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05.

According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00.

If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employes, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income.

Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 75c per hour

Semi-skilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 80c per hour

Skilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 90c per hour
Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employes. Proof of this is found in the following comparison of compensation insurance costs:

The national average rate in automotive manufacturing plants as computed by the National Association of Underwriters is in excess of $1.50 premium on each $100 payroll. The Ford cost of workmen's compensation is less than 50c.

This indicates that the chance of injury in a Ford plant is much less than in the average automobile plant.

The Ford Motor Company has no age limit for labor, and in fact deliberately attempts to keep older workers working. The average age of Ford workers at the Rouge and nearby plants is 38.7.

A recent check-up shows that nearly one-half the workers at these Ford plants were 40 or over, falling into these age groups:

25,819	between 40 and 50
14,731	between 50 and 60
3,377	between 60 and 70
417	between 70 and 80
12	between 80 and 90

In addition to the so-called regular employes, the Ford Motor Company has hired, and now has on the payroll, at the same regular hourly wage, thousands of workers who are blind, crippled or otherwise incapacitated for normal productive work. They are not selected for their ability to build cars or to maintain the plant. They are on the payroll because of Henry Ford's belief that the responsibility of a large company to labor goes beyond the point at which the unfortunate worker can no longer produce profitably.

The above are facts. They are open to anyone who really wants to deal in facts. Anyone who wants to get a job . . . buy a car . . . or place a national defense contract on the basis of fair labor treatment must place Ford at the top of his eligible list.

REPORT REA DELINQUENT REFUTED BY OFFICIALS

Meneger Avers All Obligations of Cooperetive Are Met

Top O' Michigan REA officials Friday night branded as false recent published reports that the local co-operative was delinquent in payments on the principal of its government loan.

Harold S. Lees, manager of the local REA, issued the following statement.

A report has been circulated that we have made all interest due but that we have paid only $3,833.17 of a total of $5,760.06 due on principal payments. This is decidedly not true, and I am at a loss to determine who furnished this information and why. The facts are that the Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co-operative not only has made all of the payments on principal when they were due, but besides that has put aside an accumulated reserve of $3,000 for the further retirement of principal."

The Top O' Michigan REA serves approximately 1,800 members in six northern Michigan counties.—Boyne Citizen.

POLIO DRIVE AID TO COUNTY YOUTH

PAUL HANSON IS AT WARM SPRINGS FOUNDATION

Charlevoix County to Raise Funds at President's Birthday Ball on January 30th

As preparations go forward for the 8th annual President's Birthday Ball, scheduled for January 30th, appreciation of benefits of the nation-wide campaign against infantile paralysis is brought close to Charlevoix county residents with the knowledge that one of our own youths is one of the thousands of beneficiaries.

At the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis at Warm Springs, Ga., an institution supported by proceeds of President Birthday Balls and affiliated fund raising efforts, is Paul Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanson of Ironton. Paul writes from the Foundation as follows:

"I am having a swell time here. They have put me in a cast from my waist up to my neck and will keep this on until my shoulders have become strnightened. It is a very stylish cast, with a beautiful low neck line and everything.

"We have movies here every Monday, Thursday and Saturday. Tonight 'Edison, the Man,' is showing. The premiere of 'The Thief of Bagdad' was held here. Sahu, the boy from India who had the chief role, was here in person and we all got a great kick out of meeting him. He was lots of fun and entered into everything with a heart.

"Saturday a bus toad of the patients went over to Columbus, Ga., to see the football game between the University of Georgia and Auburn. It was my first big football game and I enjoyed it.

"There certainly are a lot of fine people here and the boys and girls are the happiest bunch I've ever seen —just like one big, happy family. The fellows gave me the nickname of 'Shorty.' We have a small newspaper at the Foundation which we publish and call it 'The Crutch.' I am also going to be initiated into the Yahootie Club.

"Please write to me.

Love to all,
Paul."

With the knowledge that one of our own youths, as well as thousands of others, are directly benefited by our contributions toward the infantile paralysis campaign, let us put forth every effort to make the current drive the greatest success ever.

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of City Treasurer at the primary of Monday, February 17th, and will appreciate your support. Fred V. Tyler.—Adv. 3-6-7

* FROM THE GARDEN CLUB *
* * * * * * * * * * * *

The Charlevoix Garden Club is starting a scrap book on the topic of Historic Charlevoix. If anyone has information that would of interest, or through the years has kept any clippings they would be willing to donate to this project, we would be very glad to have them. Do not consider your scrap of historic detail too small, as it will be appreciated and given its proper place among the collection, which at some future date we may all prize highly. Any information or clippings you may have will be called for if you will contact Mrs. Carl Kohler, or any member of the Garden Club.

African Violets . . .

These dainty house plants, always lovely, are especially attractive during the coming short winter days. If given a little extra attention, they bloom profusely and for long periods of time. African violets do well in shady windows, but also do equally well in a southern exposure if they are left there all the time and not changed to other windows. Water frequently with a tepid water, as they need quite a bit of moisture. Water only from the bottom, unless one is very careful not to get water on the leaves, as this causes brown spots to appear and the leaves to fall off. A small stick of Oveno fertilizer slipped into the soil, or an occasional bit of Vigoro in the water, will greatly increase the number of blossoms from each plant.

African violets do not bloom well until the plant has become "root-bound, so do not be too generous regarding a large pot for your plant. It is not at all unusual for them to bloom continually for six months to a year, and are a constant joy to the plant lover. New plants may be successfully started by slipping leaves from the old one and planting them in sandy soil.

A violet is a thing of joy.
In the woods when spring is here.
So why not venture, just a bit,
And have them all the year.
—B. K.

Problems of Adolescence

Parents who complain that their adolescent son or daughter is presenting a behavior problem with which they cannot cope, might well seek the help of the family doctor. The beginning, like the end, of the reproductive period in humans is marked by certain physiological changes which are likely to be reflected in conduct. If, at these periods, the individual is physically below par or is suffering from organic disease the transition is likely to be severe and deviations from normal conduct may be pronounced.

Again, the doctor who is able to win the confidence of the adolescent may prove of service in allying common but baseless fears regarding health. Many questions regarding sex and reproduction, when unanswered in the child's mind, induce a morbid state. The adolescent who is continually washing her hands, gargling or rinsing the mouth with antiseptic is often secretly obsessed with a fear of contracting disease through touching germ-laden objects—a fear which is not warranted by the facts.

Psychiatrists seems convinced that many of the emotional conflicts of adult life have their origin in childhood or adolescence and that, if these had been recognized and treated early, they might have been eradicated. Thus anti-social behavior, culminating in the habitual criminal, may have begun with truancy, running away from home, stealing or lying. Punishment for youthful waywardness usually accomplishes nothing save to increase the sense of injustice and confirm the individual in his rebellion against the established order.

Too often the parent is content to let time work a cure, confident that the adolescent will "come to his senses someday" or that he will "outgrow" his anti-social tendencies. In most cases, this will occur naturally. In many others, the attention of a skilled psychiatrist will save parents and child much grief if not prevent a tragedy.

SWAMP CUTTINGS AIMED AS AID TO YARDED DEER

Experiment During Winter Is Planned by Cons. Department

Selective cutting of swamp conifers in winter deer yards of state game areas administered by the conservation department is to be carried on during coming weeks on an enlarged scale in an effort to increase the yards' usefulness in providing food and shelter for deer during severe weather.

Mature timber will be cut in a manner specified by the department whose game men have supervised experimental cuttings over a period of several years. Game men are recommending a long-time rotation period of cutting which will result in timber growth in varying stages, offering maximum food and cover for deer. Timber to be removed will be sold by the department.

ing unnecessary expenditures" of some state agencies while other state agencies spent more money for specific public needs.

Republicans Skeptical

That Republican leaders are skeptical about the practicality of doing it all simultaneously is putting it gently.

Some of them are even wondering if Governor Van Wagoner didn't astutely put the Republican majority of the legislature squarely on the spot and right behind the eight ball. They are beginning to feel uncomfortable about it; a few are downright resentful, labeling the Van Wagoner program "smart politics."

Vun Wagoner's message called for the following increases in state spending:

1. "A nominal uppropriation" for state defense needs.

2. "Funds should be made available" for a public health program to help control cancer and social diseases, and otherwise match "available federal grants-in-aid."

3. "Needed funds" to help assist 7,000 crippled children and 20,000 afflicted children.

4. "Appropriate funds necessary for equipping and operating state hospital facilities to their maximum capacity."

5. Pensions for 30,000 persons, aa well as aid for dependent children and assistance to the blind. (The governor also said: "In the administration of the social welfare program wasteful practicea prevail, particularly in direct welfare. In one county administrative costs were 17 per cent of the total budget. Thia should not be tolerated.")

6. "Definite state aid that will guarantee every boy and girl a full school year and every teacher a full pay."

7. A sufficient appropriation" to provide retirement pensions for nonteaching employees of our school systems."

8. "Full recognition should be given to the financial requirements of the University of Michigan, the Michigan State College, the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, and the State Normal colleges."

(At Michigan State College the last legislutive appropriation for classroom fucilities was in 1929, and student enrollment has tripled since then. The college board has asked for $2,500,000, explaining that state funds are needed imperatively to provide adequate room for instruction purposes.)

9. "Needed appropriations to place (five state institutions for handicapped and juvenile delinquents) on a standard of human decency and safety."

10. To overcome the "lack of adequate library facilities in many sections of the state," the legislature should make "an appropriation large enough to resume a reasonable library program."

Tourist Promotion, Parks

11. To institute a long-range program of advertising Michigan as a whole, the state should double the present appropriation for tourist promotion from $100,000 to $200,000 annually.

12. "Acquire frontage on the Great Lakes in the southern part of the state, so that parks may be developed more accessible to the large population centers."

13. "Equip many existing state parks with more sanitation facilities and other conveniences to make them more attractive and useful."

14. Increased personnel for the unemployment compensation commission to take care of the servicing of employees who are now exempt and who, the governor believes should be included in the state act. This change would affect smaller industries that employ less than eight persons and which at present are not taxed.

15. Establishment of a fair labor standards act in Michigan to police wages and hours of employees in intrastate industries. The exact language used by Governor Van Wagoner: "Wages and hours act adapted to Michigan conditions should be made available to all Michigan workers, and not only to those now employed by industries engaged in interstate commerce."

Honeymoon on Wane

Legislators' reaction to this 15-point program of increased state spending were varied. Democrats enthused; Republicans, who possess control, expressed doubt as to the state's financial ability to spend more and to reduce the deficit, too.

Rep. John P. Espie (R) of Eagle pronounced: "Idealistic but very impractical."

Thus the preliminary sparring began.

Indications are already at hand that the bi-partisan honeymoon, if it ever existed, is already on the wane.

AT THE MOVIES

"Flight Command" Stars Robert Taylor, Ruth Hussey

Robert Taylor and an intrepid crew soar through the air to high adventure, power-dive to supreme thrills, and give audiences every moment of excitement aviation can produce in "Flight Command," dramatic story of naval aviation filmed with the cooperation of the United States Navy, and coming January 18-19 to the Palace Theatre.

Taylor, fresh from triumphs in "Waterloo Bridge" and "Escape," gives his fans a new side of his many talents as Alan Drake, Pensacola cadet who is assigned to the crack "Hell Cats" squadron. At first he is received with resentment by the seasoned flyers. He admires Bill Gary, their commander (Walter Pidgeon), and his wife (Ruth Hussey).

Taylor, Pidgeon and Miss Hussey are surrounded by a notable cast, including Paul Kelly, Shepperd Strudwick, Nat Pendleton, Red Skelton, Dick Purcell, William Tannen, William Stelling and Stanley Smith.

Youth Has Its Fling in New Drama

Jackie Cooper had to throw a baseball accurately enough to knock out a fleeing criminal; he and Gene Reynolds stage a thrilling fight on a school campus, and, with a group of youngsters, trail a criminal all over a city amid thrills and laughs for "Gallant Sons," coming January 22-23 to the Palace Theatre.

Bonita Granville shares top honors with Cooper and Reynolds in the new drama, and the cast also features many of the talented youngsters of "Strike Up the Band," including June Preisser and William Tracy, who played the villainous "Squire Poultice," as well as Leo Gorcey of the Dead End Kids and Tommy Kelly of "Tom Sawyer" fame. The adult cast is headed by Gail Patrick and Ian Hunter, who provide the mature romance.

he's bought every suit he ever owned from a local merchant for 48 years. Which all goes to prove a person don't have to go out of town if they don't want to.

Well, it happened! The mercury tumbled to zero in the city Monday night, 6 below out in the country and 10 below over east. Lake Charlevoix froze over solid. Round lake did, too, but fish boats broke it up Tuesday morning and probably will continue to do so as long as they can. Ice fishermen will no doubt get on the west end of Lake Charlevoix soon and then everything's going to be o. k. with a lot of fellas who have been worrying. And then the freeze-up ends the customary "no ice" scare that usually prevails early in January. I've lived here nigh onto 35 years and have yet to see the time there wasn't enough ice for the next summer's requirements, and I expect it will be the same if I manage to hang on for another 35 years.

There hasn't been anything said for several weeks about the dog nuisance, so I'm going to revive the matter by telling how at Traverse City they pick up the strays whether licensed or not for the reason the law says they shall not be allowed to run at large. When they can find the owner, they prosecute him, otherwise it's "finis" for the dog. Sounds like a rather business-like way of handling the situation, doesn't it?

Right when other northern Michigan communities were just a bit envious of Traverse City for the progress it has made the last few years along lines of tourist promotion and industrial expansion, along comes a new mayor in that city who says the whole set-up is screwy, that the results don't justify the expenditures, that the city's government is a mess, and whatnot. Maybe the new mayor is right, but I'll bet a plugged nickle there isn't a city in the region that wouldn't like to be in Traverse City's position. In these days of keen competition for tourist and industrial business, any city that has made the strides Traverse City has, has got something to crow about! Show me a city that isn't promoting its interests every single, solitary day, and I'll show you one deader than a door-nail.

Once a year—at income tax time—I have a chance to laugh back at those guys who sometimes good-naturedly kid me about my large family. Now that the exemptions have been lowered, I'm still safe for a long time yet, 'cause even if I did make enough dough to be eligible for payment, I've all those $400dreds tucked away. Just in case you hadn't read up on the income tax law, the single man must pay on all earnings above $800. For the married man, tax begins at $2,000, so if the wife is your only dependent, get ready to pay 4% on all you earn over $2,000, plus 10% national defense "super tax." If you're lucky like me, you can claim an exemption for each dependent child, as well as what you donated to charities including churches, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and such. And don't forget the responsibility for filing is 100% the individual's, so if you weren't sent a blank, you'd better write to the collector of internal revenue at Detroit for one.

The "We Have With Us Today" section of Ray Barnes' "Razzing the Rapids" page in last Sunday's Grand Rapids Herald features Forrest D. VanDusen. The description said: "Clothing merchant, he was born in Charlevoix and went to grammar school through the 5th grade." No doubt many of the older residents will remember when Mr. VanDusen was one of Charlevoix's own. It was before my time.

I acknowledge with no little appreciation the following letter:

"Dear Ken:

This is just a brief note to advise you of a way to increase your published circulation figures. I feel certain that your records show that the paper you send down here is read by only one person. May I correct this grave error and report that your figures should read six additional instead.

Each week the Courier is anxiously awaited by six enthusiastic Charlevoix summer residents. The arrival of the paper considerably brightens an otherwise dull and boresome press for all of us who are sincerely interested in what goes on in Charlevoix.

May I thank you for all of us who are down here in Southern Pines and hope that you will soon be back in the home quarters of 'The Charlevoix Courier.'

With kindest personal regards, I am

Jack Ament,
Highland Pines, Inn,
Southern Pines, N. C."

Thanks to you, too, Jack! The fondest desire of every newspaper publisher is that his publication be of interest to its readers. Such acknowledgments as yours justifies our efforts.

Here is another letter from a subscriber who is seeking information which we will gladly furnish if the proper persons read the letter and respond accordingly:

"Dear Ken:

I am interested in donations to the Charlevoix Hospital compaign to raise funds for the Dr. R. B. Armstrong Memorial. It is an established practice, I believe, for newspapers to publish a list of donors in a public drive of this nature. Would it be possible for you to do so?

A Subscriber."

Yes, the Courier would gladly publish a list of donors, providing such a list is furnished us.

BOYNE'S SMELTANIA TO OPEN NEXT SATURDAY

New $250 City Hall to Be Dedicated On This Occasion

Michigan's famous "city on ice," the Smelt fishing village of Smeltania on the ice of Lake Charlevoix about a mile off shore from the end of the main street at Boyne City, will officially open its activities when the new $250.00 city hall and mayor's office will be dedicated and the new city officials inducted on Saturday, January 25.

A lot of interest is being manifested in the new city hall, for $250.00 is a lot of money spent for a fish shanty and this will be by fur the most expensive "coop" on the ice this year.

With long time Mayor Bill Smith being opposed this year by "Pee Wee" Wakeford of Petoskey, the political fun of Smeltanio is reaching a fever pitch.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Ushor

Envy is a pain of mind that successful men cause their neighbors.

Thought perhaps Guy Pearl had unearthed a sea monster of some kind when he excitedly called Sunday and told of catching on a hook and line from Oyster Bay a snake-like creature with four legs and seven ears covered with hnir. I first asked him what he'd been drinking before going fishing. I later found he'd caught a salamander, a reptile common to fresh water lakes and streams. The hair-covered ears turned out to be the creature's breathing apparatus (gills to most of us.) Learned they are perfectly harmless, but wouldn't recommend one for a pet unless you like snakes.

I've often wondered what elderly married people find to quarrel about.

But there is one sure way to avoid overdrafts and that is by carrying a larger balance in your checking account. It leaves a greater margin of safety, it increases your credit standing and enables you to make "deals" when you have money on hand.

SALUTE to Telephone Pioneers

TELEPHONE PIONEERS OF AMERICA 1878 1911

• The badge which telephone men and women with 21 years of service may wear.

THERE always have been pioneers in the Bell System, and there always will be. Not only among veteran employees but throughout the organization there is a pioneering spirit that pushes steadily on to new frontiers of efficient telephone service. Today, the nation's defense calls for unusual foresight and pioneering. Telephone needs created by our increasing military establishments and new defense plants must be met. The traditions and experience of the Telephone Pioneers are valuable influences in the training of fresh forces to insure a continuance of good telephone service.

With the holiday season over once again, and the New Year baby for 1941 barely settled in our midst, and everything coming down to normal, it is a good time while we are not so very busy, let us give thought to some good resolutions we should put into effect, that will work to our benefit for the coming year.

It seems to the writer that the employees of some of the companies holding government contracts for national defense materials, are not showing much patriotism when they tie up production by striking. More loyalty to the best interests of all is needed at this time.

The War Horse Comes Back

Military experts said that the Cavalry was dead. In this new mechanized age, what job could there be for a man on a horse. Now—meet the U. S. Cavalry and get the surprise of your life. Arthur Bartlett tells its story in an article as fascinating as best seller fiction. Read it in This Week, The Detroit News Sunday magazine.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Treatment of Colds

The treatment of the common cold is quite simple. It is: "Go to bed nnd remain there until the symptoms are definitely on the wane."

Yet, strangely, this prescription is one which the average sufferer finds extremely hard to take. Perhnps it is due to a subconscious feeling of importance, of being indispensible to others; that is responsible for a reluctance to retire from the world, however briefly, while a malndy runs its course.

The prescription is not unpleasant to take. It creates a hreak in n sometimes monotonous occupation or pursuit. It excites the sympnthy and tender ndministrations of the family. It affords an opportunity to catch up with one's rending and thinking. And it certninly tends to protect others, particularly the young, the elderly and the weak from an infection which, occasionally, is a prologue to serious illness.

For nll that, cold cures and "remedies"—the more biznrre, the hetter—are as popular now as they have ever been. Not long ago, the medical school of n large eastern university, using its students ns subjects, seriously tested out most of the suggestions made for curing n cold with magical celerity—and found all to be worthles. Only bed rest, with n few simple auxiliary procedures, proved to be of value.

At the first signs of n cold, which include sneezing, watering of the eyes, slight fever, chill and other fnmiliar symptoms, one should take a hot hath, retire to hed nnd keep well covered. The first symptom often is cold feet.

Heat applied to the fnce, in the form of towels wrung from hot water often relieves nasal congestion and shortens the period of disability. Inhalations may also be recommended.

The use of nasal sprays nnd 'drops' hnving nn oil base is to be discouraged, especially in the case of children, unless carried out under a physicinn's direction. Tiny droplets are often drawn into the lungs where they remain unabsorbed. They may set up an irritation or form of fibrosis etxending well down into the lungs. This may lead to chronic cough. A transient and comfortable effect, but probably offering no check to the progress of the cold, is exerted hy the watery solutions of ndrenalin or ephredrin.

Provided no great degree of fever is present, a normal diet may be enjoyed. Fruit juices and increased water intake are advised.

A temperature chart should be kept as a rise would indicate the presence of trachritis or bronchitis.

If cough persists for as long as a week after the cold symptoms have disappeared, a doctor should be consulted. A timely chest exnmination, with an x-ray when indicated, may reveal a condition demanding immediate treatment if chronic disabling disease is to be prevented.

The Story of a Grocer and a Lady

Almost every other morning for more than fourteen weeks now, she has stopped in at the store. Joe, my clerk, calls her, "Mrs. Grand."

A week ago, I asked "Mrs. Grand" why she had been such a good customer.

"I'll tell you," said she . . . "It's because I like it here in your A-G Store. It's a friendly place. Your products are good. Your prices are low, and most of all, I like to feel that the money I give you for groceries, stays right here at home."

I'd never thought of it quite that way before, but perhaps that's why all A-G Stores are gaining customers so rapidly. They are owned and operated by human, sincere, hard-working people, whose customers appreciate all three . . . Quality, Low-Price and a Personal Interest in their well-being.

KNOW ● YOUR BANK

The Importance of the Purpose of a Loan

In making a loan a banker is lending money which belongs to the bank's depositors, and so his primary responsibility is to see that the loan will be repaid when due. Therefore, the banker is entitled to know how the money is to be used. He asks the purpose of the loan in order that he may determine the soundness of the purpose.

Banks are prohibited from making certain types of loans, so they must be sure that your loan is not this type and that it will not get the borrower into legal or business difficulties.

The borrower should be frank about the purpose for which he desires to borrow money—it makes the granting of credit easier. The banker of course will keep this information absolutely confidential.

AT THE MOVIES

Gable, Lamarr In "Comrade X" On Palace Screen

When Hedy Lamurr throws a telephone at Clark Gable, tries to part his hair with a chair, and musses him up in generul, it is quite a sight, but only one of the many rollicking comedy highlights of "Comrade X," their new co-starring picture, which open January 25 at the Palsce Theatre for an engagement of two days.

Slam-Bang Action

Gone is Miss Lamarr, the glamorous siren of the past, and in her place is a slam-bang comedienne, a Moscow lady street car "motor mnn." Gable is a newspaperman in Russia, who leads an enjoyable dare-devil life until he meets Hedy.

The supporting cust features Osser Homolka, Felix Bressart, one of the three riotous Russian commissars who scored a hu in "Ninotchka," and Eve Arden, remembered as the heroine of the Murx Brothers comedy hit, "At the Circus."

Thrilling 'Hudson's Bay' Paul Muni's Greatest Hit

Movie-goers at last have an opportunity to see Paul Muni in the kind of a role they've always wanted him to play, in "Hudson's Bay," 20th Century-Fox adventure film which opens January 29 at the Palace Theatre. Portraying Pierre Radisson, the colorful, reckless "First Canadian," Muni turns in n superb performnnce which is sure to put him in the running for another Academy Award.

Woven into the story is a gripping romance between John Sutton and lovely Gene Tierney. It is one of the motivating elements of the picture. Virginia Field and Nigel Bruce are also seen in the brilliant featured cast.

20 MILLION LAKE TROUT EGGS BEING HATCHED

Lake Michigan Led In Production of Spawn During Last Fall

Incubating in state fish hatcheries at Thompson, Oden, Harrietta and Harrisville, and in the Duluth hatchery of the federal fish and wildlife service are approximately 20,000,000 lake trout eggs.

These eggs are survivors of the 1940 fall spawn fishing production of 30,894,000 eggs, earlier estimated at a higher figure. Revised estimates for the three Great Lakes producing trout are: Lake Michigan 23,750,000 eggs, Lake Huron 7,044,000 eggs, and Lake Superior, 100,000 eggs.

The eggs were turned over to the conservation department's fish division, for hatching and rearing by commercial fishermen who stripped spawners taken when fishing resumed after the closed season.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Fuchsias . . .

It is heartening to see the return to favor that fuchsias are now enjoying, because we have no better window-garden plant of equal ease of culture.

After resting dry the last three months of the year, they may be started into growth in January, by placing them in a dark place with a temperature of 50 degrees. First, though, they should be jarred out of their pots, all old soil washed out of their rootball, and repotted in fresh soil. Prune out all dead wood as soon as growth starts, and pinch the new shoots once or twice if the plants are getting too tall. Watering with liquid manure once a fortnight as the flowering season approaches, will prolong that period and make it more brilliant.

Fuchsias like sunlight during the winter, a fairly moist, fertile soil, and a rather cool temperature. The fuchsia is sometimes called "lady's eardrops."

Poinsettias . . .

Your Christmas poinsettia will last much longer if kept in a fairly cool, moist atmosphere. Water well while the plant is in bloom. After the flower-like appendages drop, the plant should be allowed to become quite dry and to lie dormant for several months. When growth starts again, cuttings can be taken to provide new plants for another season.

sentatives of independent and chain retailers, wholesalers, State Grange, state department of agriculture, and the state press.

Strike Threats

To maintain law and order in Saginaw where rival labor groups had precipitated a strike in an industrial plant Governor Van Wagoner recently ordered 200 state policemen to assist local law enforcement officers.

Production of national defense contracts was temporarily stopped.

It gave new importance to an opinion, made by Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton, that factories engaged in national defense work come within the "public interest" scope of the state labor mediation act and thus a 30-day strike notice must be given by labor. Directly involved also was the Duplex Printing Press Co. of Battle Creek which has a $6,000,000 contract from the war department for gun carriages.

The governor has not indicated his approval or disapproval of the strike notice part of the state mediation act, which was intended to afford a "cooling off period" and thus to discourage hastily-called strikes. For the time being the governor may decide to permit national developments determine the advisibility of any amendments in the state mediation set-up. As for extension of the federal wage and hour act to industries in intrastate commerce, the governor is already committed to blanket "all Michigan workers" under it.

He recently received a delegation of striking employees of the Neisner stores of Detroit and told them that he had plans for remedial legislation which would establish a floor for wages of retail employees.

Under the federal wage-hour act, most retailing is specially exempt. Legislative leaders see numerous complications ahead if the governor plans to regulate wages and hours of store clerks throughout the state. Another possibility would be enactment of a minimum wage law for women.

Small Business

According to Irving C. Fox, counsel for the National Retail Dry Goods Association, in session last week, new court decisions may place all retailing under the scope of the national labor relations act.

He reports that attempts are being made by legal procedure to establish that the receipt of merchandise from outside the state brings the receiver under the act with regard to collective bargaining for wages.

If the United States supreme court decision puts all retailing under the federal act, then the Van Wagoner program for labor would have these leading objectives:

1. Amendment to the unemployment compensation act to include firms which now have less than eight employees.

2. Wage-hour legislation, paralleling the federal set-up for employees of industries engaged in interstate commerce.

3. Restriction of court power to issue injunctions in labor disputes. A bill has been introduced in the house of representatives by Edward J. Walsh, Detroit Democrat, with administrative backing.

Spring Election

G. Donald Kennedy, appointive state highway commissioner, is expected to be the Democrats' choice for the four-year position at the 1941 spring election. Kennedy was deputy to Murray D. Van Wagoner during the latter's administration.

Republican state officials are said to be favorable to Leroy Smith, Wayne county highway engineer. Smith lives in Democratic Detroit where the Republicans need votes badly.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, Republican incumbent, will run for re-election as state superintendent of public instruction. Democratic opponents may be T. Thomas Thatcher, Ravenna or Prof. Roy Hamilton, Alma college.

For the state board of agriculture, governing body of Michigan State College, Republicans will probably name William H. Berkey Cassopolis, and Clark L. Brody, Lansing, to succeed themselves. Candidates for university regents include Charles F. Hemans, Lansing, and Franklin M. Cook, Hillsdale, on the Democratic ticket. Alfred B. Connable Jr., Detroit, has announced his candidacy to the Republicans.

The Democratic state convention will convene February 19, the Republicans' convention on February 28, both in Grand Rapids.

Legislative Miscellany

Rep. Palmer Landon, Mt. Pleasant, proposed licensing of coin-operated pisnos and music machines on $25 annual fee to be earmarked for old age pensions.

Legislation to "eliminate fraud" in petitions for referendums is being proposed. Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state appointed a committee to study it.

An "anti-boss" bill, aimed to prevent convention control, is sponsored by Rep. Robert N. Sawyer, Monroe, and Rep. F. Jack Neller, Battle Creek. It is patterned after the Elton R. Eaton Bill of 1939.

Six-year terms for five members of a commission of agriculture to be appointed by the governor are proposed by a bill introduced by Rep. Edward J. Walsh, Detroit house leader. Rep. Maurice E. Post's bill would provide for appointment of n commissioner by the state board of agriculture.

Sen. Otto W. Bishop, Alpena, introduced a bill to nppropriate $200,000 per year to advertise Michigan; $100,000 for general ndvertising, $25,000 to each of the four tourist associations which are to repay 80% of cost of the ads.

pageant of thrills, not because they were unable to find a woman to portray the part, but for the reason they couldn't find a white horse for her to ride. The news article telling about the incident stated 20 women volunteered to be the Godiva, and if my remembrance of that historical episode is correct, finding a white horse should have been the least of their troubles. You don't suppose the whole thing was just a publicity stunt?

I heard a successful man once remark: "In contemplative moments, I offer a prayer of thanks that I started at the bottom because, if I go back to the bottom, I will be in familiar territory. I was reared to expect very little, so that what I have enjoyed beyond the customary necessities of life has been kind of extra. I can do without the extras if I have to, but I don't intend to pass them up without a reasonable struggle." There's a lot of us who can console ourselves with a similar thought when we commence to envy those who have more than we do.

Some time ago this writer suggested giving coupons redeemable with local merchants instead of dressed fowl at so-called "feather" parties. A counterpart of such a plan is now being followed in the awarding of prizes at card parties being held weekly at St. Mary's school hall. If the suggested plan has merit, perhaps it will now be so proven.

Uncle Josh, in his "Well by Heck" column in the Boyne Citizen, has presented a problem in mathematics you might try to figure out. Here it is:

"I read an article in a paper recently that said that the 17½ billion dollars that the President was asking for defense would reach about seven times to the moon and would go around the earth 175 times. I didn't figure it out but a paper dollar is six inches long and as there are 5280 feet in a mile then it would take 10,560 dollars to the mile. Su figure it out for yourselves. It's about 25,000 miles around the earth, so divide 17½ billion by 25,000 times 10,560 and there you have it. Well, I think it's about time Congress put the brakes on Roosevelt or he'll be wanting to take a trip to the Sun next and that's about 90 million miles and that would take 951 billion, 400 million dollars to go one way. So how in the world would he get back? I suppose there are some who would be mean enough to say. 'Lenve him there and let him figure his own way to get back'."

A Clean Deal—

Magnolia: "When Mandy went and got married, us girls done gave her a shower."

Pansy: "Dat sho' was nice. Ah'll bet her husban' was glad to get her all nice and clean."

John Nance Garner, ex-vice president of the United States, remained consistent at President Franklin Roosevelt's third term inauguration when he reiterated a previous statement: "With 15,000,000 people either directly or indirectly on the government payroll, you can't beat the checks."

Some men worry so much about income taxes that one wonders if they wouldn't be happier without the incomes.

With every indication pointing to an attempt during the present legislative session to enact laws permitting killing of does in restricted areas next fall, it is time for sportsmen opposed to such measures to act. The quickest way to bring the matter to a head is to write your representative and senator, expressing your views—opposed or otherwise.

If the old saying: "Happiness is found in making others happy," is true, local Kiwanians must be brimming over. This remark is the result of watching Kiwanis members treat public and parochial school kiddies to a sleigh-ride last Friday. It was the first such event for many of those youngsters. And I'm still wondering, too, who had the most fun—the kiddies on the ride, or the Kiwanians who accompanied them.

Yes, the Courier is going to have a new home. The dirt should start flying soon!

RAYOERS TOP EAST JORDAN'S TOSSERS

HUNG UP 38 TO 25 VICTORY HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Reservas Winner by 24 to 19 Margin; Play at Boyne City and East Jordan Next Two Games

Charlevoix high school's Red Ruyders maintained their third place position in the northern Michigan class C conference standing with a 38 to 25 victory over East Jordan on the home court Friday night.

The contest was a close and interesting one. Gee, East Jordan's ace forward and the evening's outstanding player netted two goals in quick succession to open the scoring and contributed two more before the period closed to give his team an 8 to 6 advantage at the quarter.

With Stewart added to the Charlevoix line-up, the Ruyder offense began to click in the second period. Charlevoix led 22 to 13 at the half and were never again in danger. They extended their margin 32 to 17 by close of the third period. A substitute Charlevoix line-up was out-scored 8 points to 6 in the final stanza, but the Ruyders' earlier margin was sufficient to carry through.

The Ruyder scoring was fairly even, Don Carey topping the list with 10, Swanson contributed 8, Kohler 7, Stewart 6, Mitchell 5 and Shupton 2. Vale Gee contributed 16 points to East Jordan's total.

The Ruyder reserves hung up their third victory of the season at the expense of Jordan's second-stringers. The final score, after a close tussle, was 24 to 19.

The Ruyders take to the road this week and a week hence as well, Friday night they tackle the league leading Boyne City Ramblers at Boyne, and a week later play a return engagement with East Jordan there. The next home game is scheduled for February 14 with Grayling.

The cars, both badly damaged, approached the intersection at the same time, the Smith machine from the west, the other from the south.

PREDATOR BOUNTIES LOWEST FOUR YEARS

Conservation Department Paid $33,000 During Past Year

For the smallest take of predatory animals in the four years since the present bounty scale was posted, the conservation department paid more than $33,000 in the calendar year 1940.

At 33 the 1940 take of wolves exactly equals the take in 1939, but is less than the 49 bountied in 1938 and the 37 bountied in 1937. Killing the 33 wolves, all in the upper peninsula, cost $570.

At 1,866 the coyote catch in 1940 is 200 short of the 1939 take of 2,066, which in turn is more than 500 under the 1938 catch of 2,593. In 1937, 2,575 coyotes were bountied.

Payment of four $5 bounties on bobcats in the upper peninsula raised the total December bounty cost to $950, of which $730 was collected by hunters and trappers above the straits.

ASK TIGHTENING LAWS GOVERNING FIREARMS

Conservation Department Recommendations to Legislature

Possession of a gun permit will not allow carrying of heavy arms in game country out of season in the 15 days preceding the small game season's opening, or from sunset to sunrise in game country north of town line 12 and west of Saginaw bay, if legislators accept conservation department recommendations for changes in the law.

The law applies to rifles larger than .22 caliber low power and to shotguns with slug, ball or buckshot load. Other proposed changes would require written applications for the permits, would make their issuance permissive rather than mandatory, would refer to "transporting" rather than to "carrying" of the gun, and would increase maximum fine for violation from $50 to $100, maximum imprisonment from "not less than 10" to "not more than 90" days.

Gun permits are required, along with small game licenses, of persons hunting non-game animals during closed seasons. Stiffening of the statute controlling their issuance and use is advised by the conservation department's law enforcement division.

MEET PAYMENT ON CITY HALL BONDS

FIRST OF SERIES RETIRED BY COUNCIL MONDAY NIGHT

Courier Building Permit Was Granted; Extension Granted for Completion Channel Water Main Job

First payment of principal on the city hall bonded indebtedness was included in the payroll authorized Monday night by the city council.

Bond No. 1, in amount of $1,000, together with semi-annual interest on the series of 36 bonds which will be retired by 1959, was met.

The council approved application by the Kit Carson Lumber Co. for permit to construct one-story building 32x64 for the Charlevoix Courier. Excavation for the building was started Monday.

SPORTSMAN'S CLUB RETAINS OFFICERS

ANNUAL MEETING WAS HELD THURSDAY NIGHT

Review of Activities Revealed 1940 Topped Others In Accomplishment for Conservation

Members of the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club reviewed 1940 activities and elected officers for 1941 at the organization's annual meeting held Thursday night at the city hall.

Complete satisfaction over last year's activities was indicated in the re-election of all present officers. Earl W. Miller was retained as president for 1941. Others re-elected were: vice-president, R. C. Korth; secretary, Clarence Wood; treasurer, Harley I. Ochs. Don Campbell was retained as member of the board of directors for another three-year term.

The secretary's report revealed the 1941 program of the club an outstanding one. Topping the list of achievement was restoration of the Burns' pond on McGeugh creek at Barnard. By lilling in the washed out portion of the old mill pond dam, a 10-foot head of water was established and a pond three-quarters mile long and varying in width created. Excellent brook and German brown trout fishing from the dam to head of the creek in Cunninghnm lake is in prospect in view of the heavy planting program started last fall and to be continued next spring. If present plans mature, the pond will not be opened to fishing until August, 1941. It is expected thousands of legal-size fish will be released in the new pond prior to its opening.

Records show the club handled 220,000 fingerling fish during 1940, reared a good portion at the Stover creek rearing ponds and planted a large percentage in rivers and streams of the county. Under supervision of Oden state hatchery officials, plantings included 25,000 mackinaw trout in Lake Charlevoix, 75,000 brook trout from Northville federal hatchery, consignments of blue gills and smallmouth bass in inland lakes, thousands of German brown trout at Boyne City and Burns ponds. The latest planting of several thousand steelhead was made January 23 through the ice at the Ironton ferry in Lake Charlevoix. Several thousand brook and brown trout are being fed through the winter in East Park pool for release in the spring.

EQUIP PATROL BOAT WITH RADIO BEACON

New Device Will Be Decided Help In Navigating Vessel

Patrol boat No. 1, the conservation department's motor cruiser which is used in checking commercial fishing operations on the Great Lakes, is to be equipped with a radio beacon finder.

Picking up signals from shore stations, the boat's crew will know its exact location at all times while afloat. The device is expected to prove particularly useful while the boat is operating near the state's water boundaries, when the boat's exact position must be known to establish jurisdictional authority.

The radio beacon finder also is useful in snow and fog for navigational purposes.

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Instead of a bi-partisan form of state government being a liability, it may prove to be an asset in disguise.

Take it from Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner whose sense of humor has seldom failed him and whose broad smile has already earned for him the title of "Happy Pat."

Speaking at the Michigan State Society dinner in Washington, the Michigan executive put the situation this way: "When I propose anything to the legislature we have in Lansing today, it has to be good. Otherwise you can imagine what chance it has of getting any consideration at all."

The first truly bi-partisan act of the Van Wagoner administration was a ruling by the newly appointed civil service commission, created by constitutional authority, that all classified state employees — whether Republicans or Democrats — are to be

What Is "Protest"?

YOUR endorsement on a check, note, or similnr instrument warrants that if it is not paid when presented that you will pay it, However, you must be given notice of non-payment or dishonor or you are released from this obligation.

The term "protest" means a formal declaration in writing, executed by a notary, to the effect that a certain instrument was presented at a particular time and place and was dishonored. This gives the holder of the instrument legal testimony if he wishes to bring action against the maker or endorsers.

An instrument drawn in one state and payable in another must be protested. One drawn and payable in the same state may be protested, though the current practice is to protest only items exceeding $50.00.

AAA BENEFITS GIVEN FOR TREE PLANTINGS

Two Acres Is Maximum Under Program for Present Year

Two acres of tree plantings at $7.50 an acre, half the 1940 quota, is the maximum under the special tree-planting schedule for which the Agricultural Adjustment Administration will reward any Michigan farmer this year.

Under the regular AAA soil building program, payments may be provided for planting other acreage to forest trees, and also for cultivation and protection of stands of forest trees, for maintenance of shrub windbreaks, and for proper woodlot management.

Farmers buying white, Norway and jack pine planting stock of the Higgins Lake nursery of the state conservation department's forestry division for soil conservation plantings agree, at the time the sale is made, to maintain the trees as a forest until they are of a size to furnish timber products.

INCREASED EMPLOYMENT CUTS STATE FUR TAKE

Fifty Percent Decline in Muskrat Furs During '40 Predicted

An estimated 50 per cent decline in the 1940 take of muskrat skins in Michigan during the season which ended December 31 in the southern tier of counties—except for the Monroe marshes and vicinity where it ends January 31—is expected by the conservation department's game division on the basis of incomplete trappers' reports.

Although the present price of skins—around $1.50—is above that of last year, fewer trappers have been active. Increased industrial employment may be a reason. The 1939 take was 819,447 skins.

Skunk, which may be taken thru January 31, are reported to be scarce.

STUDENT FLYERS

The pilot training courses set up in 700 colleges and 200 noncollege centers by the Civil Aeronautics Board last year report some notable successes. Chief of them is the safety record.

There have been crashes and there will be others. That is inevitable in any program involving more than 50,000 learners. Yet there is only one fatality in 65,000 hours of flying, or one-fifth as many as usual in previous instruction programs.

Students completing these courses are not full-fledged military flyers. They are merely part of a steadily growing reservoir of man power ready for advanced training in a hurry when needed.

WILLING SOLDIERS

Willingness with which American men have accepted the draft program has been amazing. State selective service officials say the number of appeals has been comparatively small. In Charlevoix county, not a single man has had to be drafted yet, because volunteers were more than enough—so far—to fill the quotas.

At Oakland, California, a telegraph messenger elbowed his way through a crowd of outstanding golfers competing in the Oakland open, handed a blank to Ed. Oliver, one of the nation's best players. It was his notice to report. He was waiting to start his second round in the tournament, but he left at once for the army without waiting to finish the match.

The willingness to serve being manifested everywhere in the nation should be a warning to Herr Hitler not to include the United States in dreams of world conquest.

FEDERAL TAXES

The growth of the national defense spirit in this country is remarkable. When people ask for heavier taxes, something has happened to them. A current poll indicates that at least half of the American people today would welcome income taxes for everybody not on relief—that is to say, for everybody who has an income. It would start at $5 or so and run up, according to capacity to pay.

A slightly smaller percentage of people would approve a federal sales tax to help meet the cost of armament. It is hard to guess whether support for this form of emergency taxation will rise or sink. Congress might solve the problem by giving us both kinds of tax. Economists, however, are usually opposed to sales taxes, when they can be avoided, because they fall more heavily upon the poor than upon the well-to-do, in proportion to their means.

STATEMENT OF NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, organized for "the protection of the home, and the abolition of the liquor traffic," calls upon the citizens of our country to defend the young men now called to the defense of the nation from alcohol—an enemy which will undermine their health, their physical strength, their mental faculties, their efficiency and thus unfit them for the task to which they are called and which they gladly assume.

The fall of the French republic is the present warning to us. The official report of the Council of Ministers of the Vichy government ascribes its fall to the use of liquor by the men in the army during the inactive months of the past winter. The council reported that in one hospital alone during the month of January, 1940, there were 814 cases of delirium tremens. On the other hand Germany declares that to conquer the world their army must abstain from alcohol. If this is true, abstinence from alcohol is necessary for the defense of the world. The fine legislation which protected the American army in 1917-18 has been repealed. The distillers, the brewers and vintners now have a free field in the main.

For the protection of our country, the defense of our institutions and the preservation of the lives of our people, one of the most important measures to be taken is to protect the men in uniform from the use of alcoholic liquors.

We call upon all patriots, all who earnestly wish to see the United States protect its citizenry, to unite in an effort to secure legislation and the issuance of regulations now possible to secure the accomplishment of the purpose for which our men have been called to service—the defense of this country from foreign aggression.

SPORTSMAN'S CLUB RETAINS OFFICERS

The foregoing adds up to no small amount of re-stocking county fishing waters. It was interesting to note too, that the club's feed bill for the season ran over $200 for liver fed the fish.

The club membership Thursday night adopted a resolution, copy to be sent the department of conservation, opposing the present law limiting operations of commercial fishermen to a radius of 50 miles from the port in which they are licensed. The action was taken in view of the fact Charlevoix and St. James fishing fleets, largest on Lake Michigan, as well as those of other northern ports, must cease operations when ice conditions prevent fishing in winter, and because of the law, are prevented from moving to lower Lake Michigan ports where fishing is possible the year around.

Besides its regular fish propagation program, officers and members of the club have in view the establishment of a trout pond on Horton creek as a future activity.

MARGUERITE McCREA IS "TEACHER INTERNE" AT CENTRAL STATE COLLEGE

With the start of the second semester at Central State Teachers' College, Mt. Pleasant, Miss Marguerite McRae of Charlevoix will be a "teacher interne" under the college's program of off-campus practice teaching.

In exactly the same manner as young medical graduates serve in clinics and hospitals, student teachers, under the "interne" plan, serve in grade and high schools, observing and participating in the daily work of the schools. The program, begun last year, has proved entirely successful and is being carried forward as rapidly as student teachers come up for the "interne" stage of their work.

Daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Harry McRae of this city, and a graduate of Charlevoix high school, class of 1936, Miss McRae is active socially on campus as a member of Phi Kappa Theta. She is expected to serve her interneship in either Muskegon or Mt. Pleasant schools.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON
By Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District Michigun

Fear is the emotion played upon by those who would prepare a country for war. Resort has been made to that appeal by those in the United States who believe sincerely or otherwise that our first line of defense lies somewhere on the European continent. Many speakers have waxed eloquently on the threat to our country of planes flying from some enemy country to points on our coast or in the interior of our nation.

It remained for Col. Charles Lindbergh testifying before the House Foreign Affairs committee to allay that fear. True enough, he was scourged by those who preach the doctrine of fear. But Lindbergh has seen the implements of war in the course of preparation by the nations now at war with each other. He warned then that Germany's air power was greater than that of any other nation, and that it constituted a threat to the peace of the world. Events since that warning have proven its truth. Yet Col. Lindbergh testified that the United States had no reason to fear invasion by air.

U. S. Is Safe, He Says

To quote Col. Lindbergh directly: "There never has been an invasion of enemy territory by air alone. The two outstanding examples of what might be called a partial air invasion were furnished by the German occupations of Norway and Holland. But in each of these instances, the landing of troops by air was carried on simultaneously with a ground army invasion on a major scale. The maximum number of troops that could have been transported and supplied by air, would have been ineffective without the immediate support of a ground army. If air invasion alone could be successful, it would have been used by the Germans against England."

And then he pointed out that it is important to note that the transport of troops by air in Europe has been over a distance of a few hundred miles at most. An air invasion across the Atlantic ocean he said was absolutely impossible at this time or at any predictable future.

Col. Lindbergh made a very interesting as well as exceptionally capable witness. Mild in manner and soft-spoken, he was very careful to confine his testimony and the majority of his answers to questions in his own field of knowledge in aviation, in which he is a highly accepted authority. That is probably why those who believe in war measures will attack him on other grounds.

Administration Confident

Despite the testimony of Col. Lindbergh and of others opposed to war measures, and the setting up of a dictatorship under H.R. 1776, the Lease-Lend Bill, indications around Washington are that the administration is confident that it will force the measure through congress. There may be some amendments, due to the storm of protest raised in communications from citizens all over the country. My own mail is running better than 10 to 1 against the grant of a dictatorship; other representatives with whom I have discussed the subject, admit that their mail likewise is as strongly opposed. Except for perhaps three limitations; total to be spent, a time limit on the grant of power; specific prohibition against use of naval vessels as convoys; bill will be accepted by a majority very much in the form demanded by the president, despite the cry of protest from the people.

Hearings in the house were concluded last week and while the bill now goes to the house for limited debate, the senate foreign relations committee has started hearings. Evidence of the suppressed feelings on the legislation flared when the majority members of the house committee ignored the protests of the minority members and heard the last witnesses, members of the military and naval staffs, in secret sessions.

Most Powerful Leader

If and when the so-called Lease-Lend Bill is passed, Mr. Roosevelt will find himself the most powerful leader in the world. The powers of office created in his first two terms are still intact; to them has been added the power to draft the nation's youth into military service, also the power to draft private industry. The new legislation proposes to grant him the power to use the resources of the United States to underwrite the efforts of nations fighting aggression. He has asked for this authority to provide these nations with weapons, regardless of money cost and to merge American interests with those of nations now at war. In peacetime he has more power than had Woodrow Wilson as president during World War No. 1.

Once, in the early days of his unquestioned popularity, Mr. Roosevelt declared that the greatest danger to our country was fear itself. In this, his third term, he has himself spread that doctrine of fear.

For my part, I prefer to go along with Col. Lindbergh. We have nothing to fear, so long as we mind our own business and prepare ourselves to defend our rights, if, as or when attacked.

Village on Ice

Clusters of fishing shacks on the ice of Michigan's northern lakes increase in size as the season advances, attract thousands of fishermen from far away points. As at Boyne City on Lake Charlevoix, above, many services, including electricity, are supplied fishermen. Winter fishermen, in Michigan, may spear pike, take smelt and bluegills with hook and line.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

In the interests of civic pride, the Garden Club believes that every one should, first of all, be a good citizen. While we all love the flag of our country, for the ideals and principles it embodies, many of us are not always sure how best we can show our sincere respect for our country, thru our proper respect for our flag. Therefore, through the medium of this column, we would like to review a few pertinent remarks regarding the proper salute to the American flag.

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the flag is rendered at the moment the flag passes.

When the National Anthem is played and the flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining this position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headdress. When the flag is displayed with the anthem, the regular "Salute to the Flag" should be given.

Remember, one may be conspicuous but never wrong, when paying proper love and respect toward the symbol of our beloved country.

Begonias . . .

There are many varieties of begonias, chief among them for the home being the everblooming kind and those used for their beautiful foliage. Both these species require about the same care. They do best in a window with a southern exposure, as they require sun, to look their best. The soil in which they are potted should be half leaf mold, the balance a medium texture soil. The leaf mold retains moisture for a longer period than ordinary soil, but care should be taken that they are not watered too often. Probably the best rule to follow, is to allow the plant to dry out fairly well, then saturate them thoroughly, and forget about them, until reasonably dry again. If watered too much there will be a tendency for them to rot at the soil.

Begonias should be cut back at regular intervals, at any time of the year. This prevents them becoming tall and ungainly, as well as making a dense growth at the roots. Some varieties need be cut back only enough to shape the plants. Old plants should be re-potted once a year, either in the spring or summer. Cuttings may be taken any time.

Col. "Wild Bill" Donovan Discusses America's Fitness

Are Americans soft through too much luxurious living? Colonel "Wild Bill" Donovan, World War commander of the famous Fighting 69th tells why this nation's men, women, boys and girls are tougher, mentally and physically than German propagandists would want us to believe. Read what he says about democratic principles, leisure time, white collar workers and fascist theory in this inspiring article. It appears in This Week, The Detroit News Sunday magazine.

AT THE MOVIES

"North West Mounted" Stars Cooper, Carroll

Gary Cooper and Madeleine Carroll, cast in the sort of romantic roles which brought them to screen fame—he as Dusty Rivers, a Texas Ranger, and she as April Logan, a gallant nurse—are the starring duo who head the huge cast of Cecil B. DeMille's "North West Mounted Police," which Paramount will present February 1 and 2 at the Palace Theatre, the first epic by the master producer-director to have been made entirely in Technicolor.

In keeping with the magnitude of his stars DeMille has assembled an outstanding group of starring players. Heading the list are Paulette Goddard, cast as Louvette, fascinating, tempestuous Indian girl; and Preston Foster and Robert Preston as Sergeant Jim Brett and Ronnie Logan, Mounted Policemen. Among the others are Akim Tamiroff, as Durne; Lynne Overman in a comedy role as Tod McDuff; George Bancroft as the chiefest heavy, Corbeau; Lon Chaney, Jr. as a half-breed Metis; and Walter Hampden as Chief Big Bear.

Robinson Brilliant in Reuter Role

When the screen masterpieces of this decade are reckoned, "A Dispatch From Reuter's" will be among them for the Palace Theatre's newest entry scheduled for February 5 and 6 with Edward G. Robinson in the leading role, is a beautifully done screen document from every standpoint — direction, performance and all-around production quality — an important impressive screen event.

"Always A Bride" Coming to Palace

There will be much hilarity at the Palace Theatre February 5 and 6 when Warner Bros.' new comedy, "Always A Bride" opens. It is a gaily humorous film about a girl who is about to marry two men.

Rosemary Lane is charming, gay and gives a grand performance as the much sought bride, and George Reeves, who is co-starred with her, is excellently cast as the one Rosemary really prefers. John Eldredge plays the role of the 'other fellow,' a quiet, reserved chap whom Rosemary's father wants her to marry.

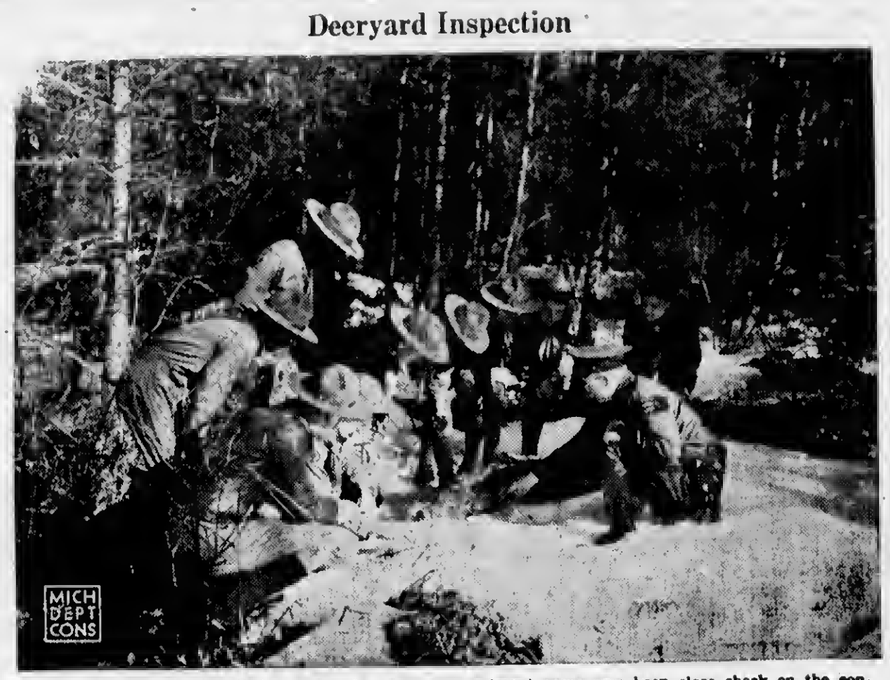
Deeryard Inspection



Scenes like the above will be common in swamps and winter deer yards of northern counties during coming weeks as conservation officers and men who work with the state's deer herds conduct boy scouts, 4-H club groups and interested adults on inspection trips through areas where deer congregate when weather is severe. Conservation department game men keep close check on the condition of deer herds in these winter yarding places and will conduct some 600 4-H club members on inspection trips that are part of 4-H study programs. In scene above, conservation officer talks about deer that has starved in overbrowsed swamp.

Over 40 Club Leaders Attend Leader's Training Meeting

The second annual 4-H Club Leader's training meeting was held in the Boyne City gymnasium last Tuesday night. With but few exceptions, all the communities in the county carrying 4-H club projects were present. A. G. Kettunen met with the representatives of handicraft club projects and discussed problems of finishing their material in preparation for the Achievement Day. He had a great many articles and other illustrative material to demonstrate the types of finishing, choice of material to use and suggestions for making the articles look more attractive. Mrs. Ruth Schubert discussed the projects of interest to girls. She gave a very comprehensive talk in regard to the requirements of the various projects and many recommendations in regard to the requirements of the various projects and many recommendations in regard to completing the required garments.

A very fine banquet was served at 6:30 o'clock by club members from the two Boyne City groups led by Mrs. Mary Towne and Mrs. Ilah Walker. The evening program was short and snappy but most instructive. Mr. Kettunen stressed the importance of citizenship in our 4-H club program. The types of organizations, its voluntary leadership and its democratic way of doing things nicely reflects good citizenship all through the program. O. F. Walker, district club leader, discussed plans for Achievement day which will be held in Charlevoix on April 3rd and 4th. His report indicates that approximately 500 club members are carrying on 4-H club activities this winter. This is about the same enrollment that we had the previous year.

J. G. Hays, Dairy Specialist, Will Discuss Low-Cost Dairy Rations On January 30th

"The low-cost dairy cow ration is built around legume hay and farm raised grain" is the opinion of J. G. Hays, extension dairyman of M. S. C., who will meet with Charlevoix county dairymen Thursday night, at 8:00 o'clock, January 30. The quality of hay decides what the character of the grain should be, and how much to feed.

The discussion will touch upon protein supplements, mineral needs, grain rations and especially the value of the right kind of roughages. This is the time to analyze the problem of economical rations and to make the best of your opportunities.

Last week, Thursday, some 27 dairymen attended the first dairy meeting and had the opportunity of discussing construction of barns, types of insulating material and other engineering problems. A. J. Bell, who led the discussion emphasized the desirability of making the investment in buildings at a low level. With a $4000 barn housing 20 cows the rental that each cow has to pay is $20.00 a year. He showed the dairymen that a $2000 barn could be built and be just as efficient as the $4000 barn investment and it would decrease the rental down to $10.00 per cow. By the use of slides he showed the recommended types of barn buildings.

We are somewhat disappointed that more dairymen from the Charlevoix area and East Jordan area did not attend the first meeting. In fact, 60% of the attendance was made up of farmers from the east end of the county, who had some 20 miles distance to cover. Certainly with the dairy population in the Charlevoix area it would seem that more dairymen would attend. Don't forget Thursday night, January 30, and be sure to be present when Jim Hays discusses Dairy Feeding Practices. Remember a dollar earned is a dollar saved.

Carload of Cotton Ordered for Cotton Mattress Program

Last week the agricultural administration office at Boyne City ordered 26,000 pounds of cotton, 4,800 yards of percale and other material which will permit 480 mattresses to be made by Charlevoix county people. Already applications have been mailed to all A. A. A. township committeemen, Grange masters or lecturers, credit agencies, county nurse, and county school commissioner. Thus, any family, either city or farm, desiring to have the opportunity of making a mattress and comforter should obtain their application blanks from any of the above mentioned representatives or may apply directly to the county agent's office. Following are a few statements about the project that will give more information about the program and the eligibility requirements.

1. Cotton, ticking, thread, needles and other supplies necessary will be made available at the location where mattresses are to be made.

2. A charge of approximately 75c per mattress and comforter (but not in any case to exceed $1.00) will be made for each mattress to cover necessary items of expense.

3. To be eligible the applicant must not have a net income exceeding $500. However, if the family consists of more than 4 persons you are allowed $50.00 additional income per person in excess of four. Thus, a family of 6 persons could have a $600.00 income and still be eligible.

4. Each applicant can make a mattress and comforter for each two persons, but not to exceed three (3) per family. Thus, a 6 member family could make the maximum of three.

5. The income statement sheet is for your convenience in determining your net income. It need not be sent in with your application.

6. All applications are to be sent to your county agricultural agent, B. C. Mellencamp, Boyne City, Mich.

7. This program is for both city and farm families whose net income makes them eligible.

8. The applicants must make their own mattress and comforter at their nearest work center. Locations to be announced later.

A. A. A. and Extension are jointly sponsoring this project. We hope that arrangements can be made to use Grange halls, town halls and other community centers for work centers. Certainly the success of this program depends on many folks working together. We will be pleased to hear from any individual who will offer his or her assistance in making this program a success.

* THE AAA PROGRAM IN *
* CHARLEVOIX COUNTY *
* * * * * * * * * * * *

Farmers in Charlevoix county may soon expect to receive their 1941 soil-depleting allotments. The various towaship committeemen have met in the AAA office for the purpose of recommending allotments for 1941 and final allotments will soon be approved by a representative of the state committee.

The AAA program has encournged and recommended the seeding of brome grass with alfalfa. This mixture provides a high grazing capacity and nutritive value adapted to Michigan conditions. In 1940, 1,958 acres of brome grass and alfalfa was seeded in Charlevoix county. Over twice as much brome grass and alfalfa was seeded together, than alfalfa alone. We feel that this is significant that our farm program is getting results toward greater soil improvement.

A soil-building goal is established on every farm participating in the program. This goal represents a maximum payment that may be earned by carrying out approved soil-building practices. Payment was received on 54.5% of the county soil-building allowance this year. Bay township, receiving payment on 84.1% of their soil-building allowance, earned a greater percent than any other township within the county.

Comparison of angling pressure from creel censuses on typical northern Michigan warm water lakes and on trout waters show that the trout streams are fished about seven times as heavily as the lakes.

may reaffirm legally the Republican appointments of former Gov. Dickinson instead of the appointees of Gov. Van Wagoner. Eleven days before he left office, Mr. Dickinson sent the names of 58 Republican appointments to Fred I. Chase, secretary of the Senate. On January 1, inaugural day, Gov. Van Wagoner furnished a rival list of 44 names.

The Rushton ruling is expected to provide the Republican leadership with something tangible for trading purposes. It may result in a division of offices between the two parties, according to bargaining agreement.

Survey of Small Industry

Following up the appeal by William Knudsen, arms production chief, for an immediate survey of all industrial resources, Gov. Van Wagoner ordered the state planning commission to conduct such a survey in Michigan.

Greater flexibility is the need of the hour for decentralizing arms production, the governor pointed out in an interview at Washington. This would enable small industries to accept sub-contracts for arms production, and would follow the success of British industry in parceling out smaller jobs to small companies.

St. Lawrence Waterway

Another project which has been given the governor's blessing is the Roosevelt-endorsed program to open the Great Lakes to ocean shipping.

At a time when sea-board shipyards are years behind in construction of war ships and commercial vessels, the Great Lakes ports may provide needed facilities.

John C. Beukema of Muskegon, chairman of the executive committee, National Seaway Council, points out: "No sound program for national and continental defense can be devised that does not include the St. Lawrence navigation and power project. The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system is a potential northern Baltic. Remove the obstructions along 68 miles of river and you open 2,500 miles of waterway, stretching as far as Duluth and Chicago, to ocean traffic.

"Within this landlocked security the merchant marine we and Britain so badly need can be built."

John L. Carey, mayor, Dearborn, also echoed the above belief that "this seaway would provide a means of building all of the necessary maritime shipping needs through the ability of our Great Lakes shipyards to build and deliver ships to salt water."

Praising the middle-west with a seacoast equal to that of Florida, the waterway would open ocean shipping to more than 85 inland communities with backyards extending into 17 states.

As would be expected, the railroads do not favor the waterway. Robert V. Fletcher, general counsel of the Association of American Railroads, has branded it as "unsound economically and dangerous politically." Eastern and southern interests are also cool to the idea.

Law Making Powers

The six-eight amendment setting up civil service in Michigan also empowered the commission with authority to make its own laws and to construe the amendment in every particular. The legislature is stripped of its rights completely; partisan hy-play is relegated to ancient history.

Competitive examinations have been ordered to fill the jobs of 2,785 state employees who have had no previous civil service status. And, furthermore, the commission has indicated that politics is to have no consideration in its merit ratings; Republicans or Democrats will retain equal privileges of opportunity.

Civil service advocates believe that the merit plan will increase governmental efficiency and lower payroll costs. Former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck went on record favoring a "living wage" to state workers in the lower pay bracket, indicating that stabilization of pay may make beginning jobs of government more attractive financially for career employees.

Civil service, once the butt of legislative jokes, has regained much of its lost dignity and respect at Lansing. This has been due, in no small degree, to the public-acclaimed calibre of the commission personnel headed by George J. Burke, Ann Arbor.

Division of Spoils?

In other respects, however, signs were in evidence that bi-partisan control would "by-party"—whether Republican or Democrat. Pick your own interpretation.

1. The house committee on agriculture released a bill whereby the commissioner of agriculture would be appointed by the state board of agriculture. It was expected to shelve a bill proposed by Rep. Edward J. Walsh, Detroit, Democratic floor leader, for appointment of a five-member agricultural commission on a staggered term basis.

2. Reporting out of Senate committee of a bill by Sen. D. Hale Brake, Stanton, providing for nomination and election of the state highway commissioner on a partisan basis. This was to clarify the 1939 amendment making judicial elections non-partisan, and is aimed at the anticipated candidacy of G. Donald Kennedy for state highway commissioner.

3. Ruling by Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton that the senate

tional matters, but I've been trying to figure out ever since the 17 billion dollar defense program got under way what is wrong with a government which urges the utmost in production from manufacturers on one hand, and stands idly by while strikes tie up production on the other. Sorta looks as if the government and labor unions are in cahoots, don't it? Seems a solution of the whole thing could be as simple as making the employers do what is right, providing they're wrong, or the workers toe the mark if they're demands are not justified.

I never knew there was any definition for snoring until I heard a fellow call it "sheet music."

Remember the fishin' Jay Metcalfs? Got a card from them this week. They're down in Mexico, looking for fish, as usual, and having trouble finding any as good as the Charlevoix variety, it seems. Hope they take some movies as interesting as those they showed us last summer of a Canadian moose hunt.

Speaking about fishin' reminds me of an embarrassing moment I had Sunday. Was fishing away blissfully for perch on Round lake when Conservation Officer Erwin Belfy knocked on the shanty door. I opened it up and, upon request, showed him my catch. He also asked if I had a license. I said, "sure," and handed him what I supposed was the legal document. He opened the paper and says: "Sorry, fellow, you can't fish on that," and be darned if the piece of paper wasn't a telegram blank. I would have crawled through the hole in the ice in shame if it hadn't been so wet and cold. Belfy was pretty considerate, though. Instead of sending me home after the license, he checked up Monday morning just to keep me honest.

The perch fishing was swell while it lasted. Thursday night's cold snap froze Round lake so the fish boats couldn't get through, and Saturday the boys made some whopping catches. Just like old times, they said it was. Sunday's fishin' was fair, also Monday's as long as the ice lasted, but due to lack of continued cold and heavy current, the ice went bad and now they're waiting for another freeze-up.

It seems several Boyne City citizens were no little upset last week when they read in the council proceedings an item showing the city's purchase of a horse for four dollars. An inquiry regarding what the city was going to do with a four-dollar horse, revealed that the four-dollar horse was really two two-dollar horses—old, worn-out animals they were going to mercifully dispose of and turn the hides over to the WPA guide training school to make snowshoe thongs and boot laces from. That was a "horse on them."

I came away from the Sportsman's Club annual meeting last Thursday night with the thought: "there's an organization to be proud of." What with Roy Ranger voluntarily going ahead with all the activities, either with assistance or without, generous allotment of funds for this very important fish propagation work, and all the club really accomplishes things. Couldn't help but think what a wonderful thing it would be if Boyne City and East Jordan had organizations doing a similar job. We're all located on the same lake, are all anxious to make the fishing better as an attraction to summer vacationists, in fact, our interests certainly should be merged in one common cause. The board of supervisors' appropriation for fish and game is evenly divided between the three cities—$300 to each—and $100 to Beaver Island. Now, I'm not looking for trouble of any sort, but I've wondered what the other fellows do with their money. I know East Jordan operated a system of rearing ponds up to a couple years ago, but I've never heard of any such activity at Boyne City. Perhaps you can read between the lines and figure out that this is an appeal for a uniform program of fish propagation for Charlevoix county. What benefits one community will certainly help us all, and just between you and me, it would be awful simple for all to work together.

The United States Soil Conservation Service tells us that an estimated 3 billion tons of soil is lost each year by washing and blowing. This loss would cover about 1,800,000 acres an inch deep. It would seem as though our soil conservation program should have started years ago.

With the exception of the Allegan tract, all of Michigan's state forests have now been under management more than a dozen years. Two have been so administered for 37 years and five others for more than 20 years.

Rural Film Stars Happy To Stay Down on Farm

The Parkinson family, playing the leading roles in POWER AND THE LAND, the rural electrification motion picture at the Palace Theatre Feb. 5th and 6th, was selected from 600,000 families living in rural districts serviced by REA, after a three weeks' search by Joris Ivens, the film's director.

The Parkinsons, Bill, whose father and grandfather were farmers, and his wife, Hazel, who was a schoolteacher before she married, have a 205-acre dairy farm in rolling hill country near St. Clairsville, Ohio. Their children number five—Tom and Jake, who want to be farmers, Dan, who is a natural mechanic and wants to work at it, "Bip" who is too young to be interested in anything but mischief, and Ruth, who would rather go to school than stay home and do housework or even act in the movies.

Ruth and "Bip", in fact, were in constant disagreement about school during the film's making. When it was a cloudy day, "Bip" anxiously watched the sky for the sun, for it meant he could stay home from school that day to act for the movie. But studious Ruth welcomed the dull days that meant going to school.

Mrs. Parkinson frequently provides the family's favorite evening entertainment. After the supper dishes are done she gathers them 'round while she reads aloud. Biographies, the accounts of the heroic deeds of real men and women — hold more interest for the Parkinsons than fiction.

Bill Parkinson is a man of few words and an infinite capacity for hard work, but he is a firm believer in the old adage about all work and no play. Life should hold more for the honest man than toil, and electricity is the power that brings that boon to the farmer.— and to him is "Power and the Land." His rare smile at the end of the film bulletins his own awareness of the better health, better living and better prosperity in store for him with electricity. You'll want to see this most interesting show at the Palace next week.

SHEEP GAIN WEIGHT ON SMALLER PASTURE LAND

Fertilizer Costing $1.25 Makes Acre More Valuable Pasture

Secrets of gaining 265 pounds of lamb on an acre of pasture given fertilizer worth $1.25 are no longer secrets, following proof of the process in experiments at the Lake City experiment station of Michigan State College.

Sheep in regular native pasture during the summer of 1939 ate sparse alfalfa mixed with quack and other grasses available but actually lost weight, reports A. M. Berridge, superintendent of the station. He took one and one-half acres of land which had a scattering of white clover and gave this 500 pounds of 0-20-0 fertilizer, — superphosphate. The 500 pounds is considered sufficient to effect improvement for five years.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Good Spud Seed Ready for 1941

Michigan farmers this spring will have a golden opportunity to get a new start in foundation seed potatoes at a price considerably under that of last year, according to H. C. Moore, potato specialist at Michigan State College.

Reason for the lower price this year, Moore says is the larger seed crop, both in the state and throughout the nation. He stresses that with many fields of common stock badly infected with blight and disease last year it is important that Michigan farmers get in on the ground floor this spring on the purchase of the state's crop of certified seed. In former years, Michigan tillers have waited until late in the season, only to find the supply sold outstate in many cases. That is why Moore is urging early action in placing orders.

Quality of the 1940 crop of certified seed is excellent, the potato specialist says. There is very little scab, type is very good, and there is little frost injury. Stocks are holding up well in storage despite the epidemic of blight which swept over the state last year.

Certified seed potatoes in tests over the state have outyielded common stocks by an average of 50 bushels per acre, according to Moore.

Varieties available this year include the old reliable Russet Rural, Irish Cobbler, Katahdin, Green Mountain, Chippewa, and the newest Michigan variety, Pontiac. A small supply of White Rural, Bliss Triumph, and Russet Burbank is on hand.

Most marked increase of any variety is in use of the Chippewa, according to Moore. This potato is noted for its good market quality, earliness, and good type under adverse weather conditions. The Pontiac, red-skinned variety developed at the college, also is on the increase with 15 or 20 times as much seed available this year as last.

Because of the blight the last two years, a good spraying program will be essential this year even with good clean seed, Moore says.

Roy E. Skog, Extension Forester, Meets With School Forestry Club

Roy E. Skog, Extension Forester, appeared at four schools on the 14th and 15th. His talk was nicely illustrated by slides all taken right here in Michigan. His lecture touched upon soil erosion, woodlot improvement and management, and results of school forestry projects.

At Charlevoix approximately 250 students enjoyed the 45 minute program. This was the first program of this type ever given at Charlevoix and the response was most gratifying. The other three schools visited were East Jordan, Walloon Lake and Boyne Falls.

During the last two weeks something like 1000 acres of state owned land has been requested by various schools in the county to be set aside for school forests. This state land can be deeded to the various schools for just $1.00 per description and then can be used as a basis for future conservation programs. The Charlevoix school has applied for approximately 400 acres, the East Jordan school for around 120 acres, Boyne City school for around 440 acres and Boyne Falls 140 acres.

It is hoped that much greater emphasis will be placed on conservation than in the past. By the same token its expected to see a bigger increase in the organization of 4-H Forestry Clubs. Certainly we are all becoming more conservation conscious and there is no reason why our young folks shouldn't be given the opportunity of setting out young pine seedlings, of studying wild life, of knowing more about proper woodlot management and all other phases of conservation.

RAYDERS LOSE TO BOYNE RAMBLERS

DEFEATED FRIDAY IN CLOSE GAME BY 28 TO 24 SCORE

Rayders Reserves Beaten by Lop-Sided 35 to 13 Count—Play at East Jordan Friday Night

Boyne City's Ramblers out-pointed a determined Red Rayder outfit at Boyne City last Friday night to maintain their lead in the northern Michigan class C basketball conference.

The final score, 28 to 24, indicated closeness of a contest in which the steadily improving Rayders extended the league leaders to the limit.

Boyne led after a close first period by a single point, 7 to 6, and had the advantage of a 14 to 10 count at the half. Up to this time there had been little to choose from between the two teams. The third period, however, proved the Rayders' undoing. Boyne netted 10 points to Charlevoix's 4 for a 24 to 15 margin at third intermission, providing a lead too wide to overcome even though the Rayders out-scored them 9 points to 4 in the final stanza.

Don Carey was high point scorer for Charlevoix with 10. Swanson contributed 5, Gengle 4, Kohler and Mitchell 2 each, Stewart 1. Tho Dietze's, Wally and Ernie, divided oll of Boyne's scoring but 1 point, the former netting 13 and the latter 14.

Boyno's reserves upset the Rayder second-stringers by a wide margin, winning 35 to 13 in a lop-sided contest. They led 11 to 1 at the quarter, 17 to 2 at the half and 24 to 8 at the third intermission.

The Rayders play Friday night, February 7, at East Jordan, concluding their schedule of games awuy from home. Subsequent Fridoy nights bring Gruyling, Boyne City and Harbor Springs here for successive engagements.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY HAS NO MILITARY REJECTIONS

All Men Sent to Induction Stations Pass Medical Requirements

Either Charlevoix county young men who have enlisted for military service under the selective draft are healthier than the average, or else the physician who examines them in this district does an A-1 job.

The percentage of rejections for the state at induction stations has so far been 19%, but no Charlevoix county man has been sent back yet. And this perfect record hasn't been maintained in other counties of the district, either.

Sufficient volunteers for Charlevoix county's Febrnary quota of 14 men are availahle. Date of the call has not yet been received.

MOTORISTS URGED TO BUY LICENSES

USUAL LAST-MINUTE RUSH MAY BE AVOIDED NOW

Fenton R. Bulow, Local Branch Manager, Announces Daily and Saturday Office Hours

A special appeal from Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, urging residents of the Charlevoix district to purchase 1941 automobile license plates at once, has been received by Fenton R. Bulow, manager of the local branch office of the Department of State.

The appeal came in connection with an announcement that half-year plates would be available at once, going on sale specifically last Saturday. The color scheme for the half-year licenses this year is maroon letters and numerals on a white background, the reverse of the full year plates. These half-year licenses will be good until August 31.

Last year 1150 sets of passenger license plates were issued in Charlevoix, it was pointed out by Mr. Bulow. To date, 155 1941 license have been issued, indicating that at least 995 motor car owners of this district will have to make their way up to the license counter before March 1st.

There can be no extension of the license plate deadline after March 1, the legislature having passed an act to put a stop to the former practice.

The branch office will be closed February 12 and February 22, legal holidays, and each Saturday afternoon except February 15 and March 1, when the office will be open all day. Office hours are 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

If a man could have half his wishes, he would double his troubles.

A well known local citizen said to me the other day: "You fellows (meaning the Boss) must have a lot of confidence in Charlevoix to invest money in a new building." I says to him: "Well, it's been a good town the thirty-and-some-odd years we've been here, and if there aren't too mnny pessimists like yourself, it'll continue to be good for that mnny more."

Johnny: "Can I kiss you?"

Girl Friend: "I don't know. Most fellows have been able to."

It takes the down-staters to appreciate the wonderful things nature has provided us here in the north. Talked the other day with three fellows from Lowell. They had just come off Lake Charlevoix with over 60 nice perch and the night before had caught around 200 smelt at Boyne City. One of them remark-

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

One month of the 1941 legislative session has faded. The time is ngain ot hand when followers of democrncy droop in pessimism and pronounce with sadness thot the two-chamber system of reflecting the people's will is hopelessly inefficient and utterly unproductive.

True, little has been outwardly accomplished.

A host of bills have been introduced, few of them possessing major interest to the state.

While perennial talk has been heard that law makers would get down to business and make this a short session, old-timers merrly smile nt such rashness and predict that the Ides of Mny or June will roll nround before adjournment is possible.

The first month, like oll others in recent years, has afforded the preliminary bout to the main fight. Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner and the Republican legislature have en-

It seems to the writer that in critical times like the present some way could be found to settle the differences between employer and employee without stopping production. The strikers act like a lot of spoiled children. "If you won't play my way I won't play." Nor let anyone else. It would be better if both sides would apply the golden rule.

DICKENS CLUB ANNUAL BIRTHDAY PARTY COLORFUL EVENT OF MONDAY

A true Dickensian spirit prevailed Monday, February 3, when the Charles Dickens Club held their annual birthday party honoring the memory of the great English novelist and humorist, Charles Dickens.

The hostess, Mrs. Arthur Ranger (dressed as Little Nell), greeted the members and guests as they arrived in appropriate costumes, representing Mrs. Jarley, owner of a famous waxworks; Sairey Camp, with her bottle of spirits, ready for any emergency, either for a lying-in, or a laying-out party; Miss Murdstone; Clara Murdstone, mother of David Copperfield; Betsy Trotwood, David's aunt; Mrs. Micawber, genteel though poorly clad, arrived in the company of Florence Dombey. Mr. Stiggins and Dick Swivellor caused much merriment, as Mrs. Bardell said she had the flare of her life with so many handsome gentlemen around her, and the Fat Boy casting admiring glances at her.

Many of the costumes were the authentic dress of the 19th century in England.

In the dining room were two long tables laid with places for twenty-two. Red-and-white plaid tablecloths, red-and-white goblets, and beautiful floral centerpieces of red and white carnations, presented by Mrs. Harter, made a colorful setting. The menu was typically English, consisting of traditional dishes, even to the flaming English plum pudding.

Later, Mrs. Clinton Cooper read an original poem entitled "Welcome to Boz," which introduced many more Dickens characters. So ended a very delightful and entertaining afternoon.

AUTOS TAKE A HEAVY TOLL OF WILD GAME

Jackson Sportsman Keeps Tally of Wildlife Killed on Highways

N. C. (Bert) Crowell, a Jackson fisherman who keeps a count of wildlife he sees killed in highway traffic along with his creel records, noted the death by automobile of 140 wild birds and animals in 12,000 miles of driving in 1940.

The toll as Crowell observed it included 62 rabbits, 31 pheasants, 19 fox squirrels, 12 muskrats, six opossums, three skunks, two robins and a quail, a weasel, a fox, a chipmunk and a woodchuck. Eighteen chickens, a duck, seven cats, four dogs, five pigs and a cow add 36 domestic animals to his year's tally. July appears the most dangerous month for wildlife along the highway, having 45 casualties in the Crowell record.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

The American's Creed

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign state of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its institutions; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

Cultivation of Cacti.

As a group cacti are considered curiousities rather than decorative house plants, although a few species are exceedingly beautiful when in flower. The Christmas cactus and related types, and the night-blooming cereus are illustrations of rare beauty. Cacti are natural desert plants and their water requirements are, therefore, limited. They thrive in the unnatural environment of a flower-pot if given good drainage and a soil composed of equal parts of loam and sand. The addition of a little lime to loamy soils is a wise precaution.

Once established, the cactus plant may be left undisturbed for several years as far as re-potting is concerned. The pots should be plunged in the garden during the summer, but returned to the house before frost. Water should be given sparingly at all times, except during the flowering period. Contrary to the popular idea, cacti prefer a cool room to one kept constantly warm. Temperature of 50 degrees at night suits them.

The Christmas or crab cactus is the principal form for house culture. The cultivation as outlined above for cacti also fits the requirements of other succulent plants suitable for the window garden, as those popularly known as the air-plant and crown-of-thorns, also sempervivum, houseleek or hen-and-chickens.

Instead of having it all ready-made,
If God had given Eve a rake and spade,
A lot of bulbs and shrubs and flower seeds,
(But here and there dropped secretly some weeds)
Then let her go ahead and dig and hoe
And watch the little plants come up and grow,
The Serpent would have had no blandishment
With which to stir her heart to discontent.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

The Misses Edith and Dnrothy Hewitt returned Sunday to their home in Detroit, after a week's visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Hewitt. Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt motored to Standish with the group.

Mrs. John Cross entertained last Wednesday afternoon at a party in honor of the seventh birthday of her son, Jackie. The guests played games and were served refreshments at a table centered by a big birthday cake. Those present were Enos and Charles Bacon, Billy and Ralph Cross, Billy Goss, Roxie Herrick, Norman Ketchman, Roger and Joan Pischner, Virginia Smith, Billy Wallace, Carol and Jill Cross.

FARM PROSPECTS FOR '41 APPEAR EXCELLENT

Meat, Dairy and Poultry Prices Show Indication of Increase

Michigan farmers can wear smiles of optimism, for a forecast of 1941 prices and markets indicates agriculture in this state will fare well in the next 12 months.

Summaries of the digest prepared by R. V. Gunn, Michigan State College agricultural economist, start out with prospects for higher prices this year for hogs, lambs, dairy and poultry products and some fruits and vegetables.

No increases appear likely for wheat, cotton or tobacco. Gunn finds it's difficult to predict a trend for beans, soybeans, potatoes or sugar beets, but sees no reason for any decline. For the United States as a whole, economists forecast for 1941 an 8 to 10 per cent farm price increase over 1940, assuming no real inflationary movement in this country.

KITCHEN TRICKS LESSEN LABORS

Average homemakers spend more working time in the kitchen than in any other room in the house. And work is done more easily and quickly if tools and supplies are at fingertips.

One of the goals of kitchen planning is to reduce the number of steps necessary to performing routine tasks, according to the staff in home economics at Michigan State College. To accomplish this, modern kitchens are divided into "work centers." That is, all the supplies and all the equipment for one kind of kitchen work are grouped together.

In general, there are four work centers in the kitchen—one for food preparation, one for serving, one for cooking and one for dishwashing. Storage spaces should be arranged with reference to the work done at each center.

In a very compact kitchen all of these work centers—except the one for cooking—may be located near the sink. A sink usually is flanked by drainboards that are really smooth-surface work tops. On each side, above and below the work surface are storage cabinets.

The natural way for a right-handed person to wash dishes is from right to left—stacking the dishes on the right, and putting them to drain at the left. So the logical place to store dishes used most often is near the place where they are dried, in this case above the left drainboard. Such dishes include cereal and sauce dishes, cups, saucers, plates, and platters. The logical place to store everyday silverware and dish towels is in drawers below this drainboard.

THE AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Seven hundred ninety-eight farmers in Charlevoix county complied with the 1940 AAA program and earned payments by planting within crop allotments and by carrying out approved soil-building practices on their farms. $25,620 was distributed to farmers in the county which resulted in an average payment of about $32.00 for each cooperator. An additional wheat parity payment of $865.00 was also paid, making a total of $26,485 for the year.

Well in advance of planting time, every farmer will be notified of his acreage allotments, and the soil-building goal which has been established for his farm. He will also be informed regarding the payments he may earn by planting within these allotments and the kind of soil-building practices which he may carry out in earning his soil-building allowance. All farmers will have the opportunity of signing a farm plan which will indicate their intentions to participate in the 1941 farm program.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Do Not Issue Post Dated Checks

A CHECK that is dated ahead is a "post dated check." Usually it is given by a person who hasn't sufficient funds in the bank to cover the check at the time it is issued, but who expects to have it there when the check is presented for payment.

On the face of it, a person who issues a post dated check does not guarantee that he has the money on deposit to meet the check.

It may be a cause of trouble and embarrassment to the holder if he inadvertently deposits it before the due date, or to the maker if he is unable to deposit the necessary funds to cover it before the due date arrives. Thus post dated checks can be a reflection on the credit of the maker, so it is advisable to avoid issuing them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"No Worriments"

Sir: In going over my record books and checking on my credit accounts it dawned on me what kind of a business I was in.

The service station operator should cut prices on his gasoline, oil, tires and every other piece of merchandise he sells because it's all profit anyway, and no worriments or labor connected with the work.

All a service station operator has to do is see that he has gas and oil on stock when his customers want it. He must be open when his customers want service. If the customer has no money to pay for what he bought you have to wait until he gets it—if he doesn't forget it. Then occasionally there is air to be put in the tires; windshields to clean and a bolt to tighten here and there, all of which takes wrenches with which to work. If the customer had the wrenches he would have done the work himself.

Every service station operator should have nothing but the best lubricating equipment as well as other equipment which will cost possibly $500. He needs this to take care of his customers' needs 100 per cent. A complete stock of accessories is necessary. Spark plugs and tester, tires, tubes, bulbs, flash light batteries, six volt batteries, heaters, chains, different greases. He needs these to make a good job of whatever he does for the customer.

Occasionally you will get a customer who buys 5 gallons of gas a week from you—who goes to a chain store to buy a muffler or tail pipe, but don't turn him down because he is the fellow who helps keep you in business on his gasoline purchases. Maybe he just bought some spark plugs at the chain store, and his motor doesn't work right. So you take them out and test them and see why they don't work. He takes them back so that he can exchange them and get the right ones—but don't charge the customer. He buys gasoline at a cheap price.

Don't forget if you want to buy something pay the full list price and a little more because you are in the gasoline business, and when the different organizations in your town have any program—spend a few dollars for advertising because you are in the gasoline business.

"Gasoline Gus."

Training England's Dogs of War

An article explaining — in words and pictures—how the British War office teaches' airdales to rescue victims buried in bombed buildings, to carry messages under heavy machine-gun fire, and help sentries with their extra-keen eyes and ears, is one of many intriguing features in The American Weekly with the February 9 issue of the Detroit Sunday Times. Be sure to get The Detroit Sunday Times this week.

During 1940, life insurance put more than $600,000,000 of its policyholder reserves into the bonds of factories and industrial plants of America, 50% more than in 1939, it is reported by the Institute of Life Insurance.

Cooperative Managers and Directors Hold First of Winter Meetings

The first of two meetings for Cooperative munagers nnd directors in this district was held at the Dilworth Hotel, Boyne City, last Wednesday, with some seven cooperative nssocintions represented. These meetings are sponsored jointly by the Cndillac Growers Exchange und the Michignn State College. The veal objective is to acquaint the cooperative organizations with the latest developments in regard to marketing their produce nnd in legislative proposals thnt affect all cooperative ngencies.

Fred Hibst, munnger of the Cudillac Ponto Exchange, discussed the development taking place in Lansing and in particular, the Post bill, which would authorize the state board of agriculture to appoint the State Commissioner of Agriculture. An informal vote indicated that the majority wns in favor of the appointment of n commission which would make the nppointment of the commissioner. Likewise, he discussed the po'nto inspection netivity and brought ont the fact that many changes were desirable for effective inspection.

Barver Huston, potnto salesman, Pi-cussed the movement of pontoes to markets and the conditions that effect prices. He did not predict what the future nrices of potatoes would be as probably no one knows at this time. However, the Michignn potnto crop this year is 20,640,000 bushels which is some 4,000,000 bushels below last year's crop of which nbout 56', is unsold as of January 1st. He estimated thnt about 8,600 cars of potntoes would be sold this year as compgred to 10,000 cars last year. In regard to certified seed potatoes, the national crop is the highest on record being one-fifth larger than the previous high crop of 1937. As a result, severnl stntes are moving certified seed potntoes nt very low prices. Michigan is holding for n higher price so very few sales hnve been mnde up to dnte. Nnthing in the outlook points to higher prices for potatoes. Certainly with the nntional crop nround 397,000,000 bushels there is very little hope for high prices.

C. S. Nash, specialist from Michignn Stnte College, discussed the tnxation program that effects individuals as well as cooperatives. He advises nll cooperatives to file their returns even if they are exempted by law from pnying certnin types of taxes. These meetings are very much worth while ns they touch upon problems of grent interest to the cooperative movement. A seennd meeting will be held in the near future.

gaged in some nimble sparring to test each other's powers.

Courting the Farm Vote

For years prior to the New Deal, the Republican party held title to the farm vote. Democrats fared best in metropoiitan areas.

The Roosevelt landslide of 1936 brought Frank Murphy and a Democratic legislature to Lansing, but the 1937 legislative session did little to cultivate the agrarian. Problems of labor dominated the scene. The 1939 legislature, led by a Republican administration, reflected interests of numerous members who came from rural and smnll town areas, and the penduium swung back towards home rule in letting local government take the initiative in solving its own problems. Many farm laws were enacted.

Governor Van Wagoner, undaunted by the traditional hold which the Republicans have retained on the upstate farm vote, is contesting that control by insistence that the 1941 legislature, even though it be under G.O.P. leadership, take the state department of agriculture out of politics by creating a non-partisan commission.

Here is nn issue, the governor believes, that merits farm support. It is just good business to provide for a continuity of effort nnd to stop the needless turnover of department heads every time a fickle bloc of independent voters in Michigan swings over to the other side and elects a new governor. Such has happened five times in the pnst ten years with clock-like regularity.

"Playing Politics"

The new civil service amendment, jelling thousands of state employees with protective rights, was nn almost cataclysmatic blow to politicians. Patronage pap has sweetened many a cnmpaign follower. It has also plagued stnte officials to the point where they were devoting most of their time to appeasing job-seekers nnd organizntion sponsors.

The civil service barrier to patronage was bad enough in the politician's mind, but then to go out deliberately and take away a tree full nf choice sweet plums was something that called for a party caucus. The non-partisan commission for the department of agriculture has provoked a storm of discussion to the point that tempers are already ragged and hot words are being nired.

Here is the situntion:

A bill to create a non-partisan commission for the agriculture department was introduced by Rep. Walsh, democratic floor leader in the House, as an administration measure.

Republicans countered promptly by pushing a bill introduced by Rep. Maurice E. Post to reorganize the stato department by investing the state board of agriculture, governing body of Michigan State College, with power to appoint the state commissioner of agriculture. Furthermore, Republicans are inclined to a convlction that if non-partisan cnntrol is good for the agricultural deparment, why is it not good for the highwny department too?

(Administration nnswer: Has Michignn suffered from the elective system nf highway commissioner? Since 1913 the state hns had only three cnmmissioners — Frank F. Rogers 1913-1929, Grover C. Dillman 1929-1933, and Murray D. Van Wagnner 1933-1941. G. Donnld Kennedy is filling the latter's unexpired term.)

Whcn Governor Vnn Wagoner issued a public statement calling on farm groups to support his stand, Republican legislators flung the retort "playing politics" and declarod that the governor was trying to crnwl out of a had political hole.

So the feud has been raging.

Legislative Miscellany

The 30-day notice of strike, which the stato mediation board requires where nntional defense contracts nre involved, may receive support nf the governor's office. The growing gravity of the British situntion and the resultant need for speed in American defense nre given as reasons.

State nid for advertising Michigan's tourist industry would be doubled from $100,000 tn $200,000 n yenr by the Bishop bill which was passed by the Senate with only two negative votes.

A bill to empower the stnte land office board to construct state-owned homes for welfare clients in metropolitan arens will be introduced soon at the request of Auditor General Vernon J. Brown. This experiment in iost-cost sate housing was advocated recently by Mr. Brown. Radical as it sounds, the plan follows the successful experience of socialistic Sweden and Norwny and it illustrates how far our thinking has gone in the pnst decade.

The University of Michigan is receiving $446,000 less per year in state funds than in 1933, when there were 3,304 fewer students. Additional money is imperntively needed, according to President A. G. Ruthven.

ed: "You guys sure are lucky to have such fishing right at your back door. We have to travel over 100 miles to enjoy it." Wonder if we don't sometimes take such things too much for granted?

Isn't It the Truth?—

The Kid: "Pop, how soon will I be old enough to do as I please?"

The Old Man: "I don't know, son. Nobody has ever lived that long yet."

I don't know about the rest of the U. S., but if the Ground Hog poked his nose out around here Sunday he certainly saw his shadow and crawled back in his hole for another six weeks of winter.

And contradicting the Ground Hog theory are a couple sure evidences of the approach of spring. Saw a couple kids playing "megs" Tuesday and Art Ranger stole a march on other informers by reporting the "first robin" story for 1941. This apparently misguided Red Breast was seen last Sunday morning in a Mountain Ash tree in front of the See Funeral home. Them's sure signs!

The weather?—O. K.

Pleasant reflections—It's 81 days until the trout season opens; 141 days until the bass season begins; 253 days before we can hunt small game again and 284 days until we can stalk the elusive buck (providing, of course, the legislature doesn't change the seasons).

This United States of ours may be the world's last democracy, for which we are all thankful, but that's no sign everything's all right. I have always thought there was plenty of room for improvement in our economic system and was even more thoroughly convinced after "Hank" Block told me the other day about how puzzled a farmer who immigrated from the Netherlands into his neighborhood some years ago was when he had to pay $1.50 per sack for the same grain he bought in the Old Country for $1. The bags bought in the Netherlands and those in Charlevoix both had the trade mark of a Kansas City, Mo., mill. Can you hent that? And then there's the instance of the fellow who was quoted a price of $36 per thousand for lumber in a nearby town. Figuring it too high he found the same stuff could be bought for $33 at Montgomery Ward, so ordered it there. Imagine his surprise when Montgomery Ward mailed him a requisition to get the lumber from the nearby town retailer where he had first inquired at $33 per thousand and allowed him $1.50 per thousand for hauling it himself. I'll admit I'm too dumb to figure some of these things out. Suppose you try it!

Another night like Tuesday with near-zero temperature ought to fix Round lake up for perch fishing again. The boys haven't been able to get on the lake for over a week and, with the perch fishing petered out on Lake Charlevoix, they're no doubt getting anxious. There'a plenty of ice in the Lake Michigan bay off Charlevoix now, too. Unless heavy east winds move it out, those fishermen who didn't skoot to Leland are liable to be ice-bound for the rest of the winter.

SCHOOLS TO HEAR TALKS DEER HERD MANAGEMENT

Series Meetings by I. H. Bartlett, Conservation Dept., Announced

I. H. Bartlett, games division, department of conservation, will spend the week of February 10 in this district visiting the 4-H club organizations in some 16 schools.

This is the second series of meetings arranged by O. F. Walker, district 4-H club leader, in giving 4-H club members more information relative to conservation in Michigan. Mr. Bartlett has devoted the last 15 years in studying deer herd management and probably knows more about this subject than anyone in Michigan.

He will appear at the Charlevoix high school at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday, February 11; at East Jordan at 1:00 o'clock and Boyne Falls at 2:30 o'clock. On Wednesday, the 12th, he will talk to the Melrose township unit at Walloon Lake at 9:00. In many cases all high school students are invited to hear these talks while in others only 4-H club members are encouraged to attend.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Care of Influenza

Influenza began its sweep eastward from Porto Rico in late summer, where it was responsible for more than 100,000 cases of illness, was epidemic in Hawaii in September and was carried by the United States fleet to the west coast in December. It has reached Michigan, but not in epidemic proportions. Should it do so, the state and local health departments are prepared to meet it.

Hospital and emergency bed facilities are being listed and a registry of nurses is being made. The bureau of epidemiology of the Michigan Department of Health is advising against the closing of schools unless teaching staff or pupil attendance declines to 50 per cent of normal. Meantime, teachers are being requested to exclude pupils showing signs of fever or other symptoms of illness and to report the cases promptly to their health departments.

This represents perhaps the limit of the ability of public agencies to control influenza. In the last analysis, the responsibility for prevention is lodged with the individual. It is, therefore, essential that every person living in fairly close contact with others learn to recognize the symptoms of the disease and to treat himself promptly and properly with its appearance.

The treatment is simple. It consists primarily in going to bed and remaining there until convalescence is complete. This self-isolation benefits the community as well as the victims, since it reduces the number of possible contacts and checks the spread of the disease.

Influenza is caused by a virus, an ultra-microscopic organism, probably of many different strains. Its symptoms are much like those of a bad cold, but it is to be noted that influenza is distinguished by a sudden attack of weakness, by a flow of nasal secretion, by fever which may rise to 103 degrees fahrenheit, by aches and pains in the back, arms and legs, and, most significantly, by an unusual type of headache. Other symptoms may subside quickly, but the strange sensitivity of the scalp remains till the illness has run its course.

With ordinary good care, inluenza should reach and pass its most acute stage within three days. This is usually the case when the victim has retired to bed with the first observable symptoms and has summoned the physician, who examines the chest and throat, orders changes in the diet and prescribes medication.

An attack of influenza should not be considered ended until two weeks have elapsed from the onset of the disease. Attempts to resume work before the end of this period may invite secondary infections which are likely to prove far more serious than the initial seizure. Of these, pneumonia is the most probable, but diseases of the ears, the sinuses and the bronchi commonly appear as complications.

Pneumonia is ushered in by a chill and a sharp pain in the chest, followed by cough which may produce bloody sputum. That is the moment for quick and decisive action. Immediate removal to a hospital is advisable. The administration of sulfathiazol or a related drug is started as soon as possible and, thanks to these remarkable drugs the fever quickly subsides, the cough is checked and the patient begins to mend rapidly.

However, it is extremely important that the doctor and nurse maintain their vigilance for some days, keeping careful record of the body functions, especially the chemical constitution of the blood. Any tendency toward anemia, resulting from the action of the drug, must be instantly detected and checked.

ONE CITY, ONE WARD CONTEST BEFORE VOTERS

Mrs. Nelle Hammond Opposes F. V. Tyler for Treasurer; Alderman Contest In First Ward

Charlevoix voters will make their choice of Republican candidates for city and ward offices at the polls of the annual spring primary election next Monday, February 17.

One contest for city office and a contest for alderman in the first precinct compares with a three-way race for treasurer and two-way scraps for alderman of the first and third wards last year.

On the city ticket, Mayor Robert Bridge and Clerk Ray S. Hamilton are unopposed. F. V. Tyler, incumbent city treasurer, is opposed for renomination by Mrs. Nelle Hammond. There is one ward contest. Charles Bellinger, first ward alderman, seeks nomination for another term against George O. Haggard.

In the second ward, Harley I. Ochs, a new-comer for office, seeks the nomination as alderman to succeed Charles H. Lamphear, who was not a candidate for renomination.

Conforming with the 1937 legislative changes in the election laws, the names of all candidates, opposed or unopposed, appear on the ballot. Prior to 1937 only names of opposed candidates appeared.

Polls of the election will be open at 7 a. m. and close at 8 p. m.

Following is the list of candidates:

Clerk *Ray S. Hamilton.
Treasurer—*F. V. Tyler, Nelle A. Hammond.

Alderman — *Charles Bellinger, George O. Haggard.

STATE POLICE INVESTIGATE FIFTH COLUMNISTS

Potential Saboteurs and Spies Are Spotted and Catalogued

Michigan's potential fifth columnists — 9,374 of them — have been spotted and catalogued by the Michigan State Police.

Commissioner Oscar G. Olander said Friday his list was growing every day. The 9,374 represent the round-up in the first five months by his new division to combat subversive activity.

The files the state trooper organization are building as part of its national defense protective system include not only names and addresses of potential saboteurs but the ways in which each suspect might assist the enemy if war comes—reveal the state's preparedness efforts.

The aim is to be a jump ahead of developments and round up foreign agents at the right time, according to Commissioner Olander. He warned that a wave of vigilantism might frighten suspects into moving where state police could not apprehend them instantaneously.

SEN. BISHOP AUTHOR OF TOURIST AID BILL

Measure Grants Funds to Publicize State; Has Senate O. K.

Out of the $200,000 to be spent each year the sum of $25,000 will be allotted to each of the following associations: Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, East Michigan Tourist Association, and Southeastern Michigan Tourist Association.

The balance of $100,000 a year will be devoted to "advertising the advantages of the state of Michigan as a whole, under the direction of the governor, auditor general, state highway commissioner, and the managers of the four above-named associations. According to latest authentic figures the tourist and resort business of Michigan represents approximately $400,000,000 a year, the second largest industry in the state.

HOSPITAL MEMORIAL NEARING GOAL

SLIGHTLY OVER TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS NEEDED

Hospital Directors Make Appeal for Contributions; Memorial to Dr. R. B. Armstrong Planned

With the $1,500 goal sought by Charlevoix Hospital trustees for a Dr. R. B. Armstrong memorial in sight, an appeal is again issued for additional contributions.

P. D. Campbell, treasurer of the institution's directing board, has announced that $1,296.00 has been raised to date, leaving a balance of only $204 required to complete the amount necessary to obtain $3,000 pledged by Charlevoix summer resident groups.

Plans for the memorial fund expenditure have been somewhat changed, Mr. Campbell stated. Purchase of a modern x-ray machine with the contributed money will be the initial step, but plans for construction of an addition to house the unit have given way to a proposal to install it in a present west first floor room from which an entrance will be provided allowing transfer of patients from an ambulance directly into the x-ray room. With funds remaining after purchase of the x-ray unit, it is proposed to build a 4-room addition on the east wing of the hospital. The entire improvement program will be dedicated to the late Dr. Armstrong.

MASONS DEFEAT ODD FELLOWS FOR CRIBBAGE LEAD

Wiped Out 477-Point Advantage In Sixth Contest Monday Night

Monday night's Masonic victory over the Odd Fellows in the annual winter cribbage series threw the battle into a ding-dong affair with either side the possible winner.

It took the Masons one night to wipe out an advantage of 477 points gained by the Odd Fellows in winning four successive sessions. They scored 15,506 points to the Odd Fellow's 15,023 to erase the latter's lead and gain an advantage of 6 points for the series to date.

Nine tables were in play. Fred Larson turned in the evening's high card of 965 for the Odd Fellows, while Ed. Stites was best for the Masons with 955.

The seventh contest of the 10-game series is scheduled Monday evening, February 17, at the I. O. O. F. hall.

SHORTER BEAVER TRAPPING SEASON PLANNED

Close Part of Upper Peninsula; 7-Day Season Below Straits

The State Department of Conservation has prepared revisions of the state beaver and otter trapping regulations for presentation to the conservation commission at its meeting February 14.

Recommendations included shortening the lower peninsula beaver season to seven days, and closing beaver trapping in the upper peninsula, north of highway M-28 and west of highway M-27, with the exception of streams where beavers were damaging property of fishing, or on slow streams.

At present, the lower peninsula beaver season extends from March 1 to April 10. The proposal would close trapping April 3.

Conservation Director P. J. Hoffmaster said the department advocated the shorter season because beaver were becoming scarce as a result of higher fur prices. Last year, he said, more than 7,000 beaver were trapped and pelts sold for approximately $15 apiece. He said 2,433 licenses were issued last year, and he expected more would be granted this year as a result of increasingly higher pelt prices.

VOLUNTEERS FILL FEBRUARY QUOTA

DRAFT BOARD AWAITING DATE FOR INDUCTION

Charles Levinson, First Local Man to Be Called, Among List of Fourteen Volunteers

A call from state officials is awaited by the Charlevoix county draft board before certifying 14 volunteers for this county's February quota for selective service.

While the number requested has been on hand for some time and all necessary requirements met, the date for the men to report has not yet been received, although it is expected daily.

Those making up the February quota, all volunteers, are: Roy Gregory and Cecil Hitchcock, of East Jordan; Ferdinand Luchin, Ray Eggers, John and Cecil Rupert, brothers, and Robert Pratt, of Boyne City; Vergil Howard and Albert Yarema, of Boyne Falls; Charles Levinson and William Dvorneck, of Charlevoix; Forest Argetsinger, of Toledo, Ohio; Charles Austin and Henry Austin, of Petoskey.

All above named have passed physical examination except Charles and Henry Austin, whose examination is being conducted at Petoskey and results of which had not yet been ascertained. Failure of either to pass will make necessary selection from the draft list to fill the vacancy, inasmuch as the February quota has exhausted the volunteer list.

RAYOERS VICTORS AT EAST JORDAN

COPPED 36 TO 31 DECISION THERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Rayder Reserves Winner by 38 to 12 Margin—Grayling Here This Week; Boyne, Harbor Next

Charlevoix made it two wins for the season over East Jordan with a 36 to 31 victory on Jordan's court last Friday night. Their margin at home was 38 to 25 in a contest played two weeks previous.

Out-scored badly in the first and third periods, East Jordan made a battle of it, nevertheless. The Rayders appeared headed for a lop-sided victory when they piled up a 14 to 8 lead in the first period. With Woodcock leading the way, Jordan annexed 10 points to Charlevoix's 7 to trail by three points at the half. The count stood Charlevoix 21, East Jordan 18. Another Rayder scoring spree settled the decision in the third stanza, however. The rally netted them 12 points to Jordan's 5 and, with a substituted line-up, they coasted through the fourth quarter to victory although out-pointed 7 to 3.

The Rayder scoring was well divided. Stewart led with 10, Carey scored 8, Kohler 7, Gengle 6 and Swanson 5. Woodcock gave the evening's best performance, scoring 15, for East Jordan.

Charlevoix's reserves walloped East Jordan's second-stringers in no uncertain manner in a contest which saw most of the scoring accomplished in the second half. Leading 7 to 6 at the half, Charlevoix plastered the hoop for 31 points in the next two periods. W. Rowe and Gallagher were the Rayder top scorers with 8 points apiece.

The Rayders concluded all games scheduled away from home with Friday night's contest at East Jordan. They are now scheduled for three consecutive home appearances, meeting Grayling, Boyne City and Harbor Springs in successive weeks. The latter two rate ahead of the Rayders in conference standing and victories over both are hoped for.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Life is not so short but there is time enough for courtesy.

Last year local ice dealers had completed their ice harvest by this date. This year they haven't started yet.

They say it costs Great Britain $42,000,000 per day to prosecute the war. Figured roughly, that's $15,000,000,000 a year. "Peanut Stuff," says I, when you stop to think Roosevelt has engineered $17,000,000,000 for defense of the United States in less than six months! Makes you shudder to think what the bill us taxpayers would have to foot if we really were at war.

After checking all the local fish markets, I become convinced E. A. Loop, that Grand Rapids pal of Glenn Seo's, must have caught that 11½-pound mackinaw trout off Hayden Point in Lake Charlevoix like he said he did. It isn't always safe to take

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Stalwart partisans who take their politics seriously and who, likewise, believe devoutly in party responsibility, find Michigan's 1941 state government to be downright disturbing.

The "good old days," verily, are slipping fast into memories.

Whether for good or bad, better or worse, we are headed in a new direction, come what may. As every action brings a reaction, as the pendulum swings invariably from one side to another, so Michigan is undergoing a significant change.

And it is all the result of a steady trend in public opinion—how we look at things.

CHERRY DESSERTS FOR FEBRUARY

For Inviting Appearance, Sparkling Flavor and Downright Deliciousness This Cherry Charlotte Has Few Equals

When it comes to desserts, have you ever realized what a gold mine of menu assistance there is in that can of red pitted cherries that rests on your pantry shelf? While many homemakers limit their use of this popular fruit to the nation's favorite dessert—Cherry Pie—there are truly scores of recipes wherein cherries may play a stellar role.

Refrigerator desserts, salads, cakes, fritters, dumplings, cobblers, muffins, gelatin desserts and puddings are but a few of the many delightful recipes whose color, appearance and taste are greatly enhanced by the addition of cherries, whose tart sweetness provides a pleasing contrast to other foods.

Since the fresh cherry season is such a short one, homemakers can be thankful that commercial canners today are able to prepare and can cherries to such perfection that they equal the fresh fruit in taste, flavor and appearance.

Since this is the month that we observe George Washington's birthday, and, of course, recall the cherry tree episode, it is a logical time to take stock of your filo of cherry favorites. February is also an ideal time to entertain the bridge club or start paying social debts, so you'll have many occasions to call upon the following cherry desserts.

Cherry Charlotte

2 tbs. plain gelatin
½ c. cold water
1 No. 2 can sour pitted cherries and juice
¾ c. sugar
2 egg yolks
1 tb. lemon juice
½ c. sugar
2 egg whites
6-10 lady fingers, vanilla wafers or sponge cake strips
1 c. whipping cream

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Combine in a double boiler the ¾ cup of sugar, cherry juice, slightly beaten egg yolks, and lemon juice. Cook until slightly thickened. Then add gelatin and cherries. Remove from heat and chill until thick, but not stiff. Fold in egg whites beaten with ½ cup sugar; also the whipped cream. Line a mold or pan with the lady fingers and fill with the gelatin mixture. Chill thoroughly and serve garnished with some of the cherries reserved for this purpose. Serves 6-8.

You'll marvel at the way canned cherries contribute their alluring color and incomparable flavor to this

Frozen Cherry Torte

1 No. 2 can sour pitted cherries
3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
3 egg whites, beaten stiff with
2 tbs. butter
2 tbs. lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
¾ cup rolled graham cracker or vanilla wafer crumbs

Strain juice from cherries. Combine juice, ½ cup sugar, slightly beaten egg yolks in top of double boiler. Cook until slightly thickened. Remove from fire and add cherries and lemon juice. Cool until thick, but not firm, then fold in beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Turn into greased refrigerator tray that has been well coated with crumbs. Reserve enough crumbs to cover mixture with thin layer. Freeze until firm. Serves 6-8.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

By Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District Michigan

On The Toboggan

This bill, H.R. 1776, which, as I write early on the evening of February 8th, has just passed the House by a vote of 260 to 165, will go down in history as one of the most momentous steps taken by any Congress of the United States. That this is so may be noted by the fact that only four living members of the House, all of whom are seriously ill, were not present to cast their vote. I voted against final passage of this bill, but I did vote for a motion to recommit which would have made available to Great Britain a loan of two billion dollars to be used for the purchase of war materials in this country and to be used as she saw fit. This loan was to be guaranteed by such collateral as may still be available, and failing same would have been an outright gift.

This was as far as I conscientiously felt we should go at this time in granting aid to England, having in mind the fact that it is much more than she has already spent so far in this country in her conduct of the war to date and which, if necessary, might have been increased later by the Congress. Meanwhile, England—not our President—would have assumed full responsibility for the conduct of her war. If indeed it is vital to the defense of this country that we gain time to perfect our own defenses, then this should have gone a long way toward giving us that valuable time. At the same time it seemed to me that we would have been more than looking good on whatever commitments our administration may have made to the people or government of Great Britain. However, this motion to recommit was defeated 263 to 160.

A number of interesting features cropped up in the debate and in the amendments offered on the floor to this bill, which, it seems to me, disclosed in a large measure the true aims of this legislation.

The charge was repeatedly denied by administration spokesmen that this bill would lead to dictatorship or would lead us to war. As a matter of fact, the majority permitted the adoption of an amendment offered by Representative Dirksen, Republican, Illinois, which theoretically would have permitted the Congress to take back the extraordinary powers granted to the President by means of a concurrent resolution passed by majority vote of the House and Senate. The joker of this, however, is the fact that this administration would never permit such a resolution to reach the floor of either house; and this was in fact frankly admitted by Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack to Washington newspapermen. Administration spokesmen pointed out that those of us in the opposition previously had made the groundless charges that lifting the embargo and the Conscription Bill were both measures leading to war, yet we are still at peace. I submit in rebuttal that both of these measures were, and are, definitely leading toward war and the mere fact that we are not now actively engaged with our manpower is due to the fact that we still have insufficient manpower trained in modern equipment, have nothing with which to train them, much less equip them; and lastly, there is no place as yet where our armed forces could be used effectively.

That we are approaching that point, no one dare deny and it is noteworthy that the majority overwhelmingly voted down an amendment offered by Representative Jeanette Rankin, which would have specifically prohibited sending any of our armed forces overseas. It will be recalled that Miss Rankin was the first lady elected to the House and voted against our entrance into the last World War. Administration leaders in charge of this bill did not permit her amendment to be debated more than 15 minutes, an amendment which might vitally affect the lives of millions of young Americans.

Likewise the administration leaders overwhelmingly voted down an amendment which sought to prohibit the further shipment of arms or the granting of loans to Soviet Russia, which country, and the agents thereof, have unmistakably been trying to invade and ruin our country from within for many years. We were told that this is a bill to aid those arrayed against the aggressors and yet Russia was defended by the administration spokesmen as not being an aggressor nation. What about Finland, Poland, Esthonia, Latvia, Bessarabia?

An amendment to prohibit the use of American merchant ships for the transportation of war materials, and an amendment which sought to prohibit the use of any part of the American navy for convoy purposes were both overwhelmingly voted down by the majority.

The majority refused to even consider an amendment by Representative Costello, Democrat of California, which would have prohibited the export of more than 50 per cent of the fighting planes coming off the production line until our own defense needs had been taken care of. This despite the testimony of army staff officers, before the military affairs committee, that we have not today in the entire United States air force—Army and Navy—one single modern fighting aircraft equipped with self-sealing gas tanks, armor protection for the crew and sufficient fire power.

We are told that this bill "will keep the war away from our shores," yet the bill provides that our navy yards may repair, or indeed serve as a base of operations for belligerent fighting craft. Is that keeping the war away from our shores? Yet an amendment to remove this feature from the bill was shouted down.

An amendment to put a "ceiling" on the cost of the bill was overwhelmingly defeated. True, a "joker" was inserted limiting the "value" of present equipment that might be transferred but the President alone sets the "value" of such defense equipment transferred—no yardstick was permitted to be provided.

These are but a few of the amendments offered in a constructive attempt to produce a bill which would, in my opinion, improve the "defense of the United States" which were voted down overwhelmingly by the majority presumably under administration orders, and about which you may read but a little in the press.

It is well known that before any nation or any individual can be led into a fight it must have undergone a careful process of building up its mental attitude for such a fight. This is where propaganda gets in its deadly work, and, in my opinion, stripped of all sham and looking at it calmly in a spirit of pure non-partisanship, without bias or prejudice, I say to you humbly that this bill, as it passed the House, is the "coup de grace." It will make possible henceforth more action aimed at inciting war hysteria and in mentally preparing the American people for our ultimate active participation "all-out" in this war, a war about the start of which the American people had absolutely nothing to say and about the conclusion of which I doubt we may have that much to say.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

J. G. Hayes to Discuss Calf Feeding Thursday Night, February 13

J. G. Hayes, extension dairyman, will again meet with Charlevoix county dairymen on Thursday night, February 13, at the city building, Charlevoix, at 8:00 o'clock. As many dairy calves are hurt by overfeeding as by under-feeding is the opinion of Mr. Hayes. He will suggest several rules to follow in determining the proper amount of milk to give the young animal.

You will be interested in hearing about some of the new wrinkles such as metal-mesh, elevated floors for calf pens and the use of nipple pails for "problem calves." Much of his time will be devoted to outlining practices of feeding, quartering, care and management that make for acquiring steady growth in calves.

A splendid attendance of 59 dairymen attended the second meeting held on January 30. It is hoped that more dairymen will avail themselves of this opportunity of getting the latest information on dairy topics. If you have attended, invite your neighbors to come with you and be sure and participate in these worth while meetings.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Proper Manner of Displaying Flag

There are certain fundamental rules of heraldry which, if understood generally, would indicate the proper method of displaying the flag of the United States of America. The matter becomes a very simple one, if it is kept in mind that the flag represents the living country and is in itself considered a living thing. The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm and therefore the point of danger, and hence the place of honor.

The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be hoisted briskly but should be lowered slowly and ceremoniously. The flag should be displayed on all national and state holidays and on historic and special occasions. However, bring the emblem of our country, it ought to fly from every flagpole, every day throughout the year, weather permitting.

Restorative

Sometimes in moments of my deepest doubt
When cold harsh reason snarls that faith is vain;
That God is but a phantom of man's brain
Set up to guard the weak against the stout,
I walk my little patch of ground about
Where blossoms born of earth and sun and rain
Entice me to His presence once again,
And gaze on things that never shut Him out.
The cardinal at evening sings His praise!
The tenderest blossom speaks of Him with joy.
Have I grown proud of skill which men employ?
The pale, pink rose a miracle displays
And marigold and phlox and columbine
Witness His glory and His power divine.

They merely voted for their favorites.

Privileges of n democracy made it possible for them to choose simultaneously three Republicans (secretary of state, attorney general, and auditor general), and two Democrats (governor and state treasurer), while maintaining a Republican majority in each branch of the state legislature. And that's scrambling 'em a bit!

And yet the old-fashioned idea of putting one cross in one circle at the top of the ballot has been fading in Michigan for the past decade or so. A decisive bloc of independent voters crossed party lines exactly five times between 1930 and 1940 to elect a new governor at each election. Every two years, as a result of this flexible public opinion, old "rascals" would be turned out at Lansing and new "rascals" would be put in.

F. D. R.'s New Deal

At Washington in 1933 a truly political phenomenon occurred.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt began his famous "New Deal" with the aid of Republican Harold Ickes as secretary of the interior and Republican Henry Wallace as secretary of agriculture.

In New York City a dynamic coalition candidate by the name of Fiorella H. La Guardia upset an entrenched Tammany.

Arthur Vandenberg, a man who has never been a politician in the true sense of the word and who has not been actively identified with party organization, became one of our outstanding independent leaders in the United States senate. The primary system, originally conceived as n remedy for boss-plagued conventions, paved the way.

In 1939 the voters of Michigan upheld in referendum a non-partisan judiciary, a reaction against a so-called political judiciary.

In 1940 the same voters stripped the legislature of its patronage powers and instituted a drastic and somewhat revolutionary program of civil service, jobs by merit.

Gymnastics

Concurrently, the independent voters in 1940 performed other mental gymnastics just as remarkable.

They cast a majority for Wendell L. Willkie, who was a lifelong Democrat until recently. They cast a majority also for Murray D. Van Wagoner.

Never in its history had the Republican party broke precedent nationally by crossing party line in its selection of a presidential candidate. The man, not the emblem, proved to be the irresistihle magnet.

But this change in political thinking has not been the exclusive virtue (or sin, depending on how you look at it) of any one party. Witness these acts: The late Governor Frank Fitzgerald appointed a study commission for civil service, and his successor, Frank Murphy, signed the legislative act. Governor Murphy then appointed a study commission to recommend reforms in parole and prison management, and when a Democratic legislature provided for a bipartisan commission, Republicans did not move to revise it.

Bi-Partisan Trend

Today's current dispute over bipartisan appointment of the state commissioner of agriculture is just another case at point.

An administration measure would take the commissioner out of politics through appointment by a long-term bi-partisan commission. Counter to this Van Wagoner farm reform is a McPherson-sponsored bill for the commissioner's appointment by the state board of agriculture, Michigan State College's elective governing body.

Also being kicked around at Lansing is the idea of letting bi-partisan boards appoint the state highway commissioner and the state superintendent of public instruction.

A 1941 legislative bill would have regents of the University of Michigan elected by non-partisan ballots.

And so the signs multiply.

Michigan's bi-partisan administration appears to be, in part, the culmination of a trend of popular thinking that has disregarded party labels in an insistent quest for more efficient and responsive government. What will be the voters' reaction to this? That answer is yet to be written.

THE AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Walter H. Henley, county chairman, announces that all final allotments and yields are now definitely established and approved for the 1941 AAA program in Charlevoix county.

A total of 16,368 acres of soil-depleting allotment was distributed among farms within the county. Each farm received a shure of this county allotment on the average of previous acreages planted to depleting crops, plus the acreage that the farm should produce if operated in accordance with good soil-conserving practices. Two special county allotments, consisting of 1266 acres of potatoes aad 914 acres of wheat was also divided among farms in a like manner. These allotments, which are a part of the national and state allotment, represents an acreage estimated as needed to produce enough crops for home consumption, exports, and a sufficient reserve.

Farm compulation sheets and farm plans are now being prepared in the county office at Boyne City. When farmers receive notifications of their 1941 allotments and yields, they will also be informed as to their maximum farm payment and soil-building goal for the year.

An educational instruction meeting will soon be called for community and county committeemen. They will receive the necessary training to enable them to contact all farmers within the county and assist them in planning their farming operations on the basis of a sound soil-conserving system of farming.

Participation in the AAA program is voluntary, which proves that each year's increased compliance is developing a farm organization which will be the first line of defense against farm insecurity.

HOW BIG IS BIG?

Your saddleg youngster looks up at his dad and thinks him big . . . . . bigger than he ever will grow to be. His dad, too, looks at other men and feels small in comparison . . . . . but he doesn't measure them in size alone! Size is not always measured by a yardstick . . . . . it is more correctly measured in terms of NECESSARY bigness. How big do we have to be to give our customers the biggest possible values in foods?

Abraham Lincoln, upon being asked the proper length of a man's legs said, "Long enough to reach the ground." That's true of Grocery Stores, too . . . . they should be big enough to give the buying public the biggest dollar's worth possible . . . . . No Smaller . . . . . No Larger! Associated Grocer members are by virtue of the Association, BIG GROCERS, big enough to sell Grand Rapids' finest and smartest food buyers . . . . . also big enough to serve the buyers at "Sutton's Corner" just as economically.

KNOW ● YOUR BANK

"N. S. F."

AN N. S. F. check is one drawn on an account in which there are "Not Sufficient Funds" to cover payment—in other words, it is an overdraft.

An overdraft is actually a forced loan because if an N. S. F. check is honored the bank must pay out more money than it has received from the depositor and therefore the money must come out of the funds of other depositors.

If a check is returned unpaid because of insufficient funds it is naturally injurious to the credit of the maker of the check.

Depositors should keep an accurate record of checks drawn on their check stubs, and should avoid issuing N. S. F. checks.

AT THE MOVIES

"Arizona" Spectacular Romance of South

The stupendous scale on which Wesley Ruggles filmed "Arizona," Columbia's saga of the Old Southwest's most exciting era, is best sensed by glancing at a few statistics, for figures often speak more eloquently than words.

Based on the popular novel by Clarence Budington Kelland, "Arizona" comes to the Palace Theatre with Jean Arthur starred as Phoebe Titus, while William Holden portrays Peter Muncie and Warren William is a border gambler, Carteret.

Here are some of the figures on the undertaking:

"Arizona" has 146 speaking parts, some played by well known Hollywood stars, the remainder by popular supporting artists.

It utilized 2500 atmosphere players and an equal number of Indian warriors, all selected in Arizona.

Thousands of range cattle, including Brahma steers, buffalo, cows, Mexican oxen, horses, Indian ponies, burros, sheep, goats, stray dogs, chickens, hogs and even a gila monster, were required for background atmosphere.

"Christmas in July" Looms as Another Sturges Hit

"Christmas in July," which opens February 20 at the Palace Theatre co-starring Dick Powell and Ellen Drew, is the second picture to be written and directed by Preston Sturges. His first picture was "The Great McGinty," a political comedy that was hailed with enthusiasm throughout the country as a masterpiece.

His current picture is another equally hilarious farce developed from a simple story of a boy and girl in love trying to get enough money ahead to get married.

Sturges selected the supporting cast for Dick Powell and Ellen Drew with an expert eye for comedy. It includes Raymond Walburn, Ernest Truex, William Demarest, Alexander Carr and Franklin Panghorn.

"South of Suez," Full of Action and Thrills

Exciting drama, mystery and adventure are in store for Palace Theatre patrons when they see the new Warner Bros.' film, "South of Suez" which makes its local bow February 20th. The action takes place in the adventure-laden atmosphere of a South African diamond mine.

George Brent plays the role of a soldier-of-fortune mine foreman. Lee Patrick, in the role of Tobias' embittered wife, gives the story a novel twist that will surprise the most sophisticated movie-goer.

Screen favorites James Stephenson and Eric Blore lend their talent to the supporting roles.

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of City Treasurer at the primary of Monday, February 17th, and will appreciate your support. Fred V. Tyler.—Adv. 3-6-7

Floyd B. Himes, Gratiot county farmer, who is a representative of the Michigan Agricultural Conservation Committee was in the AAA county office last Friday afternoon for the purpose of assisting in the soliciting of bids for liming materials. Sources of supply of lime, marl and commercial fertilizer are to be established so that farmers cooperating in the Farm Program can obtain these conservation materials, at reasonable rates, for use on their farms in carrying out approved soil-building practices.

In 1941, farmers may receive lime, marl and commercial fertilizer in an amount not to exceed 70% of their conservation payment. Call at our county AAA office in Boyne City and receive further information about this new plan to aid in soil improvement.

The state's "homestead law" was repealed in 1935 because the bulk of the land coming into state ownership is non-agricultural in character.

a fellow's own word — especially a fisherman's.

One Husband: "My wife doesn't seem to understand me. Does yours?"

Other Husband: "I don't think so. I've never heard her mention your name."

As you perhaps can gather from the brain wonderings in this column, my favorite hobby is fishing. I always figured nothing could stop that fishin' urge I have until last Sunday when I ventured out on Round lake to try for some toothsome perch. I had misgivings from the start when the ice cracked and creaked warningly as I started timidly from shore, but seeing other fellows already on the lake, I figured if they could get there, so could I. When I got within hailing distance, I called out: "How thick's the ice?" Someone answered: "About an inch," and I says back: "That ain't thick enough for me" and would have gone to shore then had not J. C. Marshall and Glenn Ingalls started kidding about lack of nerve, etc. So I stayed away from the others and kicked me a hole through the ice with the heel of my boot and let my line down. Just got nicely settled when out comes two fellows from shore heading my way. When they got within a few feet of me, one says: "How's the fishin', Bud?" and just as I was about to say "Rotten," the ice cracked towards my fishing hole from seventeen different directions and the whole surface started to settle. The one guy says, "Ice ain't very thick, is it?" I says, "Not for all three of us," and right then picked up my outfit and took it for shore. Sure, I like to fish, alright, but there's got to be more than an inch of ice between me and the water when I do again.

Did you happen to notice how plain you could see the Beaver, Fox and Manitou islands last Sunday? It was a beautiful sight. And the ice fields that lay to the north as far as the eye could see and filled the bay off Charlevoix chuck full was gone again Tuesday.

The blizzard of Friday night and Saturday was sure a dinger while it lasted. Roads drifted something awful, but the road commission must have done a pretty good job of plowing, for most of the familiar faces from the country could be seen in town Monday. Dixon avenue from Meech street to The Inn hotel drifted level from bank to bank. You could have tunneled the full length of it almost high enough for standing room.

And speaking about weather and such, makes me think how lucky some folks are. For instance, there's Mrs. Steiner, genial Belvedere Hotel manager, who right now is enjoying a West Indies cruise, according to her sister, Miss Rae Gravuer, who has a secretarial position at Lauderdale Beach Hotel, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. That they all like to get back to Charlevoix in the summer time, however, is indicated by an excerpt from Miss Gravuer's letter reading thus: "Won't be very long before the day will arrive to pack up and start for dear old Charlevoix—just like going 'home' to me after all these years."

The days are getting longer. On bright ones it's daylight after six o'clock in the afternoon, and they tell me it gets light before 7 in the morning now, too. This is probably information to quite a lot of others besides myself.

Thought Art Ranger had the "first robin" story for sure until today I got a postal card from Robert Ford, living out on Route 1, saying he saw one three weeks ago.

MR. AND MRS. W. S. KIBBE OBSERVED GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY FEBRUARY 9

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Kibbe, prominent local residents, quietly observed their Golden Wedding Anniversary at their Palmer avenue home Sunday, February 9th. They were married in 1891 at Chicago.

Mr. Kibbe is 83 years of age, his wife 75. Mr. Kibbe's retirement from the U. S. coast guard service about 20 years ago closed a colorful career on the Great Lakes. He sailed before the mast when a young man, later owning two sailboats operated in the lumber trade between South Haven and Chicago.

Mr. Kibbe joined the coast guard in 1892. He served in stations at South Haven and Muskegon before being transferred to Charlevoix, where he remained 28 years until his retirement. He was credited with 30 rescues during his coast guard service, the most of them occurring before motorized equipment replaced surf boats navigated by oar and sail. Although over the age limit for navy service, he served in this military branch during the World War when the coast guard service was transferred into the navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Kibbe have three sons, Ernest of Charlevoix, Warren of Cadillac, and Theodore of Ceston, Mont. A daughter, Madge, is deceased. A family reunion is planned in observance of the anniversary occasion next summer.

Guests at the anniversary dinner Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kibbe, and daughter, Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kibbe and son, of Cadillac, Mrs. M. B. Hooker and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hooker and family.

SLACK-CLINE WEDDING PRETTY EVENT OF FEBRUARY 7TH AT CHICAGO

Of interest to Charlevoixans is the wedding of Miss Mary Catherine Slack and George O. Cline, at 8:00 o'clock Friday evening, February 7, at the Grandville Avenue Methodist church in Chicago.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Mackenzie Slack. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cline of Chicago, and grandson of the late Capt. O. F. Wilbur.

Mrs. Clinton Cooper and daughter Rosemary, and Miss Minnie E. Payton were among guests at the wedding.

Nation-Wide Marchandising Event Carried On In All Stores

Business principles laid down 81 years ago—and adhered to closely ever since—assume new importance as a defense measure this week, Mr. Ritter, sales manager in this area for the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, declared today.

Those principles, established by George Huntington Hartford when he opened the first red-fronted A. & P. store in 1859, today serve as an effective brake against spiraling food prices such as took place during the last World War, Mr. Ritter said, and make the company's celebration of Founder's Week in Mr. Hartford's honor of particular importance this year.

The new state police division was organized last August and the personnel now includes 24 district detectives, a detective lieutenant and a sergeant plus one to two men at each post who are also assigned to investigation of subversive activities. This force has been engaged exclusively in defense work that embraced investigation of espionage and sabotage, plant intelligence work, surveys of law enforcement agencies, protection of vital points in the state essential to national defense, and cooperative work in these fields with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Naval and Army Intelligence, United States Bureau of Immigration, Federal communications commission and local draft boards.

Several hundred of Michigan's suspected saboteurs and subverters are known because of patriotic concern of citizens who keep an eye on their neighbors in perilous times. One man in each of the 41 state police posts is assigned to receive complaints relative to suspected subversive activities —and hundreds of these complaints, upon investigation, proved valuable in the round-up.

The report cites completion of arrangements whereby Michigan and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police exchange information on subversive activity and cooperate in anti-espionage work along 650 miles of border and within the respective boundaries of each.

An extensive file of information has been compiled, Commissioner Olander said. Information is available both in alphabetical order and also by counties. Thus subversive activity in any area can be checked against an-American individuals and groups in that section.

One interesting survey is a compilation of information on resources of law-enforcement agencies, police personnel and physical resources in every part of Michigan, checked against emergency possibilities in the immediate area. The survey lists the vital points to be protected in case of emergency—the important utilities, water supplies, bridges, tunnels, etc. Ambulance, hospital and medical facilities are known.

One hundred fifteen amateur radio operators throughout the state with licensed radio stations have been investigated and enlisted for emergency communication service in event of need.

In connection with the 9,374 known disloyalists catalogued in Michigan, Commissioner Olander said there were 186 locations in the state where his men had investigated and had under surveillance the meeting places of subversive groups.

In the five-month period covered by the report, Commissioner Olander declared that there had been 85 investigations of suspected sabotage conducted for and at the request of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In connection with the United States Navy, investigations have been conducted by the state police special squad in the form of an industrial intelligence survey of plants engaged in manufacture of defense materials. This survey includes a check of personnel of aliens, of persons employed who may be disloyal citizens, information on systems of plant protection and similar data. One thousand ninety-five industrial plants have been covered thus far in this survey.

Commissioner Olander declared that all complaints reaching his men from citizens suspecting disloyal activity are investigated fully and confidentially. "We feel that when a citizen or organization has enough patriotic spirit and civic pride to offer us such information, it is our duty to investigate," he said. "We feel that as long as we can assure the state of Michigan that all of these complaints are being carefully investigated, this in itself is a contributing factor in preventing hysteria and minimizing disloyal activity."

RAYDERS WINNER OVER GRAYLING 5

SCORED 18 TO 15 VICTORY HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Take On Boyne City Ramblers, Class C Conference Leaders, In Home Contest This Week

Opening a home stand of three successive games which conclude their pre-tournament schedule, Charlevoix high school's Red Rayders defeated Grayling high by an 18 to 15 count Friday night.

With the regular line-up on the floor, the Rayders romped off to a 7 to 3 lead in the initial period. Frequent substitutions, providing action for all of Coach Kipke's twelve first-stringers, held the score down to a narrow margin during the remainder of the contest. Charlevoix led 9 to 8 at the half and 15 to 10 at the third intermission. They were outscored in the second and fourth stanzas, but maintained a safe margin throughout.

Mitchell and Swanson divided scoring honors for Charlevoix with 6 points each. Meggison tallied 3, C. Rowe 2, Carey 1. Thompson was best for the visitors with 5.

Grayling was held to three field goals, scoring 9 of their points from the foul line. The Rayders rushed in on but 3 out of 15 chances on gift shots. A total of 32 infractions of rules were called during the contest.

The Rayders tangle with the conference-leading Boyne City Ramblers here Friday night. Scoring its second victory of the season over Harbor Springs last week, Boyne now holds undisputed lead in the class C league. A week hence, the Rayders meet the second-place Harbor Rams. Both teams have victories to their credit over the Rayders.

COURIER INTRODUCES A NEW NEWS FEATURE

Old-Time Column, Gleaned from Previous Editions, Inaugurated

A column entitled "Do You Remember," featuring news items gleaned from The Courier columns of previous years, is inaugurated this week for the first time since this publication has been under its present management.

Edited by Miss Anna Higman, the column this week covers items from publications 15 and 25 years ago, respectively. It will be located each week on page 2 and subsequently will cover issues of the same week five, ten, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five years ago. In a short time it is expected items of thirty years ago will be added.

While such a column requires a great amount of time and effort, the management feels assured the reader interest in such a feature will more than compensate for the effort put forth.

BOB WEXSTAFF PLANE IN FORCED LANDING

Set Ship Down In Deep Snow at Cadillac Without Damage

Robert Wexstaff, student pilot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff, escaped injury to himself and damage to his plane in a difficult forced landing during a blizzard Sunday on a deeply snow-covered Cadillac airport.

Encountering blinding snowfall while on a Traverse City-Frankfort-Cadillac cross-country flight, Bob decided to risk landing on the snow-covered Cadillac field rather than return to Traverse City. Circling the airport to notify observers of "distress," the youth set the Piper Cub down perfectly to the amazement of the Cadillac city manager, police department and on-lookers who had gathered expecting a crash similar to that befalling two other pilots attempting similar landings during the winter.

Bob's father, and his instructor, Rudy Pekrul, notified by telephone of the forced landing, came after him. In the meantime, a snowplow cleared the airport, permitting Pekrul to fly the plane back to Traverse City.

Young Wexstaff, a senior at Charlevoix high school, showed remarkable cool-headedness in the predicament.

WILLIAM SRIGLEY PRESENTED JEWEL

HONORED AS VETERAN MEMBER ODD FELLOW LODGE

Presentation Surprise Feature Meeting Wednesday of County I.O.O.F. Social Club

Odd Fellows from Boyne City, East Jordan, Hayes township, Petoskey, Mancelona and several southern Michigan lodges were guests of Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., at a meeting of the Charlevoix County Social Club of Odd Fellows held last Wednesday evening.

More than eighty guests were served at the banquet, at which Dale Bradley was toastmaster. Dr. F. F. McMillan, in an interesting and sympathetic manner, told of the life of Abraham Lincoln, and of his ancestors, giving many unusual and little-known incidents in his rise from log cabin to presidency. Grand Secretary Fred A. Rogers of Lansing gave a short talk, as did Past Grand Chaplain Rev. Earl T. Knechone of Petoskey, both telling of personal pilgrimages to Lincoln's tomb. Community singing concluded the banquet program.

During the lodge meeting which followed the banquet, W. W. Srigley was presented a veteran jewel by Grand Secretary Rogers. A charter member of Oscoda Lodge, which was organized in 1889, Mr. Srigley has been a member of the local lodge for forty years. Presentation of the jewel came as a surprise to him.

A school of instruction was given by the Grand Secretary, discussion of which took up the balance of the evening.

Committees were: entertainment, Jesse L. Gates, Dale Bradley, Lester B. Hall; banquet, Joe Williams, Grant Crandall, Sims Baker.

SECOND RED CROSS FIRST AID COURSE IS ANNOUNCED

Similar to the course now being conducted by trained Red Cross worker Glen Smith of Boyne City, this course will be directed by Drs. McMillan, Saltonstall, Chapman, and Gilfords.

NELLE HAMMOND GETS PRIMARY NOMINATION

DEFEATED FRED V. TYLER, INCUMBENT CITY TREASURER, BY MARGIN OF 192 VOTES MONDAY

Charles Bellinger Nominated Over George O. Haggard by Plurality of 19 Votes for Alderman of First Ward—Other Candidates Unopposed

In a primary election marked by an extremely light vote, Mrs. Nelle Hammond defeated Fred V. Tyler for nomination as city treasurer Monday.

Mrs. Hammond was given a substantial majority in all three city wards, piling up 409 votes to 217 for Tyler, who has held the office several terms.

In the only other primary contest, Charles Bellinger, present first ward alderman, defeated George O. Haggard by a margin of 19 votes. Bellinger received 102 to Haggard's 83.

Voter interest in the two contests apparently was offset by storm conditions, resulting in a total vote of 638 out of a registration of 1853, which compared to last year's total of 819 ballots cast and a record primary vote of 1258 three years ago.

Mayor Robert Bridge, unopposed for nomination to a fourth term, received 505 votes, and Ray S. Hamilton, unopposed for city clerk, received 496 votes.

Others nominated without opposition were: First ward—Supervisor, Angus L. Fochtman. Second ward—supervisor, Arthur Bergeon; alderman, H. I. Ochs. Third ward—supervisor, Clarence B. Meggison; alderman, Harry F. Hooker. All are present office holders with exception of Ochs, who replaces Charles Lumphear, who was not a candidate for re-nomination as second ward alderman.

Following is the vote by wards:

Bridge	155
Hamilton	148
Tyler	42
Hammond	140— 98

SEEK REGISTRATION OF ALL IDLE WAR VETERANS

Employment Service Plans Placing Them In Defense Industries

Cooperating with the American Legion in its projected drive to classify all Legionnaires for national defense duties, the Michigan State Employment Service today called upon all unemployed veterans to register with the employment service.

February 22 has been set by National Legion Commander, Milo J. Warner, as the "jump-off" day for securing questionnaire information about each Legionnaire and World War veteran to be used in the event of a critical national emergency.

Charlevoix's registration will be conducted Saturday afternoon, February 22, between 2 and 4 o'clock at the city hall, according to Harold F. Lamb, Legion Commander. All veterans, whether members of patriotic organizations or not, are urged to register. Blanks and necessary materials will be available at that time.

During the week preceding February 22, all veterans and Legionnaires who are jobless are urged to register their work histories with the nearest of the 50 offices maintained in the state by the Michigan State Employment Service.

FEBRUARY DRAFT QUOTA REDUCED

FIVE MEN LEAVE NEXT MONDAY FOR KALAMAZOO

Charles Levinson Included in Group; Original February Quota Called for Fourteen Men

Charlevoix county's February selective service quota, announced last week as fourteen, has been reduced to five, it was announced Monday by Fay Davis, draft board clerk.

In accordance with revised quota, the five men who will leave Charlevoix on Monday, February 24, for induction into the army at Kalamazoo, are the following:

Roy Gregory and Cecil Hitchcock, of East Jordan; Raymond Eggers of Boyne City; Forest Argetsinger of Camp Wolverine; Charles Levinson of Charlevoix.

All of the above group are volunteers with exception of Forest Argetsinger, registered at Toledo, Ohio, and drafted by the board in that city when his number came up. Davis announced that six volunteers are available to partially fill the pending March quota, tentatively set at 14 white men from Charlevoix county.

Originally the draft board had ordered 14 men to be prepared to leave in February, in accordance with the quota assigned to the county. Later, after the men had prepared to leave, the quota was cut to five. No reason has been given for the reduction in quota.

Lake Michigan Continues to Lead In Production; Smelt Move Up From Ninth to Fourth Place

Commercial fish production in Michigan waters of the Great Lakes has declined in the last year 2,823,891 pounds or nearly 10 per cent from the 1939 total, the fish division of the department of conservation reports. At 26,073,195 pounds, the 1940 production is close to the 26,350,727 pound average of the previous 20 years.

Lake Superior last season produced 1,033,263 more pounds of fish than in 1939, but 1940 production in Lake Michigan, Lake Huron, and Lake Erie was less than in the previous year, with the decline greatest in Saginaw bay, where 3,148,130 less pounds were taken.

QUEEN CORONATION IS SCHEDULED WEDNESDAY

Program Postponed from Last Week, Petoskey, Local Skaters Featured

Weather conditions permitting, the coronation of Miss Marjorie Wood as Charlevoix winter queen will be conducted tonight (Wednesday) at the municipal skating rink.

The event, scheduled originally the same evening last week, was postponed when unfavorable ice conditions caused cancellation of a program which was to have featured figure skating by Miss Marie Markert of Stambaugh, 1941 Michigan winter queen, and members of the Petoskey Figure Skating Club.

Miss Markert, having returned home following the Petoskey winter carnival, will not appear on the program this week, but Petoskey figure skaters, together with local talent, are to be featured on the extensive program prepared.

An educated man is one who can guess near enough at the spelling of a word to find it in the dictionary.

Gosh, how things do change. Now little girls like painted dolls, and little boys like soldiers. When they grow up the girls like soldiers and the boys like painted dolls.

Pa and I went to Grand Rapids last week end. Hadn't been in the big-ged place over 15 minutes before a cop put a traffic violation ticket on our car. Parked the darn thing down hill without turning the front wheels against the curb, which is against the law in them parts. Told the danged officer I didn't know any better and if he was at all observing he could have told by the smell of the car that we were from up in the sticks. He said he had allowed as much at first observation and would let us off this time. He gave me a copy of traffic regulations to read and, after taking one peek at the thing I knew

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

A wave of agricultural advertising bills is about to reach the Michigan state legislature.

When the state supreme court upheld the constitutionality of the apple advertising tax, whereby a levy of one cent a bushel is assessed on the grower, (who adds it to the consumer's bill just as the retailer does with the sales tax) the court opened the dykes to similar legislation.

Dairy interests propose a similar advertising levy in the hope of stimulating consumption of milk and butter.

Cherry growers and canners also advocate a state cherry tax to solve the recurrent problem of how to dispose of a canned cherry surplus which, in 1941, is the greatest known in many years. The cherry industry of Michigan has been weakened by a competitive feud among leaders, and this co-operative action may not be easily effected.

HISTORICAL NOTE

A notebook, now in the New York Public Library, which dates back to 1757, contains, in George Washington's own handwriting, his own recipe for brewing beer. George Washington staunchly favored beer as a beverage of moderation and repeatedly recommended beer for his army.

Schmidt's are proud to carry on the time honored brewing art . . . one that was practiced by the father of our country. And, true to that tradition, today we bring you "America's Finest Beer." Schmidt's is brewed solely from purest, natural beer ingredients. That's why, in Schmidt's, you get that true beer flavor—a beer that is always light, yet full-bodied and satisfying. AT THE MOVIES

New Musical Is Keyed To Our Exciting Times

When 20th Century-Fox, famed for its great musical productions such as "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Down Argentine Way" decided to film "Tin Pan Alley," newest starring vehicle for Alice Faye and Betty Grable, it keyed the film to the very mood of America, both in story and in song.

And that's one of the main reasons why this great musical of our exciting times, which comes Saturday and Sunday, February 22-23 to the Palace Theatre, has evoked so much praise at preview performances.

This necessitates more delivery teams, or at least more time spent in driving around with teams. The woman with the market basket has almost disappeared, while the 'phone is kept humming with orders to be carried to the homes."

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Bootleg Milk

Health authorities, supported by the American Medical Association, have campaigned vigorously for more than a decade against the sale and use of "bootleg milk," the term used to designate that product sold outside municipal city limits and therefore not subject to regulation, notably pasteurization, which renders it safe for human consumption.

Despite this effort, roadside stands and so-called "jug-stations" continue to flourish and, it is said, in many parts of the country, especially in the smaller cities, raw milk still constitutes an appreciable percentage of the total daily milk distribution. As a result, milk-borne outbreaks of communicable disease appear both within the supervised urban zone as well as in the unprotected rural areas. On the occasion of each such outbreak, the health authorities are usually condemned, however unjustly, for failure to perform their duties.

It is doubtful whether anyone is led to purchase the bootleg milk because it is offered at a somewhat lower price than that delivered by the supervised dairies. To do so would be a case of acting in a manner that is "penny wise and pound foolish," for the cost of illness which may follow the drinking of bacteria-laden milk must far exceed the price differential even over a long period of time.

Thus, health officers conclude, patronage of the milk stand and unsupervised dairy must be limited to those who are still laboring under the delusion that raw milk is in some way superior in nutritional content to that which is pasteurized.

This belief is so far from the truth that producers of certified milk and the American Association of Medical Milk Commissioners, which supervise milk production, agree that pasteurization would probably be an additional safeguard even for this product which is necessarily above suspicion.

The Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association, after exhaustive research, has issued the positive statement that "there is no cogent evidence that pasteurized milk is significantly inferior nutritionally to raw milk."

The discovery that raising the temperature of milk to a certain degree for a definite period would kill the more prevalent and virulent disease-bearing organisms was an inestimable advance in the progress of the health sciences. To refuse to take full advantage of this procedure, to return to the "Dark Ages" of human knowledge, is a court serious illness or worse.

Even those rural residents who do not have available a source of pasteurized milk can learn from their agricultural college or the U. S. Department of Agriculture how the home-produced supply may be made safe for drinking. There is no longer any excuse for those who insist on "taking a chance." If you wish to purchase milk directly from farms, learn first how to pasteurize it. This column will gladly furnish you a description of a safe home method, or the Department of Health at Lansing will send upon request a complete description of the method. Use milk in abundance, but use it safely.

DAVIDA BLAKE WINNER IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Awarded Prize by American Business Men's Research Foundation

A Charlevoix young lady, Miss Davida N. Blake, is winner of fourth prize of $15.00 in a nation-wide essay contest sponsored by the American Business Men's Research Foundation of Chicago, Ill., nationally known as a non-profit organization to promote clean living.

A choice of two subjects was given to the competing high school and Sunday school students: "I believe that the use of intoxicating liquors is as harmful as is taught in high school and in Sunday school," and "I do not believe that the use of intoxicating liquors is as harmful as is taught in high school and in Sunday school." Miss Blake selected the first argument. The contest was participated in by hundreds of young people in forty-five states, many Canadian provinces, and some foreign countries.

Miss Blake, fifteen years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Blake, and a junior at Charlevoix high school. She is a member of the Student Council, member of the board of editors of the "Crimson Flash," high school paper, plays cornet in the school band, is an active leader in the young people's group at the Congregational church, and has an excellent scholastic record.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET WAS FINE AFFAIR

Nearly Two Hundred Attended Annual Function Thursday Night

The annual Father and Son banquet, given Thursday evening by the Methodist Women's Society in the church dining-room, was a successful affair. About a hundred seventy-five guests were present.

A red-and-white valentine motif was carried out in the table decorations, with tall lighted red candles.

Toastmaster Rev. W. L. Cruthers was introduced by Dr. F. F. McMillan. A toast to the sons was given by Art Wexstaff, while his son Hub responded with a toast to the fathers. Speaker of the evening was J. G. Hayes, of the agricultural department of Michigan State College, whose entertaining talk was thoroughly enjoyed by the guests. Numbers on the program were interspersed with community singing.

License Few Muskrat Farms

Michigan's licensed muskrat farms, which numbered 366 as recently as 1930, are expected to total less than 20 in 1941, and of these, not more than half a dozen are believed likely to have a surplus of muskrats for harvesting.

KENNEDY TELLS PLANS FOR NEW SCENIC DRIVE

Route Up West Michigan Coast From Indiana Line Is Proposed

Western Michigan's dream of a scenic, shoreline highway from Indiana's state line to the upper reaches of the lower peninsula was down in black and white today with plans for bridges, widening and relocation.

State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy, at a meeting of the Western Michigan Road Conference held last Friday at Muskegon, outlined the project in detail. He said he could promise no date when the long range program would begin, but promised western Michigan increased amounts of construction work.

The highway, Kennedy said, would extend from the state line to Grand Traverse county, and would utilize much of US-31, the present route from Indiana to Suttons Bay, but would require construction of 100 miles of concrete paving.

Kennedy also announced that President Roosevelt has approved a federal works agency plan for highway improvements in this area to facilitate increased traffic under the defense program. Improvements largely would affect US-31, Kennedy said.

The defense improvements would consist of relocation of 3.4 miles of concrete on the east side of South Haven at a cost of $170,000 and construction of a bridge at that point for $80,000.

The plan also calls for construction of a 5.5 mile concrete stretch northeast of Manistee at a cost of $247,000 and a bridge at Elk Rapids at $70,000.

The shoreline highway long has been regarded as a boon to Western Michigan tourist trade.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

First prize was won by Mrs. Lowell Baird, with consolation award going to Mrs. Herbert Campbell. Mrs. Korth assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

EASTER SEAL SALE AID TO CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Annual Campaign Is Announced for Period March 1 to April 13

"While it seems likely that the current session of the Michigan legislature will provide somewhat more generously for the care of crippled children, due to the public reaction caused by the insufficient appropriation of two years ago, still the need for lay activity remains great as ever, and such lay activity is financed almost entirely by means of the annual Easter Seal Sale," said Emmet Richards of Alpena, president of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, announcing the opening of the eighth annual sale from March 21 to April 13, Easter day.

"The Michigan Society for Crippled Children is concerned with services to crippled children in ways that will provide the best possible care for the greatest number," said President Richards, "and even with an enlarged appropriation there will remain many things to be done that cannot be done by the state. This year, and for years to come, we will be confronted with opportunities for service to crippled children growing out of the 1940 infantile paralysis epidemic. Already the Michigan Society for Crippled Children has expended hundreds of dollars on the care of child victims of this epidemic, notably in the upper peninsula, where the epidemic was most severe. We have not only furnished a considerable quantity of equipment but also many weeks of special service in the field."

EXAMS FOR CADETSHIPS IN U. S. COAST GUARD

Cong. Bradley Calls Attention to Exams Scheduled May 14-15

Congressman Fred Bradley has been asked to call attention to the annual competitive examinations for appointments to cadetships in the United States Coast Guard, to be held May 14-15, 1941. The examination is open to all boys and young men, between 17 and 22 years who have the required educational preparation and moral and physical requirements.

The course is the highest possible type of college training. Successful completion of four years of cadetship at the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. lends to a Bachelor of Science degree, a commission and a career in the United States Coast Guard. Pay of a cadet while undergoing instruction is $780 a year, plus an allowance for subsistence.

High school graduates desiring to compete for the appointments may get application blanks and detailed information by writing the Coast Guard or to their congressman, Fred Bradley, 1339 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

WESLEYAN GUILD PLANS MUSICALE PROGRAM FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 26TH

The Wesleyan Service Guild met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Annabelle Cunningham, 601 Bridge street, with Miss Cunningham and Miss Ernestine Chew as hostesses. Devotionals were led by Miss Susannah Metcalf.

During the business meeting plans were discussed for the musicale which the Guild is to sponsor on Wednesday evening, February 26.

Mrs. C. A. Leslie of Boyne City, Charlevoix County Red Cross chairman, gave an interesting talk in which she outlined the history of the Red Cross from its origin in 1864 to its work in the present war. She explained the management of the national organization, the use and distribution of membership funds, and also told of the classes in first aid and home hygiene now being conducted by trained, experienced workers.

Miss Mildred Withers presented the topic of refugees in America, from the Pilgrims to the committees recently established to care for refugees from Europe.

Following discussion of these subjects, refreshments were served.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Proper Manner of Displaying Flag

When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the flag of the United States should be either on the marching right, that is the flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the United States flag may be in front of the center of that line.

When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the flag of the United States of America should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flags.

Grow a Sweet Potato . . .

A decorative vine may be grown from an ordinary sweet potato, or yam. Place the potato, or yam, in a glass. Fill the glass one-third full of water. If the potato touches the glass on one side, stick a match in between potato and glass so that the water will go all around the potato. Set in an east or southeast window, never in a west window. It will take quite a while to start, but once started, will grow rapidly. New plants may also be started from well-developed shoots of the original vine.

Try planting lemon, orange, grapefruit, or avocado seeds when you have them. These generally have glossy, dark-green foliage, and make a good addition to your window garden.

Farrowing has been discontinued as a means of preparing land for reforestation in state forests. "Scalping," the removal of a small patch of sod to make a place for each seedling, has been found less harmful to valuable "volunteer" growth which has developed naturally as a result of protection from forest fire.

Closing Date for Cotton Mattress Applications Set for March 1st

The carload of cotton ordered from the federal government for the making of cotton mattresses is expected the latter part of the month. In order to determine the most convenient locations for the maximum number of applicants it is necessary to know where we find the greatest interest. Furthermore, we believe that the first applications should receive the earliest consideration so kindly send in your application as soon as possible.

Judging from the number of applications already received there will be more requests than can be taken care of in the first car load. Tentatively we expect to have 7 or 8 work centers in the county. Already the needles, mattress card, and thread have been ordered. It is expected that the program will start in full swing around the first of March.

Remember you can get application blanks upon request at the county agent's office at Boyne City or by contacting your local grange, your agricultural adjustment administration township committee, your home economics extension leaders, your county school commissioner or your county nurse. Kindly keep in mind that all folks with a net income of $500 or less are eligible. If your family consists of more than four persons you are allowed an extra $50.00 net income, for each person over four. For example: a family of seven can have a net income of $650 and still be eligible. Each mattress will have 50 pounds of cotton in it, the ticking is of the highest quality, in fact, if the material had to be purchased it would cost at least seven or eight dollars. This looks like a splendid opportunity so let us hear from you if you are interested.

Home Economics Extension Groups Receive Third Lesson Last Week

Miss Ruth Peck, specialist in home management, from Michigan State College, gave the third discussion in the home management project last Tuesday to the group of 22 leaders. During the forenoon the cotton mattress program was discussed. Each group indicated a desire to help make a success of the project in their particular community which is certainly gratifying to note the fine spirit of cooperation existing in this home economics program. No matter what is requested, these publicly spirited groups always come to the front and offer their services.

Suggestions were made in a little business meeting for the achievement day which follows the last lesson. The group was unanimous that they want to have another tour in the county. One hundred forty-five folks attended the tour last year and enjoyed every minute of the day and were delighted with the itinerary. This year different points of interest will be developed but they will be just as attractive as the previous year. Preliminary blanks indicate that about the middle of June would be the best time for such a tour. The fourth and last lesson in this winter project takes place on April 1st.

Destructive windstorms occur in Michigan every year. No part of Michigan is spared. Annual losses often exceed $2,000,000. Protect yourself against windstorm losses by insuring with the reliable, 43 year old State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Company. Rates are reasonable. $1.50 buys $1,000 worth of protection for one year. Don't wait 'til it's too late. See your local State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Company agent today or write us direct.

Admiral Nimitz Commissions Navy Service School Built by Henry Ford

Auto Manufacturer Makes One of His Rare Appearances Before Microphone

DEARBORN, MICH.—When its huge building program got under way, the Navy faced another huge problem, the training of men in the highly technical duties which crews are called upon to perform.

The existing naval training stations were already full. Turning to industry, Navy officials found that the Henry Ford Trade School, situated in the heart of the Rouge plant, was perfectly suited to such training.

Henry Ford not only offered the facilities of both school and plant to the Navy for this purpose, but also said he would build barracks for 1200 students, mess hall for 2000, administration building, provision storage, recreation room, athletic field, n steam generating plant.

The offer was accepted, and on December 6, 1940, the first shovel of earth was turned on the bank of the Rouge River. Forty days later the first contingent took up quarters in the newly erected buildings. The inauguration ceremonies were described by Commander C. P. Cecil as "unique in the history of the United States Navy—for we are dedicating the first Navy Service School ever to be operated in connection with civilian industry."

With naval officers on the outdoor platform beside him, and 200 enlisted men drawn up in front of the school's administration building, Henry Ford said that: "During the present crisis our organization wants to do everything possible to help America and the President. The Navy being our first line of defense, I feel that the training of these young men will vitally benefit our nation. And, when this crisis is over, we can then reclaim these mechanically trained young men in our industries."

In turning the facilities of school and plant over to the Navy for training personnel, Edsel Ford explained that his father had established the Henry Ford Trade School 24 years ago "because he believed in using the facilities of the Ford Motor Company for something more than the building of motor vehicles. He believed that these facilities could also be used for the building of youth."

Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, who came from Washington to represent Secretary Knox, accepted the facilities of school and plant. "I can think of no better place for this extension of the Navy training program," he declared, "I wish Mr. Ford, to express to you the appreciation of the Navy Department for this fine demonstration of patriotism on your part."

The new Navy Service School will be under the administration of Rear Admiral John Downes, Commandant of the Ninth Naval District, which includes 13 states and has headquarters at Great Lakes, Illinois.

After explaining that the men to be trained here come from both the Pacific and the Atlantic, as well as the Great Lakes, he added: "We know that Mr. Ford has here established the finest school in the world for training men in the mechanical trades. This will be the most important training center that the Navy has for schooling its newly enlisted men in the mechanical duties which they will be called upon to perform immediately upon joining the fleet."

Even egg producers—and Hamilton in Allegan county is the "egg capital" of Michigan — are studying the court ruling carefully. As the Hamilton co-operative has shown, eggs can be controlled in flavor, while scientific processing can preserve the "fresh" taste from six months to a year, and the average consumer can't tell the difference!

Agriculture Commissioner

The bill by Rep. Maurice E. Post, (R) Rockford, to take the commissioner of agriculture out of politics by making him responsible to the state board of agriculture (governing body of Michigan State College) is beginning to back-fire.

Passed by the House, the measure is now before the Senate committee on agriculture. At a hearing last week a majority of farm spokesmen expressed opposition. Clark L. Brody, secretary of the Michigan Farm Bureau and a member of the college board, condemned the plan as being an unconstitutional invasion of the governor's executive authority. Fred P. Hibst, Cadillac, manager of the Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange, warned it would involve the college "more and more with politics because politically-minded men will seek election to the board to dominate state department policies."

Even the possibility that state department employees would be removed from civil service protection has been raised by several senators. Educational institutions are now exempt.

Some bipartisan control for the agricultural department has been favored by farm groups for many years. Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner merely seized it in 1940 as a good campaign issue, and by this time he has put the Republican-dominated legislature in a pretty predicament. A veto is certain if the Post bill is passed.

Labor Reforms

Generally known as "publicity bills" are three measures, introduced by Senator Stanley Nowak, (D) Detroit, which are designed to institute labor reforms in Michigan.

Senate bills 51 and 52 would impose minimum wages for women and institute wage and hour requirements for all workers in intrastate commerce. Because of their drastic provisions at a time when national defense has the right of way, the bills repose quietly in the senate labor committee.

A third Nowak labor bill would forbid boys under 14 years of age and girls under 18 to engage in "street trades" including the sale of newspapers and magazines. Even time spent in school would be included in an eight hour day limit. (The average newsboy or magazine junior merchant devotes only an hour or so each day, in his spare time, to his "street trade." It is usually considered "pin money" rather than employment, as Michigan requires compulsory education for everyone 7 to 16 years of age.)

Political Publicity

Office-holders realize the value of publicity, especially if it is at the public's expense and at the disadvantage of their opponents.

House Bill 99 would provide for the ballot designation of the occupation of a candidate who seeks re-election — a privilege which rivals would not possess. Thus, the occupation of "state representative" could appear on ballots.

Senate bill 99 is aimed at the practice of state highway commissioners whose names adorn roadside signs, picnic tables and other state-owned buildings and equipment in large letters. This bill would prohibit use of the names of public officers on state signs, maps, etc., unless specifically provided for by law. Furthermore, a signature would be that of the department or office rather than the individual bonding the same.

(Republican critics of G. Donald Kennedy, interim state highway commissioner, complain that Kennedy had his name painted on thousands of road-signs; held up printing of the winter highway map for revisions; and so on, at considerable expense —all in order to publicize himself prior to the spring election.)

Old Age Pensions

Senate resolution C, introduced by Senator Joseph Baldwin, (R) Albion, would earmark 10 per cent of the state gasoline tax refund annually (five and six million dollars) for old age pensions and to retire the state deficit. It would require a constitutional amendment.

Rising recognition of more adequate pensions recently prompted state representatives to over-ride the house ways and means committee and to add $161,000 to a deficiency bill.

Both parties are bidding for favor of the "oldsters," the Townsend bloc. No action is expected, however, until after the April election. The same observation can be made about the $46,000,000 school appropriation bill of the Michigan Education Association.

SHOT AT RANDOM

I couldn't remember half of them, so decided the next time I venture down that way I'm'goin' to leave the car outside the city limits and walk the rest of the way in.

Had a letter recently from Ted Kibbe telling about the great fishin' out around Creston, Mont., in Glacier National Park. I'm going to quote part of his letter for your information, as follows: "We have the station here nearly finished. It is for the purpose of stocking all waters in Glacier National Park. Have an abundance of puro spring water at 46 degrees temperature constant and ideal far trout culture. This country is really a sportsman's parndise. Good hunting, fishing, boating and plenty of mountain scenery. Better come out and let me prove this fact to you. As for game trout, we throw back everything under 14 inches in length." Now, I'm just a mite cautious about expressing doubt over Ted's honesty concerning them 14-inchers, especially when "liar" used to be a "shooting" word out west. But just between you and me I'm taking that talk with a "grain of salt" right now, and hope the day comes soon when I can mortgage the back 40 for enough to go out there and make him prove it.

FOUND—At Charlevoix municipal sewage disposal plant, a goldfish in excellent state of health. Owner may have same by identifying and paying for this advertisement. Details other than already stated to be furnished by J. C. Marshall, sewage disposal plant superintendent.

Boyne City is getting a million dollars worth of free publicity out of that Paramount News Reel showing their "Smeltania City," and the fact the first fish pulled out of the water in that shanty scene was a herring instead of a smelt detracts none from the interest in the movie, either.

Ain't It the Truth—

Teacher: "What is it that binds us together, sustains us, and makes us even better than nature intended?

Tommy: "Girdles."

It would take an optimist to think about spring the way it has been blizzarding the past two days, but I'm quite sure Smith's Housefurnishings and Wood Brothers must have had thoughts of bulmler days in mind when they redecorated the interior of their stores recently.

And speaking about optimists—it wouldn't take one to see what a beautiful set-up that new hotel and lakefront improvement proposed on the old Merriam and Lumber Co. properties would be, nor what an asset it would be to Charlevoix. There are skeptics who blow off at the mouth about the project while never offering anything constructive or progressive themselves. The same applies to those inclined to place obstacles in the way of the new highway bridge over the channel on US-31, proposed street widening, etc. Such people are the ones who cry their eyes out because of Charlevoix's steadily diminishing resort patronage, while at the same time balk over and hinder improvements which would attract greater resort patronage. I will always contend you can't go ahead while backing up, nor will you progress by standing still. Let's not keep Charlevoix in a rut!

BALD-HEADED EAGLES RAID SEAGULL FLOCK

Pair of Invaders Visit Round Lake Harbor Tuesday Afternoon

Charlevoix's seagull population on Round lake harbor was put into wild flight Tuesday afternoon when a pair of bald-headed eagles invaded their sanctuary.

The raid paralleled that of last spring when the foray of a single eagle which killed a seagull was witnessed by numerous persons, and an unconfirmed report was circulated to the effect the eagle had picked up and carried away a small dog.

No physical damage was reported from Tuesday's invasion by the eagles nor is it recommended mothers keep their children indoors for protection —yet.

The South Side Circle of the Congregational church has changed its name to the Margaret Parker Circle.

Organized twenty years ago by a group of women all living on the south side of town, the group has grown to include women from all sections of the town, and the name was felt to be inappropriate. The new name honors Mrs. G. Russell Parker, who for her ten years' residence here was a faithful and industrious worker in this circle.

LIVE TRAP DEER FOR TWO SOUTHERN STATES

Michigan Whitetails Go to Tennessee and West Virginia

A hundred Michigan deer for Tennessee and West Virginia, 50 for each state, are now being livetrapped by department of conservation men on Drummond Island and near Grayling. From the southern states, Michigan is to receive shipments of sharptailed grouse in exchange.

Livetrapping of the deer was undertaken with the approval of local groups, because of the shortage of winter deer food in the deeryards in both localities. Sharptails are to be planted in the districts from which the deer are being removed.

KNOW ● YOUR BANK

Why We Have State and National Banks

PART I

"NECESSITY is the mother of invention" and so the necessity for a flexible banking system to meet the banking requirements of an extensive nation of widely diversified activities and needs gave rise to the American system of banking. Under this system each state has its individual banking laws, and thereby has power to charter banks. Thus are created state banks, trust companies, and savings banks. Jurisdiction over state banks is exercised by a department of government usually called a "state banking department."

The federal government, through the Comptroller of the Currency, also charters banks called "national banks." All national banks, regardless of location, are under one law.

SECOND FIRST AID COURSE AVAILABLE

COUNTY RED CROSS SPONSORS 10-WEEK SCHEDULE

Frank F. Bird and O. P. North, Local Committeemen, Seek Participation of Local Citizens

Attention of local citizens is again called to a new course in Red Cross first aid inaugurated last Monday evening by the Charlevoix County Red Cross Chapter.

The course, scheduled for a period of ten weeks, with classes of two hours each Monday evening at the senior high school building, will be taught by Drs. F. F. McMillan, Mark Giffords, G. B. Saltonstall and W. M. Chapman. The sponsoring group is headed by George R. Hemingway, of Boyne City, chairman. Local members are Frank F. Bird and O. P. North.

The course covers training necessary for prompt and efficient care during emergencies before the arrival of a physician and includes: (a) control of bleeding, (b) artificial respiration, (c) handling and transportation, (d) prevention of infection, (e) relieving pain, (f) accident prevention.

The course has been given in all parts of the United States and lately in nearby counties of Michigan. It will be of great personal value to those taking it, and interest of the Red Cross is that such training will be of community value. It is felt that with a considerable number of trained first aid workers and first aid stations, much can be done in industries, on highways and in homes where such trained workers may be called to assist.

The course is similar to that now being taught to a group of 20 each Monday evening by Glen Smith, of Boyne City, a graduate of this and an advanced Red Cross first aid course.

Classes will be called at 8 o'clock each Monday evening.

Motorists are requested to bring car titles with them when buying new plates. There is no extension from the Friday deadline.

Charlevoix Matched With East Jordan to Open Class C Play Thursday Night—Ten Teams Entered

Boyne Falls and Alanson, class D teams, will open the district basketball tournament to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 6, 7 and 8, at the Charlevoix school gymnasium.

The initial contest is scheduled for 6:45 Thursday evening.

In the class C draw, Charlevoix and East Jordan were paired for the first tilt in this class at 8:15 Thursday evening. Other class C contests scheduled are Boyne City vs. Pellston at 8:00 Friday evening, and Harbor Springs vs. winner of the Charlevoix-East Jordan tilt at 9:15 the same evening.

The class D draw paired Levering and Indian River for a contest scheduled at 8:00 Thursday night. Mackinaw City meets the winner of the Boyne Falls-Alanson tilt at 8:00 Friday night.

Finals in both classes will be held Saturday night, the class D tilt at 7:30 and class C contest at 8:45.

The tournament draw was held Monday evening at the high school building with Harry E. Bingham, high school principal and tournament manager in charge.

LEGION HAS SOFA USED BY ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Relic Was Presented Local Post by Summer Resident Family

A sofa used by Abraham Lincoln when traveling on railway trains is the prized possession of the Leslie Shapton post, American Legion.

The martyred president, who was 6 feet 4 inches in height, was too tall to sleep comfortably in the Pullman berths of that period. So the Chicago & Alton railroad built a special sofa for Lincoln.

The frame is of heavy carved oak upholstered in deep red plush and still is in good condition. For many years the sofa remained in an old Pullman car in the railroad yards. When employes started to wreck the car the yardmaster drew the attention of James Charlton, traffic manager of the road, to the sofa.

Charlton took it from the Pullman and shipped it to his summer home here. Members of the family later turned it over to the legion post.

Prof. L. R. Taft Was Widely Known In Horticulture Circles

Levi Rowson Taft, teacher, horticulturist of international fame, inventor, and intimately related to the development of Charlevoix county, died of pneumonia February 12, at the Lockwood Hospital, in his eighty-second year.

He was the first inventor of a successful formula for spray for fruit diseases, and the Michigan State College has a tablet on its campus in commemoration of this.

In 1910 he organized the widely known Eveline Fruit and Land Co., which has done much for the development of this county. He was president of the company from the organization until 1940.

He spent the past few months in East Jordan with his son, Howard, at his home on Fourth street.

FOSTER BOAT COMPANY PRODUCTION SPEEDED

Models Enthusiastically Received at Chicago Boat Show

To fill standing orders and in anticipation of spring requirements, production of boat models manufactured by the Foster Boat Co. is in full swing at the company's Ferry avenue plant.

Company officials stated Monday that a payroll of fifteen men is being maintained and this number will be increased as their program gets under way.

Impetus to an already planned schedule resulted from a display at the recent Chicago National Boat and Sports Show. Models shown were received enthusiastically by the thousands attending the show, and even more gratifying was the fact that the boats compared very favorably in every respect to those shown by old-line boat manufacturing companies.

General conditions in the pleasure boat field reflect great demand and resultant excellent prospects for Charlevoix's most recently established industry.

AGED LOCAL WOMAN HAS TRAGIC DEATH

MRS. MARGARET COOK DIES OF ACCIDENTAL BURNS

Clothing Believed To Have Caught Afire From Kitchen Range—Funeral Services Held Monday

Mrs. Elizabeth Conk, 78, well known local woman, died of shock and suffocation from burns believed to have been received Friday night when her clothing caught afire from the kitchen range in her home.

Her body was found on the kitchen floor by her son, Neri, 47, when he returned home around 10 o'clock from a visit with Cecil Barns. Mrs. Cook, who was almost totally blind, was burned from her knees to head. Coroner F. F. McMillan, who conducted a thorough inquest, gave a verdict of accidental death.

The son, Neri, for some time a mental patient and former inmate of Traverse City State Hospital, was brought in for questioning following discovery of the tragedy. He was exonerated from any connection after lengthy grilling by Capt. Earl Hathaway and members of the Traverse City state police post, who had been called in by Sheriff Floyd Ikens and Prosecuting Attorney Norman Ance to assist in the case.

Besides the son, Mrs. Cook is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Shawley of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Agnes Russell, residing in California.

Funeral services were conducted Monday from the Sec Funeral Home, Rev. Fr. Preganzer, C. Ss. R., officiating. Burial was at Brookside cemetery.

RAYDERS LOSE TO BOYNE'S CAGERS

DEFEATED BY BY 29 TO 21 MARGIN IN THRILLING GAME

Close Pre-Tournament Schedule With Harbor Springs on Home Hardwood Friday Night

Boyne City's Ramblers tied up the "Little Eight" class C conference basketball crown here Friday night with a 29 to 21 victory over Charlevoix's Red Rayders. With one scheduled game remaining, Boyne heads the conference standing with a safe margin.

Friday night's contest, one of those nip-and-tuck affairs in which the advantage changed several times, was the most exciting seen on the local floor in two years.

The lead changed twice in the first period. Charlevoix overcame Boyne's early margin only to trail 7 to 6 at the quarter. The Rayders went ahead again in the second stanza and held a 15 to 13 advantage at the half. They increased their margin 17 to 13 as the first period opened and appeared headed for victory until Mitchell's injury necessitated a change in line-up which threw the team off balance. From then on Boyne had the upper hand, closed the gap and forged into a 20 to 17 lead at third intermission. They scored 9 points to Charlevoix's 4 in the final stanza. Boyne earlier defeated Charlevoix by a 28 to 24 margin.

Kohler topped the Rayder scoring with 8 points. Carey scored 7 while effectively hottling up Boyne's vaunted E. Dietz, lanky center, who was held to a pair of field goals. Stewart and Swanson contributed 3 points each to Charlevoix's score. W. Dietz and Harper were best for Boyne, scoring 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The Ryder reserves took a decisive trouncing, losing 36 to 8 to Boyne's reserves. Charlevoix was held to 2 points in the first half.

The Rayders conclude their pre-tournament schedule Friday night, Harbor Springs, losing only two games to Boyne this season, furnish the opposition. This contest, in view of the apparent even strength of the teams, should be one of the season's best.

ODD FELLOWS REDUCED MASONS' CRIBBAGE LEAD

Scored Margin of 304 Points in Eighth Contest Monday Night

The Odd Fellows defeated the Masons by 304 points Monday night to remain in the running for the coveted cribbage series title.

With nine tables competing in the eighth contest, the Odd Fellows scored 15,386 points to 15,082 for the Masons. Monday night's results left the Odd Fellows trailing their opponents by 266 points going into the ninth, or semi-final contest.

Hugh Brady, playing for the Odd Fellows, turned in a card of 965, the evening's high score. Ed. Stites scored 931 for the losers.

The ninth contest is scheduled Monday evening, March 3, at the I. O. O. F. hall.

A News Reporter's Philosophy—

"Go in for gossip and go in for philosophizing. You scorn gossip? Too bad! The world couldn't run without gossip, dear readers. But you say there's good golf and bad golf, just as there's honest poker and dishonest poker, so there's good gossip and bad gossip."

I've got two bits bet on the outcome of class D competition in the district basketball tournament here next week. One of the indirect results of the Governor Van Wagoner-state legislature dispute over the best way to remove the commissioner of agriculture from politics has been an increased recognition of the state board of agriculture, Michigan State College's governing body.

The board's official title originated in the day when the East Lansing institution was known as "Michigan Agriculture College."

Today the board members are "regents" of an all-round state college whose 1940 freshman enrollment numbered 593 in liberal arts, 344 in home economics, 285 in engineering, 207 in agriculture and forestry, 41 in music, 68 in physical education, 1916 in applied sciences, and 99 in veterinary medicine.

Voters were told that at the March primary election, they would receive a blank ballot. The date of filing petitions had been advanced one week, and the change was not known here until too late to file petitions. So no names could appear on the ballot, and the voters could write in the names of those who had announced their candidacy for city offices.

Two bootleggers were given stiff fines at a special session of circuit court that week.

Charlevoix was awarded the Western Michigan Championship tennis meet, to be held in August. W. G. Parker, chairman of the Association of Commerce tennis committee, began work at once on plans for the event.

Five Charlevoix ice fishermen narrowly escaped being stranded on a drifting ice floe in Lake Michigan last Sunday. Ray Graves was posted as lookout near a menacing crack in the ice, while the other five, Emmet Denny, Henry and Dick Marshall, Paul Heise and Grover Geneit went on out across the ice. Warned by Graves that the crack was widening, they arrived too late to jump across. A fish line with hook and sinker was thrown across the gap; four of the party mounted small cakes of ice and towed themselves, one at a time, to the other side. When Geneit's turn came, the gap had widened so much he had to be rescued by a coast guard boat.

The fate of the Charlevoix county fair trembled in the balance after the county board of supervisors refused to make the annual appropriation to the fair. Every city and many townships in the county were represented at a meeting of the Boyne City Progressive Club, Tuesday evening at the Wolverine Hotel, at which the matter was threshed out. Reason given for withholding funds was that the exhibition had taken on more of an entertainment aspect, instead of an agricultural display as was originally intended. Unjust charges brought against members of the fair association were refuted.

That year's spring primary mean was slim, with contests for only three offices: Horace R. Fowler and J. R. Cooper for justice of the peace; Jess Smith and David J. Eckinger, third ward alderman; William C. Palmer, incumbent, and Archie C. Belding, county school commissioner.

LOTTERY MAY GOVERN ANTLERLESS DEER HUNT

Five-Season Period, After Regular Hunting Season, Is Planned

A state of Mlchigan agency may conduct n lottery next fall, if the legislature approves a proposal to give the conservation commission nuthority to regulate the state's deer herds.

Winners of the proposed lottery would get licenses entitling them to take one antlerless deer in the week following the regular deer season, if they failed in the regular season to fill their licenses by bagging bucks.

Nn fairer method of choosing the few hunters who would be allowed to hunt on the restricted areas for antlerless deer ean he devised, say men of the game division, when nsked how they would manage such a season if the law were changed.

Hunters with the special licenses would be allowed to take antlerless deer only on limited, well defined areas such as Drummond Island and parts of Aleona, Montmorency, Alpena and Oscoda counties, where deer now starve each winter because there are more deer than there is food for.

It would cost hunters only the regular deer hunting license fee of $2.25 to enter the proposed lottery, but they would have to pay the fee in October. If they did not hold lucky numbers, they would get only the regular license to take one buck.

An antierless deer season, if the legislature allows one and the game division's recommendation is necepted, would be a five day period immediately following the regular season.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Pays To Keep Tapnotch Cowe

Simple arthmetic again proves it pays to keep a cow willing and capable of pnying her hnnrd with a mnrgin for profit for Michigan dairymen.

Another year's records obtained by cow testers in Mlchignn hns been analyzed by A. G. Baltzer, extension daicyman at Michignn Stnte College.

He takes a cow giving 4,000 pounds of milk or 200 pounds of butterfat and finds that she was able to provide a product worth $33 more thnn the feed cost.

Then he takes the figures for a cow producing 12,000 pounds of milk containing 420 pounds of butterfat. Tho feed cost rose, but the return over feed cost increased amazingly. The roughage cost only $5 more and the grain cost was but $15 more for the better cow. Compare that with the $102 that this better eow gave as a return over feed cost.

Starting with the 4,000 pound milk level, the D.H.I.A. records indicate that the average cows take about $2.10 feed cost increase for every additional 1,000 pounds of milk but the value over feed cost avernges $7.50 more. The 12,000 pound cow yielded three times the value over feed cost when compared with the cow that produced 4,000 pounds of milk.

On a herd basis, a dairyman with 10 cows yielding an average of 7,000 pounds of milk testing 4.6 per cent fat obtained as much total valne as the dairyman who milked 23 cows producing 4,000 pounds of milk testing 5 per cent fat. The latter is close to the average nnnual production of all Michigan milk cows in or out of dairy herd cow testing.

Federal Income Tax Returns Must Receive Farmers Attention

This year all farmers should carefully study their farm business and make nn income tax return if their gross income is $2000.00 or more. If single, or married and not living with husband or wife for any part of the taxnble year, a return must he filed if your gross income is $800.00 or more. If married and living with husband or wife for the entire taxable year and the gross income is $2000.00 a return must be led. Even if sufficient exemptions and deductions are allowable so that an income tax does not have to be paid you should still make your return.

Farmers should obtain two copies each, of the following two blank forms: (a) Form 1040 "Individual Income and Defense Tax Return" for individuals whose gross income is $5,000 from all sources, or Form 1040-A "Individual Income and Defense Tax Return" for individuals whose gross income from all sources is $5000 or less; and (b) Form 1040-F "Schedule of Farm Income and Expenses." Form 1040 or 1040-A is the form that must be filed by all persons who must mnke returns. This is the form that determines whether one has to pay a tax and the amount of the tax. Form 1040-F is simply an "information sheet." This must be filed with Form 1040 or 1040-A when the report is filed on the "Cash Receipts nnd Disbursements Basis." Hnwever, if the report is filed on "Acerual Basis" then Form 1040-F with Form 1040 or 1040-A is optional.

If the farmer uses the calendar year the return must be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue, Detroit, on or before March 15. If one uses the fiscal year the return is due not later than 2½ months after the close of the fiscal year. Thus, farm accounl cooperntors by using the March 1st inventory would have until May 15th to file their return. In making a decision as to what system to nse for computing the net farm profits it is well to carefully analyze your business. In most cases we believe the "Accrual Basis" is somewhat better year after year. In this basis one takes in consideratinn the increase or decrease in the farm inventory and nlso receipts from trnnsactions whether the money was actually received or not, and expenses incurred during the year paid or not, in the computation of the "net fnrm profits." In the "Cash Basis" one does nnt make use of the farm inventory in determining the net farm profits except as it is used in determining the depreciation allowances. Cash receipts are those actually made during the tax year.

In regard to "credit fnr dependants" there is a $400 exemption for each person other than husband or wife under 18 years of age, or regardless of age if incapable of self-support because mentally or physicnlly defective whose chief support was from the tax payer. While it's impossible to give full particulars in nn article of this type we shall he glad to answer your questions to the best of our nbility. The first thing is to study your forms very cnefully and usunlly you will have no difficulty. The forms can he secured by writing the Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, Petoskey, Michigan.

BEAVER TRAPPING SEASON SHORTENED FOR '41

Period of March 20 to April 15 Set for Lower Peninsula

Beaver trappers will have seven dnys less in the open season below the straits and a much reduced territory to trap in the upper peninsula, the spring senson regulations adopted by the conservntion commission provide.

The trapper still can take eight beavers and two otters on his $2 license, but this spring he must get them between March 20 nnd April 3 in the lower peninsula, or between April 1 and April 15 in the upper peninsula. Pelts are to be sealed nt $1 apiece at conservation district headquarters.

Otter carcasses also must be delivered at conservation district headquarters, for experimental work. Last year 266 otter were taken, and a seennd season's trapping will help determine the otter's abundance in Michigan, conservation department game men say.

In the lower peninsula beaver may be trapped in Montcalm, Mecosta, Newaygo, Midland and Isabella counties and counties north of township 16 north, with local exceptions. Otter may be taken by lower Michigan trappers in Alcona, Alpena, Cheboygan, Crawford, Iosco, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle and Roscommon counties.

In the lnst 10 years Michigan trnppers hnve taken 42,394 beaver pelts, more than half of them in the last three spring seasons. At 7,000 pelts a year, which is the recent take, the industry is worth about $150,000 annually.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

The Use of The Tooth Brush

Many people retain all of their teeth to old age but few have well formed gums, firm and tight arnnnd those teeth, and in a healthy condition. Many believe it is normal for the gum tissues to shrink as age progresses, exposing the spaces between the teelh nnd root surface next to the gum margins, hut this is a misconception. Any shrinkage of tissue while the teeth are in place is abnormal and is an indication of lack of regular thorough and proper cleaning of the teeth and gums.

The teeth are essentially bony structures protruding through soft tissues and held in the jaw bones by fibers which are part of the soft tissues. The gum tissue margins must of necessity be firm, thin and tough because they act as buffers to protect the attachment of the teeth. They receive much friction and pressure irritation from impnetion of food particles and from other conditions in our nse nf the teeth. The gums must have an active resistance against the invasion of bacteria because the teeth which they surround often become conted with food debris and with tartar which contains many bacteria and which acts as a constant irritant to the gum margins.

There is nt the gum margin a small thin area which is not attached to the tooth. This free margin of the gum must be elastic if it is to remain helpful or healthy. If retention of debris and tartar is permitted, the gum margin becomes deeper and gradually shrinks away. Therefore the tooth brush is used to preserve and help clennse this surface of the tooth and gums. The attachment between the tissue and tooth is the wenkest part of the gums. It is not like the attachment in the teeth of herbivorous nnimnls in which there is a more or less constnnt growth of teeth that renews the line of attachment. Whenever the gum margin is swollen or the crests belween the teeth are shrunken they form an obstruction to free passage of foods or permit impaction of food between the teeth, which in the end means dental decay nnd gum disease.

Cleaning of the teeth by the tooth brush must be not only for the purpose of removing debris frnm arnnnd the tooth, but alsn to preserve and keep the gums normal and healthy.

HIGHER LAKE LEVELS EXPECTED FOR NEXT SPRING

With normal rainfall this spring, nnrthern Mlchigan cottage and resort owners can look fnr higher inland lake levels than they had a year ago, ground-water level records of the conservation department's geological survey indicate now.

SHARP DECLINE IN PREDATOR KILL DURING JANUARY

A sharp decline in the number of coyotes taken resulted in bounty payments of only $485 for predators killed in January, the department of conservation reported today.

Nine bobcats, one wolf and 24 coyotes were accounted for. In previous years the January coyote kill was much heavier, amounting to 84 in 1940, 118 in 1939, 127 in 1938 and 82 in 1937.

By order of the conservation commission, labor impressed for forest fire fighting in 1941 will be paid at the rate of 30 cents an hour, five cents more an hour than was paid last year.

S'MATTER POP— Oops! Mysterious Sophistication! By C. M. PAYNE

LANSING LETTER

class led the University of Michigan freshman enrollment for the third successive year.

Thus the former "ag" school at the shadow of the state capitol has been growing up!

A "Boom" School

It was during the depression decade, just closed, that Michigan State experienced a remarkable surge in development.

Growing pains became acute.

From 3,536 students in 1930 to 6,982 in 1940 (including summer school), the growth was 97.3 per cent. The undergraduate gain was even higher—111 per cent.

Legislative appropriations have lagged far behind, being $2,125,284 in 1930 and only $2,500,000 a decade later. Pinching every dollar until it bled, the state board cut the annual student cost from $366 to $244. Salaries of professors and others on the teaching staff were gradually squeezed from $3,458 average to $2,781.

This predicament prompted the state board, of which William H. Berkey of Cassopolis is chairman, to appeal to the 1941 state legislature for $450,000 additional maintenance and operation funds.

And since the last legislative appropriation for classroom facilities was $200,000 way back in 1932, nine years ago, the board is asking for a natural science classroom building at a cost of $1,200,000. Four other structures, also badly needed, could be authorized later.

Because the legislature seems intent on giving the college board the duty of selecting the state commissioner of agriculture, as well as solving the college's own urgent needs, the above review of information is pertinent to the moment.

School Reforms?

From Dr. Arthur Moehlman of the University of Michigan, a national authority on education and editor of "The Nation's Schools," comes a three-point program for Michigan educational reforms, presented at the fourth annual citizens' conference on education held at Lansing this month, as follows:

1. Eliminate politics from the office of state superintendent of public instruction by making him an appointee of the state board of education.

2. Elect board members on a non-partisan ballot for staggered terms.

3. Reorganize 6,500 local school district into not more than 600.

Dr. Moehlman warned against the pitting of cities against rural areas, declaring "for generations professional politicians have fanned the minor differences between rural and urban groups into strong conflicts."

Resistance to a consolidation of school districts, even in the interest of economy, come from these sources, reminded Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent:

1. "Traditional point of view."

2. "Individual and group selfishness."

3. "Vested interests of the (21,000) board of school board members."

Sales Tax Row

Both retailers and consumers are interested in amendments proposed to the state sales tax to shift the taxing burden from merchant to buyer on sales under 17 cents.

Supported by the Michigan Retail Institute, Michigan State Pharmaceutical Association (drug stores) and the Detroit Board of Commerce, the amendments would introduce a complicated scheme known as prepaid tax cards.

Each consumer would have two choices:

1. Pay sales tax by purchasing a prepaid card—$1 worth of taxes for 3 cents—from each merchant from whom a purchase is made. The merchant would punch the card, like a meal ticket.

2. Pay sales tax by cash but on sales under 17 cents. A 10 cent loaf of bread would require one cent sales tax. Total price, 11 cents, or a sales tax of 10 per cent.

"Deck of Cards"

Critics of the prepaid tax card declare that the consumer would have to buy a card from every merchant, carrying a pocketful of cards, one for each store, like a deck of cards.

The shopper might forget to bring them along. Or another member of the family might have them.

The result, says the critics, would be a consumer annoyance, a 10 per cent cash tax on small purchases, or the purchase of duplicating $1 tax cards.

While consumer benefits technically would reduce taxes on 16 price levels below 33 cents and increase taxes only on eight, critics maintain that the practical outcome would be for the average customer to ignore the multiple card system, pay higher taxes on small items, or patronize large business firms which would offer to absorb a cash tax on small items rather than annoy customers—a competitive practice that would not help the little retailer, the forgotten man whom the plan is intended to benefit.

Miscellany

During February 2,084 applicants were added to old age assistance rolls.

The state's new intangible tax will produce close to $3,500,000 revenue.

RAYDERS VICTORS OVER HARBOR "5"

CLOSED SEASON WITH 26 TO 24 WIN FRIDAY

Reversed Earlier Defeat in Closely-Fought Contest—Reserves Turned In Final 22 to 16 Victory

Out-pointing Harbor Springs by a 26 to 24 margin in a hard-fought contest Friday night, Charlevoix high school's Red Rayders completed their pre-tournament schedule.

The victory, won in the last three minutes of play, was a sweet one, revenging an earlier defeat and, incidentally, boosting the Rayder's status as tournament contenders.

The contest was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout. The Rayders led by a slender 10 to 8 margin at the quarter, were out in front 16 to 13 at the half. Out-scored 9 points to 4 in the third period, they saw their advantage wiped out and entered the final quarter trailing 22 to 18. Goals by Kohler and Swanson tied the count, Harbor netted one for a 24 to 22 lead at the four-minute period. With play at a frantic pace, Stewart dribbled in for two successive goals to give the Rnyders a 2-point margin and the game.

Kohler netted 10 points to lead the Rayder attack. Carey and Stewart scored 5 each, Swanson 4 and Mitchell 2. Squier was best for the visitors with 8.

The Rnyder reserves turned in a 22 to 16 victory over Hurbor reserves for a season's total of five wins against six loses.

Friday night's victory for the varsity gave them seven victories to six defeats. They were beaten twice by Petoskey und Iloyne City, once by Harbor Springs and Gaylord. On the victory side were two wins over East Jordan and single victories over Harbor Spcings, Gaylord, Mancelona, Grayling and Rogers City.

The Rnyders boosted their chances in tournament competition with Friday night's victory over Hurbor. Boyne City, conference champion, defeated Harbor twice, once by a single point and once by two points in overtime. That the three teams are quite evenly mntched is indicated by results of conference games.

STALEY HOUND FOUND IN UPPER PENINSULA

Providing the most unusual incident of its kind on record here, a fox hound Clare Staley lost February 23 while hunting in Marion township south of this city, is reported found by John Paulsen, of Naubinway.

Mr. Paulsen's postal card, received Wednesday morolog, stated the dog, wearing a collar on which Mr. Staley's name and address is engraved, came to his home on March 1. Naubinway, located in the upper peniosula, is 55 miles from Charlevoix in a direct northwest line across Lake Michigan.

While one theory is apparently as good as another, it is believed the dog chased a fox onto Lake Michigan ice floes which broke away, drifted to meet fields reaching the north shore, from which point the hound continued on to Naubinway. The dog was reported in bad condition, indicating it had traveled far.

WPA OFFERS NEW RECREATION SERVICES

NEW OBJECTIVES OUTLINED AT BOYNE MEETING

Information Service On Recreational Programs and Parties to Be Made Available

Although the Works Projects Administration is still primarily interested in providing employment for needy and qualified persons, the recreational department of WPA, at a two-day meeting in Boyne City last week, out-lined new objectives that will be of interest to all communities.

Besides meeting community recreational needs by providing leadership in various netivities, nn information service on recreational programs and parties will be set up in many cities throughout the state. Dean Davenport, assistant district supervisor for 21 northern Michigan counties, has compiled inforntion of this nature and announces it will be nvailable to groups desiring this type of service by calling at the office in basement of the library building.

In addition to a local information service on recreational netivities, a technical service is being offered by the state recreutional stuff out of Lansing. An example of this service was the recent visit to Chnrlevoix of Birger Berg, state supervisor of winter sports and nature. Mr. Berg, member of the Norwegiun Olympic cross country ski team of 1924 and a graduate of engineering and forestry at Oslo University, inspected the new site for Charlevoix's winter sports park at Mt. McSnuby. He met with members of the winter sports committee and Dnn Herrick, city superintendent, offering valuable suggestions on laying out the park. Last Tuesday, Mr. Berg addressed the Kiwanis Club in a very interesting manner, stressing recreational skiing and emphasizing utilization of natural resources to promote winter activity for local people.

The meeting, presided over by Willis Cross, president of the northern district of the Michigan Fish Producers Association, was attended by commercial fishermen and other interested individuals.

A proposnl to prohlbit tuking of whitelish from Lnke Michigan, Superior, Huron und Erie wnters for five years brought this statement: "This law should he defeated, as it would put every Michigun gill net lisherman out nf business in Michigan waters, forcing them to trnnsfer their rigs tn other states."

Dunham, Grand Rapids, and George A. Cram, Pontiac, for justices of the supreme court; Sen. Earl L. Burhams, Paw Paw, and Alfred T. LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's "invisible government," comprising organized minority pressure groups, is an unforeseen beneficiary of the 1940 civil service amendment.

Where administration and legislative leaders once traded jobs for political support, the merit system has ruled arbitrarily that employment shall be on the sole basis of qualifications, determined accordingly by competitive examinations.

Accordingly, both Democratic and Republican leaders find themselves utterly helpless to sweeten their machines with patronage.

It is an astonishing situation—to a politician, at least.

The alternative is a legislative deal, in lieu of patronage.

For that reason veteran lobbyists are frankly concerned. They don't know what to expect.

Two good mixers are better than one

THERE you sit, watching the long road ahead as it dips and rises.

Under your feet there's a quiet whispering, to let you know that all eight able Buick cylinders are happily on the job.

You're giving not a single thought to what's happening under that long bonnet nosing out in front, but here's what's going on:

Instead of the single, compromise-size carburetor you find on most cars, this Buick FIREBALL eight with Compound Carburetion* has two good mixers on the job.

A single one of them—the front one—keeps you rolling smoothly, easily, quietly, on the very minimum rationing of gasoline.

But the other carburetor is alert and ready for any sudden need. Just tramp down on that accelerator pedal—it goes into instant action, giving you more fuel and more power for any emergency purpose!

It's almost like having two engines—one to handle normal requirements thriftily, another to team up with the first for extra oomph and wallop when you want it.

That kind of teamwork pays.

And owners by the thousand will tell you it's more economical too—as much as 10% to 15% more economical.

If you haven't experienced what it feels like to have that under the bonnet of your automobile, better go have that Buick demonstration now.

*Standard on all Buick SUPER, CENTURY, ROADMASTER and LIMITED models, available at slight extra cost on all Buick SPECIAL models.

"A State with Riches Blest"

Although 26 other states have more land devoted to agriculture, only 13 have greater farm cash income. As a milk-producing state, Michigan stands eighth, with nearly 1,000,000 dairy cattle.

WE LIVE in a great country. But among all the 48 states there is none that can lay claim to more varied and abundant riches of field and orchard, farm and mine, than our own Michigan. Here an unequaled combination of soil and climate, mineral deposits, waterways and harbors, and the progressive spirit of five million people, has enabled agriculture and industry to flourish together, each aiding the development of the other.

This is the first of a series of informative advertisements in which the Michigan Bell Telephone Company will deal with the immense natural resources of the state, affecting the daily lives of all our citizens.

The telephone has contributed vitally to Michigan's growth. Just as good roads, cars and trucks have made it easier to transport our products, so the telephone has aided the development of our resources by shortening time and distance. It brings producer, distributor, manufacturer and consumer closer together—minutes apart instead of days — and does it so cheaply that millions of dollars are saved annually.

Iron ore being loaded on a Lake freighter. Rated second among all states in the production of iron ore, Michigan is also rich in coal, copper, salt, gypsum, oil, gas, marl and limestone. Deep-water harbors along a 1,600-mile shoreline have aided the development of Michigan's resources.

Commercial fishing gives employment to thousands of Michigan men. They market 20,000,000 pounds of fish annually — more than a third of the U. S. Great Lakes catch. Michigan forests produce about 300,000,000 feet of sawn lumber a year, besides pulpwood for paper, tan-bark and other products.

The session was called to acquaint each chairman with his task for the year and to assist in the committee organization work. George Hemingway of Ironton, assistant district chairman, also attended and assisted in the program.

Charles Boyer, area Scout executive, and George White, district Scout executive, directed the study of committee activities.

Committee chairmen for the year include: George John, finance, Clare Hepner, health and safety; Lynn Bartlett, advancement; Don Watkins of Boyne City, camping and hiking; H. Lee North, organization; and Dr. G. A. Parmenter, training.

A Correction

Correction is made of errors in last week's obituary of Mrs. Margaret Cook. Funeral services were held from St. Mary's church, not from the See funeral home. Mrs. Mary Shawley, her sister, stated to have survived Mrs. Cook, is deceased.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

It is time now to force lily-of-the-valley and other bulbs for Easter. Bulbs planted in bowls are on the market.

Many of the outdoor shrubs will provide indoor bloom soon, if branches are brought indoors when the first signs of buds appear. Among the easiest to force are forsythia, Japanese quince, and possy willow.

The pussy willow will force easily if cut branches are placed in water and put in a warm place. To force the forsythia and Japanese quince, it is a good idea to syringe the tops of the branches daily with warm water.

Many women kill their plants by too much kindness—that is to say, they water them much more freely than is conducive to good health.

Perhaps there is no other factor which is more important in the handling of house plants than the application of water. If the drainage of a plant is good, surplus water will usually run away, but in many instances the drainage is so poor that the water stands in the bottom of the pot, with the result that the soil becomes waer-logged and sour. The same result will follow if water is allowed to remain in the saucers under the pots. This is a very common cause of failure with house plants, but of course is readily avoided. It is only necessary to empty the saucers an hour or two after water has been applied. The only exception, among common house plants, at least, is the astilbe, or spirea, which is popular at Easter time.

ALL-RESERVE ARMY MEN SUMMONED FOR SERVICE

March 15th Deadline Set for Reporting to Headquarters

All regular army reservists, not discharged or deferred, have been ordered into active service not later than March 15, according to an announcement by Sergeant Stephen Dudas of the Traverse City recruiting station in an order from Sixth Corps Area headquarters in Chicago.

Regular army reservists who have failed to report will be carried on morning reports as absent without leave.

"When such reservists report for duty or are apprehended, such disciplinary action as is indicated by proper investigation will be taken," the notice reads. "Reservists, except for those whose call to active duty has been deferred, who have not reported by March 15, will be dropped as deserters. The director of selective service of the state in which they last resided will be notified of the fact they have been dropped and are subject to registration."

OPPOSE PROPOSED FISH LAW CHANGE

The proposal that nets used in waters of Lake Michigan lying north of a line drawn due west from Sleeping Bear Point, Leelanau county, for taking herring, chubs, perch and pilot fish shall be set only in water of a depth exceeding 50 fathoms, or in water not exceeding 10 fathoms, was deemed discriminatory. It was claimed that if there is no need for this regulation south of Sleeping Bear Point, there certainly is no need for such a law in the territory designated.

In regard to a proposed $25 license fee, the meeting went on record as proposing this measure should apply to any boat operated with either inboard or outboard motor and used for sport trolling for lake trout for hire. It was contended operators of trolling boats for hire are as much commercial fishermen as fishermen operating other gear. The present license fee is $10 per boat.

Fishermen are seeking the cooperation of the public in general in opposing proposed law changes deemed harmful to their industry. Those interested are asked to write their opposition to representatives in the State Legislature for this district.

GOVERNOR ENDORSES 8TH EASTER SEAL SALE FOR AID CRIPPLED CHILDREN

I am indeed glad to endorse the annual Easter Seal sale of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, Inc., scheduled to take place March 21 to April 13, 1941. May I take this means, too, of commending you and your associates on your untiring efforts to aid crippled boys and girls in overcoming their physical handicaps.

It is particularly appropriate that the effort to obtain public support for the work should be linked to one of the most important events in the Christian calendar, suggesting the hope and ambition of suffering humanity over mortal afflictions.

It is my hope that the work of restoring crippled boys and girls to useful citizenship, at the same time relieving their suffering, may continue on an ever-expanding plane. All citizens of Michigan can well be proud that such a fine, humanitarian program is being carried on within their state.

As Governor of Michigan, I share that pride and herewith urge a full measure of support for the Easter Seal sale and the program of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, Inc. May I urge your support?

Sincerely,
Murray D. Van Wagoner, Governor.

WHOOPING COUGH, MEASLES CASES ARE ON INCREASE

Whooping cough and measles are responsible for an increase in communicable diseases reported to the Michigan Department of Health in January as compared with January, 1940. Reported whooping cough cases totaled 1,539 as compared with 465 a year ago, and measles cases 6,485 as compared with 1,384 a year ago.

Sixteen cases of smallpox were reported and 27 cases of diphtheria in January.

NO EPIDEMICS BOTHER CAMP CUSTER TROOPS

Extensive Disease-Preventative Measures Protect Soldiers

The 15,000 troops stationed at the huge Camp Custer military reservation are healthy. At no time have epidemics of influenza or colds, ordinarily the Army's most serious health problems, handicapped the intensive training schedule of Fort Custer men.

The reasons for this exceptional record lie in the extensive disease-prevention measures taken by the medical department and the thoroughness with which they have been carried out. Every selective service man passes a rigid physical examination before he enters the army. In addition, regular check-ups made with the men by the 40 medical officers of the post.

All food to be used is inspected by responsible officers. Before men go into the field to drill they must be warmly and uniformly dressed, and at night regular provisions for fresh air are made in the barracks, where cots are so placed that their heads alternate and are divided from one another by protective curtains, which helps to minimize drafts and danger of contagion. Wearing of overcoats, hats, and overshoes in bad weather is compulsory.

Minor symptoms such as stomach aches and slight colds are taken seriously by the medical department, with whom prevention is worth infinitely more than cure.

LAKE TROUT FINGERLINGS ARE RELEASED

Three Million Planted in Grand Traverse Bay Last Week

Three million three hundred thousand fingerling trout were transplanted from the Harriett hatchery to the waters of Grand Traverse bay last week. The planting was carried on from the Northport harbor. Similar plantings will be made in several other trout waters.

The fingerlings were hatched from spawn stripped by commercial fishermen during the fall netting season and the percentage of hatch was unusually high, about 90 per cent.

While there is much debate as to the advisability of this work being carried on by the Michigan conservation department, commercial fishermen, in a majority, feel that it is highly landable and will eventually prove a boon to the industry.

According to figures available, if two per cent of the planted fingerlings live, the number will still be equal to the number of fish taken by commercial netters.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Heart Disease in Late Pregnancy

Generally speaking, the presence of a cardiac disorder does not inevitably indicate that a woman should not become a mother. Much depends on the particular type of heart trouble present, whether the individual can be seen at a sufficiently early stage and whether the condition will respond to treatment.

A physician is always loathe to deprive a woman of the pleasure of having her baby. The satisfaction of the maternal instinct and its reflection in mental health is too important a consideration to be ignored. Nevertheless, the obstetrician is often faced with the question of saving the expectant mother's life through termination of pregnancy or to risk serious complications by allowing her to go to full term.

Dr. Stanley D. Meares, writing in the Archives of Internal Medicine, has estimated that heart disease occurs in one to two per cent of all patients admitted to obstetric hospitals and that heart failure in late pregnancy occurs in about 10 per cent of the afflicted group.

The woman with heart disease would be well-advised to place herself in her doctor's care with the first indication of pregnancy. She should remain under his supervision for some time after the birth of her baby. Dr. Meares points out that of a series of 100 women who bore their children successfully, six died within a few days after. In these cases, it is said, the collapse of the heart was not primarily due to a diseased condition but, rather, to the fact that this type of patient possesses little resistance to infection and is intolerant to even the milder forms of puerperal sepsis.

Prophylaxis is highly important and the patient should be closely watched for possible signs of a failing heart and for the complications that may result from that condition. For all expectant mothers prenatal care, began early, is the best way for anticipating trouble and forewarned is to be forearmed.

The age of most pheasants may be determined by the length and shape of the spor, but in borderline cases conservation department game men use a more reliable test—the presence or absence of the "bursa" an internal pouch found only in young of the year.
